'BABY FARM' HEAD SEIZED

Today

A Troubled World
What Ails Us All?
Permission From Abroad
Sons, Full Grown

By Arthur Brisbane

THERE IS SERIOUS revolution in Brazil, Pernambuco taken by the rebels, according to report.

In the Argentine, rioting leaders are executed.

In China, 75,000 "Reds" attack Kiangsi Province.

Mild and peaceful South Germany is rocked by earthquake. Raphael's beautiful Madonna in Munich, with the exquisite little cherubs looking upward, must have felt the quake, but fortunately was not injured.

It is a strange, agitated, restless, dissatisfied world.

When you are ill, it is well to know what is the matter. Business is ill, with an illness that affects millions of unemployed, as illness of the body affects billions of cells.

Mr. L. Greenfield, of Santa Barbara, diagnozing, finds the following list of symptoms:

1—Over-speculation.
2—Fear.
3—Loss of confidence in our financial system.
4—Very low and cautious circulation of money.
5—Increase of unemployment by big business methods of "economy."
6—False statements of the country's condition.

What would you add to these symptoms? There is something the matter that nobody understands. This country fortunately will cure itself this time as it has cured itself often before.

It seems strange to read in dispatches from Washington about the "type of submarines that the navy may build under the London treaty."

We couldn't imagine Grover Cleveland, or Lincoln, asking anybody in London: "What kind of submarines may we build? ..nd how many?"

You are told that we may have, six years hence, as many as 40 United States submarines, and the navy is "concentrating on numbers, not on size."

We ought to have 100 submarines NOW, and we should concentrate on size, speed, and especially on cruising radius.

We should say to the rest of the world, "We want peace, and we intend to have it. Therefore, we have a submarine fleet that can go around the world, invisible, and destroy every one of your commercial ships.

"We have an air fleet that can cross all the oceans above the range of your anti-aircraft guns, and destroy every one of your cities, if to our regret we find it necessary to do so."

Mother Britannia begins to realize that her dominion sons are children no longer, and agrees, on demand of the Irish Free State, that the high court of any dominion shall render final decisions. Any dominion that chooses may abolish the right of its citizens to appeal to Britain's privy council against their own supreme court.

The Irish decide that their own courts are good enough, while this country decides that it needs decisions from foreign judges, and joins the World Court, sitting 3000 miles away across the ocean.

What has happened to our national backbone?

One scientist, disliking the idea of making money, said when announcing an important discovery, "Thank heaven, it cannot possibly have any practical use." Probably he was mistaken.

Paresis, a disease of the mind, that had always ended fatally, is now treated successfully by radio. The disease has recently been fought by creating intense fever in the patient, malaria-bearing mosquitoes were made to plant malarial germs in the paretics blood—he got malaria, but paresis improved.

Now, in place of the malarial mosquito, and unpleasant disease germs, the clean radio is used to cause intensely high fever. New York Academy of Medicine doctors discuss the new "remedy" with hope and excitement.

The "curing machine" is a small radio station, its energy is localized between two plates. The patient sits between them, and the radio impulses pass through him, creating a high fever.

The three most important words for 123,000,000 odd Americans, today are these:

THEBAUD HAS LEAD OF 11 MINUTES

No Hope for Canadian Boat in Fisherman's Race at 24-Mile Mark

By WIN BROOKS.

Gloucester, Oct. 9—The local schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud was 11 minutes 44 seconds ahead at the 24-mile mark in the fishermen's race against the Bluenose. Today's race was the opener for the Lipton cup.

The Thebaud passed the first marker five minutes ahead of the Bluenose.

It looked as though the Thebaud had overstood a little as the tacked for the first mark at 11 a. m. Three minutes later the Bluenose also came about and stood down for the turn. The sun started to break through the clouds as the boats neared the buoy.

GAINS FIVE MINUTES

Both schooners were forced to make another short hitch to make the mark. As they turned it they were breaking out fisherman's staysails, a piece of canvas found very efficient by the men of the Banks. The times at the first mark indicated that the Gloucester boat had gained about five minutes on the invader.

The wind appeared to be moderating slightly as the boats began the second six mile leg of the thirty seven and five-eighths mile course. The direction of the wind made the second leg a broad reach out to sea.

The time at the first mark was:

Thebaud	11:17:56
Bluenose	11:24:41

AT SECOND MARKER.

The Thebeau led the Bluenose at the flag marking the end of the second six-mile leg by 6 minutes and 13 seconds, having gained 9

Boyd Passes St. Johns on Ocean Flight

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 9 (AP)—The monoplane Columbia, bound from Harbor Grace, N. F., to London, passed over St. John's at 12:10 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Harbor Grace, N. F., Oct. 9 (AP)—Capt. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry Connor hopped off here today at 11:20 a. m., E. S. T., for a transcontinental flight to England.

The two fliers, who flew here from New York more than a week ago, had been fog bound here since. Early today fog still hung over the Newfoundland coast, but a break came during the forenoon and the fliers decided to take the leap immediately.

It will be the Columbia's second trans-Atlantic crossing if the fliers are successful. The airplane is owned by Charles A. Levine, who flew in it to Germany more than three years ago with Clarence Chamberlin as his pilot.

P. & W. TRADING CORP. CLOSED

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The Stock Exchange today announced the suspension of the brokerage firm of Prince & Whitely, for insolvency. Frozen assets are given as the probable reason.

The firm was one of the largest and oldest in Wall St. In addition to two offices in New York city it maintained offices in Boston, Indianapolis, Philadelphia and Reading, Pa. The firm had correspondents throughout the country and maintained a large security distributing organization.

Wall Street regarded this failure as one of the most serious in the past decade, although no estimate as to assets and liabilities was available.

The firm was established in 1887. It formed an investment trust called the Prince & Whitely Trading Corp. a year ago. Its stock was sold throughout the country.

Manager Frank Black of the Boston offices of Prince & Whitely declared the suspension was entirely unexpected. The Boston offices have been reported as doing a large business.

Mayor to Review Parade of Police

Supt. of Police Michael H. Crowley today called on Mayor Curley and invited him to review the annual parade of the Boston Police Department, next Monday. The Mayor accepted the invitation and complimented the "Super" on the splendid appearance of his officers and their fine work in handling the Legion parade crowds.

Curley Finds Jobs for 40 More Men

Continuing his efforts to relieve unemployment, Mayor Curley today appointed 40 men as laborers in the public works department for a period of three months at a salary of $5 a day. The majority of the men are married and the fathers of families.

Curley's Job System Wins Legion Tribute

While members of the Associated General Contractors board were expressing dissatisfaction with his system of hiring day labor on city work, members of the American Legion were presenting him with a gold medal. Mayor Curley said today, under the law, veterans are given preference.

O'NEIL ELECTED NEW HEAD OF LEGION

Topeka Lawyer Gets 880, Johnson 346; Bay State Solid for Winner

Ralph T. ("Dike") O'Neil, a Topeka, Kan., attorney, was elected national commander of the American Legion today at the final session of the convention at Boston Arena.

He defeated J. Munroe Johnson of Marion, S. C., a civil engineer, 880 to 346, on the first ballot. Massachusetts cast its entire block of 49 votes for the winner.

The announcement was greeted with by the delegates and audience, O'Neil being popular with the veterans through his services as national vice-commander in 1927.

The vote came after a day replete with business of the session that included an uproar when a delegate from New York attempted to inject the wet and dry issue into the convention.

Gaining the floor, Delegate James P. Cotter of Buffalo, presented a resolution to Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, calling for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The chair announced the move and immediately ruled the delegate out of order.

ROLL CALL DEMANDED.

A storm arose in the New York section and spread to other quarters with New York loudly booming for a roll call on a point of order.

Commander Bodenhamer declared any discussion of the subject unconstitutional, but a roll call was again demanded by New York.

They failed, however, to receive the support of two other states as seconders for the roll call and the move was declared lost.

The resolution was not read, but

Bertram G. Waters, Harvard '89, Dead

Bertram G. Waters, former Harvard football star and wealthy insurance man, dropped dead today in the South Station while running for a train at Track 7.

Waters, who was 55, was a famous athlete at Harvard, from which he was graduated in 1889, playing tackle on the varsity team. He lived at 43 Hedge rd., Brookline, and had offices at 200 Franklin st. Boston.

Killefer Mentioned as Red Sox Pilot

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9—Red Killefer, manager of the Mission team of the Pacific Coast League, is considering an offer to pilot a major league club, according to a report circulated here among baseball men attending world's series games.

It is said that Killefer may land the Boston Red Sox post. He is a brother of Manager Bill Killefer of the St. Louis Browns.

Superior Court Officer Is Dead

Robert M. McLeish, for 27 years an officer of the Suffolk county superior court, is dead at his home, 1 Arbroth st., Dorchester. He was a native of Dumferline, Scotland, and came to this country after having served 22 years in the British army. He was 70 years old. His wife, a daughter, Mrs. Milton Pretzold of Paris Island, S. C., and two sons, Robert and John McLeish of Dorchester, survive him.

Over-Capitalization Cause of Depression, Says W. R. Hearst

THE BASIS of prosperity is the ability of the public to buy, plus, of course, the willingness of the public to buy.

In other words, prosperity is based on the purchasing power of the public. When the public buys from the stores, the stores buy from the factories, the factories buy the raw materials produced by the farms and the mines.

All these forms of activity employ labor, and the money circulates with profits to all classes.

We were in the midst of such a prosperous period. Why did it not continue?

We do not have to go to the war in China and the silver situation in India to find the reason.

Real Reason Right Here at Home

There may be contributing causes in those distant regions, but the real reason is right here at home.

The cause is not lack of money here, either. We have today all the money we had in the country in times of prosperity.

We have in addition part payments to us by foreign nations, and we have in addition again all the money that foreign investors from Europe, South America and elsewhere poured into the booming American stock market, and left here when the stock collapse came and wiped them out.

What then is the cause of the collapse?

Not merely over-speculation, but over-capitalization.

The people were in a speculative mood. They would buy anything. They would absorb any issue, without regard to basic earnings and dividends.

As a consequence, all sorts of cats-and-dogs were unloaded on the market and sold to the public, which bit at them like hungry fish at a cotton fly or a tin spoon.

Billions of dollars were taken from hard-earned hoardings of little speculators and stored away in the vaults of the big speculators.

Not only were companies formed of amalgamated cats-and-dogs, and sold to the public at a hundred times their value, but investment trusts were formed, and after the public appetite for cats-and-dogs had waned, the investment trust, guided by the big speculators, to whose honor the public's money had been entrusted, absorbed the remainder of the issue of amalgamated cats-and-dogs which the public would not knowingly buy.

Amalgamated Cats-and-Dogs

In one instance, sixty million shares of amalgamated cats-and-dogs were unloaded on the public at twenty dollars a share—one billion, two hundred million dollars' worth of worthlessness handed to the public in return for good money.

But all the capitalization that tended to bring about hard times was not over-capitalization, and certainly not all of it wildcat capitalization.

The wildcat speculation could only be conducted by the great firms in whose honor the public had misplaced confidence.

Mere over-capitalization, however, was conducted by many institutions with less fame and more morality, and a certain amount of legitimate but unwarranted capitalization was practiced by almost every institution.

The marvelous improvements of modern machinery, and the wonderful advances in modern methods of mass production have caused almost everything to be produced at, to use a round figure, half its former cost.

ADMITS ONE MOTHER NOT TOLD CHILD HAD DIED

Mrs. Rena Golden Also Declares She Never Knew Another Child Was Dead

Accused of conducting a "baby farm," Mrs. Rena Golden, from whose Westwood house state agents took seven babies in an alleged condition of malnutrition, was called from bed today in her new home in Armstrong st., Jamaica Plain, and arrested.

She spent the early morning hours in a cell at Dedham police station and then, weeping, was taken to the district court, where she pleaded not guilty to boarding babies without a license and was held in $2000 bail for a hearing next Thursday.

Her nine-year-old daughter, Muriel, was in court with her.

Four babies are now believed to have died at the "baby farm," according to the police investigators. Mrs. Golden admits two deaths and said today the mother of one of the dead children does not know it yet, because her address was not known.

$5 A WEEK FOR EACH

Bodies of two of the babies will probably be exhumed for an autopsy, police announced.

Questioned by State Detective Michael Fleming, who is in charge of the investigation, Mrs. Golden is alleged to have said she took only two quarts of milk a day, although her household consisted of several boarded babies, her own two children, her husband and herself.

She said, however, that she gave some of the babies a powder preparation which costs $1.10 a pound and with which infant food is made by adding boiling water.

Mrs. Golden also said, according to Fleming, that she received $5 a week for each of the babies she boarded, and that she had a license for only two babies, which the authorities said was voided when she moved from Dedham to Westwood.

BLAMES GOSSIPERS

"I have been a victim of the gossip of jealous neighbors," said the accused woman, talking with a Boston Evening American reporter at the Dedham police station while awaiting the arrival of her husband, whom she had sent for by telephone.

The babies upon whose bodies the investigators wish an autopsy performed were Mary O'Neil, who died at Dedham, August 14, and the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George McKay of Lynn, who died at Massachusetts General Hospital on August 12, after having been taken there from Mrs. Golden's.

'BABY FARM' MOTHER SAYS SHE DIDN'T KNOW CHILD HAD DIED

'FED ALL WELL,' DECLARES MRS. GOLDEN TO POLICE

Inanition was given as the cause of the death of Mary O'Neil, who was two months old, and enteritis with complications caused the other child's death. According to Dr. Clarence M. Kelley, who was called once for the O'Neil baby, the child was suffering constantly and appeared not to have been fed for a long time. Inanition means emptiness. Dr. Kelley favors an autopsy.

The third child to die was Alfred Hamilton, 12 days old, according to the police. An undertaker's record showed that this baby was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton of Chelsea, and that Dr. Julius Toltz of Chelsea treated the child and gave the cause of death as inanition, with premature birth as a contributory factor. Mrs. Golden recalled this infant's name first as Farrington or Harrington, and then said it was Hamington.

HAS SEVEN CHILDREN

Mrs. Golden is 50 and has seven children, three of them adults. She is of medium height and rather stocky, and was dressed in black today.

After the brief court session, conducted by Judge Clifford Sanborn, she was taken back to the police station and grilled by Detective Fleming, Inspector Edward Flanagan of Dedham and Police Chief Peter Driscoll of Westwood.

"I have tried to give every baby in my care the same attention it would have received from its own mother," said Mrs. Golden to a representative of the American.

"I have been the victim of the gossip of jealous neighbors.

"I do not know how it happens that the death certificate of the McKay baby is on file at Dedham town hall with my address on it. I had that baby one week and sent it back. I did not know it had died.

"Only two babies died at my home. One was a boy named Hamington, that came to be very sickly and lived about six weeks. The mother took the body and made all the funeral arrangements. I never knew the mother's address, though I know she lived somewhere in Chelsea.

"The O'Neill baby died at my home, and I don't think the mother knows yet that it is dead. When the child died I tried to get in touch with a Mrs. Sullivan of Brant Rock, who brought the baby to me, but my letter to her was returned. The undertaker has not been paid yet. His charge is $35.

"Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Powers were well paid by me for taking care of the children I left there. I didn't take the babies there and drop them. As a matter of fact, they came to me and asked if I would let them have the children. In all, I let Mrs. Powers have three at different times."

The State Department of Public Welfare explained today that of the eight babies found with Mrs. Golden five were returned to their parents, one was taken to a hospital and another placed with a foster mother. The eighth baby appeared to be in good health and was not moved.

MOTHER TAKES BABY

Today, the parents of the baby that had been placed with a foster mother selected by the State, called and got their child.

Mrs. Golden disappeared from her Westwood home after the children were taken by the State agents last week, and was found at her Armstrong st. home in Jamaica Plain shortly after midnight today, through questioning of relatives.

In response to questions of Detective Fleming, Mrs. Golden told the following story, according to the officer:

"I used to live in Jamaica Plain and there started taking care of babies for a Boston orphanage asylum. Whatever I did was without the consent of my husband. I didn't discuss the matter with him.

"When I first moved to Dedham I lived on Woodlawn st. for 11 months, then on Zorr ave. for several months and then on Bridge st. for 11 months more. I inserted advertisements, giving no address, just my telephone number.

"When the mothers sent their children, I insisted that they mark all the clothing so none of it would get lost or mixed up.

"I had a license to conduct a boarding house for two children. I didn't notify the Dedham authorities when I moved to Westwood. When I moved I had seven children, and at Westwood I got another, two weeks old.

"I kept no records of the children and did not know the addresses of the parents. They paid me $5 a week for each child.

"I took two quarts of milk a day. Besides the children I boarded, there were two of my own, but I didn't feed all the babies milk, giving some a powdered preparation of soda and magnesia which costs $1.10 a pound tin and which only the highest class stores sell."

LICENSE WAS DEAD

Licenses to board children are issued by the division of child guardianship of the state department of public welfare. Police say that when Mrs. Golden moved her license was automatically voided and she should have notified the Dedham town authorities, who had to approve her previous license.

Mrs. Golden was arrested by Inspector Flanagan of the Dedham police, Chief Peter Driscoll of Westwood and Special Officer Roy Bates of the Jamaica Plain police.

Of the seven babies taken by the state from the "farm" in Lake Shore road, one is still a patient at the New England Hospital for Women and Children. It weighs only five pounds, and its body is covered with bed sores, according to the state agents.

Members of the Department of Public Welfare said the seven babies were so weak from lack of nourishment that they were unable to clutch their nursing bottles in their tiny hands. They were covered from head to foot with sores and in a pitiful state of emaciation.

TWO INFANTS SOUGHT

The deaths of the infants and Mrs. Golden's sudden departure from the Westwood "Farm" following the visit of the agents on Oct. 1, are under investigation by State Detective Michael Fleming and Inspector Flanagan of the police, on orders of Assistant Dist. Attys. William P. Kelly and Edmund Dewing, of Norfolk County, it was revealed in yesterday's Boston Evening American.

Chief Driscoll is directing the local investigation in co-operation with the Misses Hilda and Roberta Jolly, state agents.

The whereabouts of two other babies that were at the "farm" is still a puzzle. One of these, according to neighbors of the farm, Mrs. Golden took away in an automobile several hours before the state agents appeared.

Woman Moved Suddenly After State Agents Visited "Farm"

The other was left at the "farm" by the agents because, they reported, it was the only one among the eight found in good condition.

Although she had lived at the Westwood house but two days before the state investigation began, Mrs. Golden moved the afternoon following the visit of the agents, it is said.

Agents had found the eight babies in charge of two girls. Mrs. Golden, her husband and two sons were not at home.

When Dr. Kelley, whose name was affixed to the death certificate for the O'Neil baby, was asked about that case, he said:

"I remember this case distinctly. I was called to the house down there on Bridge st. and I treated the baby. I remember that it appeared to be badly in need of nourishment and I left instructions with Mrs. Golden.

"I told her to call me up the next day and let me know how the child was getting along. I also cautioned her that if the child should become worse through the night not to hesitate to call me.

"I was quite surprised to learn the next day that the child was dead. When I came in from a call the death certificate was there for me to sign. I was told that the undertaker had left the certificate for me to sign.

"I did not see the baby only the one time and so I called the medical examiner and I told him about the baby. I explained to him just what I had been able to discover in my diagnosis of the case and he said that it would be all right for me to assign inanition as the cause of death.

"Of course, I have my suspicions now as a result of what I have since heard. Forethought is much better than afterthought and in the light of other things I think that it might be a fine idea if an autopsy was performed upon the body of the baby."

After Inspector Edward Flannagan and Chief of Police Peter Driscoll had examined the death certificate on file at Dedham town hall Inspector Flannagan said:

SEARCH SPREADS

"It is apparent that the deaths of these two children occurring within two days of each other presents a situation that bears careful investigation.

"I am especially anxious to find out what became of the baby that was carried away from the house in Westwood on the morning of October 1."

Dedham Health Official Calls Conditions at "Farm" Shocking

The investigation into the "baby farm" operated by Mrs. Golden was brought about through Dr. A. L. Worthington, Dedham Health Board official, it became known today.

In an interview with the Boston Evening American, Dr. Worthington stated that when he responded to a call to treat an undernourished child at the "baby farm" then being operated by Mrs. Golden, in Dedham, that the conditions which he found in the house were shocking.

Telling his story today Dr Worthington said:

"I was called to the Golden house late on the afternoon of August 1. When I got to the house I found a child in a serious condition and I prescribed medicine to check its constant suffering.

"It appeared to me as though it had not been fed for a long period of time. I should say that the baby was about three weeks old. Mrs. Golden told me that its name was MacKay and that she was taking care of it for a young couple.

"I felt at the time that the child was practically beyond medical aid but, of course, with a baby they sometimes recover quickly from an attack of sickness. I told Mrs. Golden at the time to call me and let me know how the child was getting along.

"When I left the Golden home I could not help thinking of the conditions in the house as I found them. I decided, as an officer of the board of health, that an investigation should be made and so I reported the matter to the State officials.

"I don't know what to think of this matter now. The deaths of two child charges of Mrs. Golden's, each within two days of the other, is a rather peculiar circumstance. I believe that a thorough investigation should be undertaken into determining the cause of each of these deaths.

"It is surprising to me that inanition was given as the cause of death. I was of the opinion that inanition was no longer accepted as a cause unless some contributory cause was also included."

The Bridge st., Dedham, farm at which Mrs. Golden boarded babies for about a year, according to neighbors, is a single house of six rooms located in a wooded section of the town.

The house in Westwood to which she moved on September 29 is also a single house and in it she is said to have a small equity. It is situated in a new development in the Bridgewood Lake district. It, too, has six rooms and a sun parlor.

HOUSE SEARCHED

Police attempting to serve the warrant on Mrs. Golden discovered the house had been vacated and a search of the premises revealed in drawers a few articles, which were taken by Chief Driscoll.

As far as the police and child welfare workers have been able to learn during their investigation of the baby farm mystery, Mrs. Golden conceived the idea of operating a baby farm after she had cared for three children for a Boston orphan asylum, two years ago.

The investigators learned, according to Chief Driscoll and Inspector Flannigan, that the officers in charge of the asylum became dissatisfied with Mrs. Golden's care of their charges and after a dispute with her took them from her home.

Mrs. Golden then, according to the police, inserted advertisements in certain newspapers seeking to board the children for mothers who had to work or could not care for them.

In her advertisement Mrs. Golden promised that the children would receive proper care and motherly attention and that they would always be in sunny, airy rooms.

Mrs. Marie De Conto, owner of the Dedham house, said she never saw the inside of the house after Mrs. Golden had moved in. On one occasion when she attempted to step inside she was admonished by Mrs. Golden and reminded that she had no right inside of the house.

Over-Capitalization Held as Cause of Depression

But the sales price remained the same or was even higher.

Consequently the profits of industry were greatly increased.

Who should have had the advantage of this improvement in machinery and methods, this enormous increase in products and lower cost of production?

Obviously some reasonable part of it should have gone to the management of industry, and the greater part of it should have gone to the working masses.

Higher Wages and Shorter Hours

In other words, the increased profits should have been distributed largely in higher wages and shorter working hours.

If this had been done, the shorter working hours would obviously have prevented any lack of employment, because a greater number of men would have been employed to fill out the working week.

And if wages had increased in proportion to the productivity of modern machinery and the consequent increase in the profits of industry, the purchasing power of the public would have increased and the consumption of all kinds of goods and products would have been maintained at a high level, or raised to a still higher level.

But when profits in industry increased, 6 per cent to 25 per cent, labor got but a small and greatly grudged proportion of that increase, with practically no reduction of working hours, and all of the rest of the increased profits were transformed into increased capitalization.

If a business which was making 6 per cent had come, through the use of modern machinery and modern methods, which decreased the price of production, to make 25 per cent, the main result of that increase of profits was a four-fold issue of stock, or as large an issue of stock as would still keep the business on a 6 per cent basis.

When the business, despite the increased profits, had thus been reduced to a 6 per cent basis, through a four-fold issue of stock on which the business now had to pay dividends, of course there was no money left to increase wages and shorten the hours of the employes.

In other words, there was no money left to build up the purchasing power of the masses, and MAINTAIN THE CONDITIONS WHICH MADE FOR PROSPERITY.

Excess capitalization took money away from the masses WHEN MONEY OUGHT TO HAVE BEEN GIVEN TO THEM IN THE WAY OF INCREASED WAGES AND SHORTER HOURS.

In fact, the supply of money in the hands of the public, which creates the purchasing power of the public, was sapped by added capitalization and over-capitalization instead of having that supply of the public's money increased by a more liberal distribution of profits in wages.

If profits had been distributed in wages, prosperity would have been maintained and increased.

We would have had for the masses of the public not only a full dinner pail, but a full pocketbook.

But when the money in the hands of the public was not increased by higher wages, but diminished by the sale to the public of inflated securities, we created what we have now—an empty pocketbook and in many cases an empty dinner pail, and in some cases a breadline.

The whole cause of the hard times is not merely over-speculation, but over-capitalization, and the failure to take advantage of the opportunity provided by increased profits in industry to devote the major part of those profits to higher wages, which would maintain the purchasing power of the public, and to shorter hours, which would have given full employment as well as an ease to the wage and salary earning public.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

WOMAN, 94, IS LISTED VOTER

At the age of 94, Mrs. Mary A. Towner of 46 James st., Malden, registered for the November election today at Malden City Hall.

She was accompanied by her son's wife, Mrs. Fred L. Towner, with whom she has been making her home since she moved to Malden from New York two years ago.

Several years ago, Mrs. Towner made her home at Melrose.

Eastman to Donate Hospital to Sweden

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 9 (AP) George Eastman of Rochester, N. Y., today offered the city of Stockholm $1,000,000 for a municipal dental hospital for the treatment of poor children.

ALLSTON THIEF SURRENDERS

New Orleans, Oct. 9 (AP)—The good times which Roy C. Hale, 22, of Allston, Mass., thought he could have traveling on $2000 he said he took from his employers didn't seem to materialize and now he wants to return home.

He told officers his story and asked them to send him home.

The night clubs and gambling houses of New Orleans lured him, he said, and soon the money he admitted taking from a motor truck company at 75 North Beacon st., Allston, was gone.

Hale said he believed relatives had refunded the money to the company.

Submarine Best for Arctic, Says Stefansson

New York, Oct. 9—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famous Arctic explorer, who arrived here yesterday on the liner Majestic from Engand, said that submarines are safer and more practical than airplanes or dirigibles for Arctic exploration.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson

Mr. Stefansson, who has been lecturing at Cambridge University, England, for the past three months, declared that he believed that Sir George Hubert Wilkins, who plans a conquest of the North Pole by a submarine, would be successful. A submarine has been loaned the Wilkins expedition by the government and it is now undergoing changes and repairs at the Philadelphia navy yard.

Alma Rubens Makes Bow on Broadway Monday

New York, Oct. 9—Alma Rubens, former motion picture actress, will enter the cast of a Broadway production which opens Monday. It will be her first appearance on the legitimate stage on Broadway. Miss Rubens has been in vaudeville since her recovery from a recent sickness.

Alma Rubens

She recently declared that she would file suit for divorce, on grounds of desertion, against her husband, Ricard Cortez. Miss Rubens alleged that Cortez deserted her when she was sick about a year ago. Miss Rubens was near death for several months.

Wagner Says Figures on Jobless Are Wrong

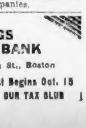
Washington, Oct. 9—Census figures on unemployment issued recently have been challenged by Senator Wagner, Democrat, of New York, as "inaccurate" and "far below" the number actually unemployed in the country. Senator Wagner believed the actual number of unemployed in the nation was between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000, whereas preliminary statistics from the Census Bureau indicated about 2,500,000.

Senator Wagner

Senator Wagner contended that some census enumerators had failed, especially in New York, to enquire on unemployment in making their surveys. He argued that had Congress kept his amendment to the census bill, requiring census enumerators to be employed under Civil Service, a more "accurate" census would have resulted.

Film Star's Husband Sued for Back Alimony

New York, Oct. 9—Dark-eyed Dolores Del Rio, Mexican film star, was warned by a legal affidavit filed for a New York plaintiff in Los Angeles yesterday that the new Del Rio husband—Cedric Gibbons, cinema art director—may have two wives to support.



Dolores Del Rio

The papers in the case, were sworn to by Mrs. Gwendolyn Weller Gibbons of Greenwich Village, who was divorced by Gibbons four years ago.

Since he became interested in the fascinating Dolores early this year, Gibbons has totally neglected a little matter of $500 monthly alimony, the first spouse complains.

NATION'S GREATEST PROSPERITY NEAR, DAVIS TELLS A. F. OF L.

DETROIT ALL SET FOR BIG BUSINESS

Labor Secretary Warns Workers to Study Progress of Machinery

Developments today at the convention of the American Federation of Labor were as follows:

1—Prediction by Secretary Davis that country will soon enter into greatest prosperity of history.

2—Final hearings on unemployment and prohibition, including question of repealing Volstead Act and 18th Amendment.

3—Mayor Murphy of Detroit said his city would be first to emerge from depression.

4 MILLION TO PLACE

Secretary Davis' address was the highlight of the day's session. After first bespeaking support of the selective system of immigration, he took up the employment situation with these words:

"At the beginning of my term of office in 1921 we had nearly 6,000,000 workers off the payroll. We were faced with the necessity of reabsorbing into our economic life the 4,000,000 men who served in the military forces of our country during the World War.

"We have had 2,000,000 boys and girls coming of work age each year, and the workers who were released from farm and industry because of the machines, estimated at 2,000,000 more.

"Yes, and before the war there were 4,000,000 women in industry and the recent census shows more than 10,000,000. Even with the strictest immigration laws enforced, we have had 4,100,000 immigrants come to us since 1921 and the quarter million from the countryside who came to the cities seeking employment.

FAITH IN AMERICA

"When we consider all that we have achieved in stabilizing employment we can justly say we have done well. I am one of those Americans who believe in the future greatness of America because we have unlimited natural resources. We have skill and intelligence. We have the highest type of managerial genius and craftmanship and our industrial leaders have vision.

"I am one who believes that we will soon emerge from the period of depression and enter upon a new and lasting era of prosperity surpassing perhaps all former periods of prosperity in the history of our country."

Secretary Davis warned of the danger to labor by the tremendous increase of labor-saving machinery and declared such displaced labor must be cared for. He expressed confidence the high standard of living of the American workers would continue and promised the government would do whatever was necessary to protect it.

DETROIT HAS PLAN

Mayor Frank Murphy, newly-elected chief executive of Detroit, said:

"It is about time that American officials told the truth about unemployment. You cannot solve anything without knowing the facts. We are going to tell the facts in Detroit, remove the dole system of charity and use the funds to provide jobs. We are going to do this in a new, youthful spirit."

Matilda Lindsay, of the National Women's Trade League, spoke on organized labor.

As the resolutions committee went into session, its chairman, Matthew Woll, vice president of the Federation, was handed a resolution by Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames and Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, representing the Massachusetts Branch of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. This resolution seeks the repeal of the 18th Amendment, in view of the "tremendous demoralization, both social and economic, which national prohibition has brought about in the United States."

MOTIONS FOR REPEAL

The committee was also to hold hearings on two other resolutions, calling for repeal of the Volstead Act and the 18th Amendment respectively, and the recommendation of the executive council for modification of the Volstead Act.

At the request of President William Green, delegates to the convention rose during the morning session, and stood in silent tribute to departed members.

Aside from the activities of the resolutions committee, the afternoon was to be devoted to receiving felicitations from foreign countries, brought by representatives of fraternal organizations.

Albert M. Anderson of the Paving Cutters offered a resolution asking that his organization be given jurisdiction over cutting in East Weymouth as a solution to the controversy between paving cutters and granite cutters.

Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America asked the Federation to demand adoption of a compulsory system of unemployment insurance.

LABOR URGED TO BACK REPEAL

A communication from a group of prominent Massachusetts women asking support of labor in the movement to bring about repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was received by the American Federation of Labor today.

The communication, signed by Mrs. Lothrop Ames and Mrs. R. W. Lovett, was in the form of a resolution adopted by the Massachusetts branch of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

It urged co-operation of organized labor in the movement to obtain "repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the restoration of 48 sovereign states with power to regulate their own liquor problems."

'Baering' Down On the News

WITH

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Congressman Britten wins an important detail for doctors by flattening the plan of an application every two months for one quart of liquor.

That's not only unsanitary. But too long to wait.

Doctors can now go wet marketing for six bottles at a clip. You require a diploma to drink nowadays.

This whiskey is used in medical offices and operating rooms. When a lady faints the doctor gives her a drink.

Then the doctor takes a drink. And he faints.

As an anaesthetic, producing the sleep that passeth all understanding and amendments, its soporific qualities are equivalent to having your hair parted with a chunk of lead pipe.

We forgot that the six bottles are supposed to last a year. Very often the doctors forget it too.

Its antiseptic and therapeutic values are high, providing you take a forkful every hour.

DRY REPEAL UP TO R. I. VOTERS

Providence, Oct. 9—Should the people of Rhode Island vote for repeal to the Eighteenth Amendment November 4 in the State-wide referendum, the State Republican party will go wet, in accordance with the pledge made in the Republican State convention assembled here today.

In adoption of its platform, the party reaffirmed its pledge of 1928 to support the federal Constitution but promised to abide by the decision of the people of the State.

The question for the voters to pass on in the referendum, "Shall the Eighteenth Amendment be repealed?" was provided by the last session of the Legislature.

The convention went on record as approving the Hoover administration, endorsed the president's record and pledged continued support to him.

The Democratic state convention of last week was scored on the ground the religious issue was raised.

The convention was opened by William C. Pelkey, executive secretary of the state committee and the keynote was sounded by Permanent Chairman John C. Cossboom.

On the state ticket, Jesse H Metcalf was renominated for U. S senator by acclaim Norman S. Case was picked for governor, and James G. Connolly for lieutenant-governor; Benjamin M. McLyman for attorney-general; George C. Clark for state treasurer, and Ernest L. Sprague for secretary of state. None of the nominations were contested.

Hearst Luncheon Guest of Hoover

Washington, Oct. 9 (US)—William Randolph Hearst was the luncheon guest yesterday of President Hoover at the White House, during a brief visit to this city. The luncheon was at 1:30 o'clock.

Mr. Hearst arrived from New York in the morning. Following the luncheon at the White House he left at 3:25 o'clock for Chicago.

1 KILLED AND 2 DYING IN CRASH

Shrewsbury, Oct. 9—One man was burned to death and two others are dying as the result of a crash today on Shrewsbury hill between a furniture van and a light truck.

The victim and his companion were trapped in the cab of the van when it burst into flames.

Emil Landry, 22, of Brooks ave., Waltham, died at Worcester City Hospital shortly after his arrival and the names of Leo A. Mollica, 21, of Kenmore, N. Y., and Henry Langill, 23, of 207 Charles st., Waltham, were placed on the danger list.

All suffered fractures and internal injuries.

According to police, the van was passing the smaller truck when the accident occurred.

The big truck turned over and burst into flames, trapping Landry and Langill in the cab. Mollica was hurled to the street.

The dead man was on his first trip as a helper on the van.

Year's Fines Yield $60,136 to County

For the year ending Sept. 30, last, Suffolk county received a revenue of $60,136.59, as the result of fines imposed by the Superior Criminal Court. Violations of automobile laws brought $18,605 into the treasury of the City of Boston.

Mr. Hearst, in Chicago for Fete, Visions Prosperity

Chicago, Oct. 9 (INS)—William Randolph Hearst, publisher, arrived here today to be the honored guest at a patriotic demonstration marking the 59th anniversary of the Chicago fire.

"Prosperity" banquets, parades speeches and pageantry were on the program.

To newspaper men Mr. Hearst declared conditions which brought about the business depression have disappeared, have "exhausted" themselves."

Anlyzing the business situation, he said:

"It doesn't take long to fall from the top of a high building, but it takes a long time to climb back. The conditions which brought about the business depression now have exhausted themselves and business is beginning to improve. We, who publish newspapers know this is true.

"The late President Wilson said, 'Panics are a matter of psychology.' Of course, we all know that is true. That is also true of prosperity.

"The business institutions already are beginning to feel the general improvement. Savings bank accounts indicate people still have much money and they are now beginning to spend it.

"Business generally is improving and will continue so, and it will be a long time before the stock market will begin to reflect actual recovery of real business."

Mr. Hearst, accompanied by his son, William Randolph Hearst, Jr., was welcomed at the train by Mayor William Hale Thompson and other dignitaries.

Today's celebration, in the mayor's opinion, will bring forth a renewed allegiance to American principles, as well as a beginning of prosperity's return.

Mr. Hearst's expulsion from France for having exposed the secret Anglo-French naval treaty provided a keynote for the manifestation of patriotism.

Held in $1000 Bail for Theft of 5 Cents

Charged with larceny of five cents, John Rosenberg, 18, of Granite st., Quincy, was held in $1000 bail today in Quincy court for the Grand Jury. On a charge of drunkenness he was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction and appealed.

John T. Horrigan, of Water st., Quincy, testified that he was going through Quincy square yesterday when Rosenberg, taking advantage of the fact that both his hands were occupied with bundles searched his pockets and took the nickel. Horrigan dropped the bundles, struck Rosenberg then chased and captured him.

Mrs. L. J. Byington Dies at Newton

OAKLAND PLANS TRIBUTE TO MR. HEARST

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 9 (US)—Oakland and the East Bay district will extend official greetings to William Randolph Hearst on Friday, October 17, it was announced by Mayor John L. Davie.

The Oakland reception, a tribute to the publisher's long career of public service, will follow a similar welcome to be given him in San Francisco on Thursday, Oct. 16.

As in San Francisco, the East Bay district will make the welcome an occasion for an enthusiastic patriotic demonstration in recognition of Mr. Hearst's unswerving Americanism, his fight for free speech, and his determined opposition to entangling foreign alliances.

DATE SET FOR OCT. 17

The following telegram from Mr. Hearst was received by Mr. Davie:

"Thank you for your kind telegram. I will be in San Francisco on Oct. 16. Will Oct. 17 be agreeable for me to visit Oakland?"

Mayor Davie replied that this date would be acceptable and went into conference with Commissioner Charles I. Anderson, who will represent the mayor in making arrangements.

Commissioner Anderson, following conferences with other officials, announced that a delegation from Oakland would probably come to San Francisco on the morning of Oct. 17 and escort Mr. Hearst to Oakland.

INVITED BY VETERANS

The program does not call for a parade. The city's guest will be taken to the Oakland City Hall and there spokesmen for the city, veterans and other organizations will offer their welcome and voice their appreciation of Mr. Hearst's services as a citizen and publisher.

A luncheon or a dinner will be given in honor of Mr. Hearst at which prominent men and women from all parts of the East Bay district will be present.

An invitation to the publisher to be guest of honor at the state convention of the United States Veterans of the Republic, in Fresno, was extended today by Al W. Chase of Oakland, commander of the California department of the organization. The convention will be in session Oct. 17 and 18.

HEARST OUSTER CLOSED

Washington, Oct. 9 (US)—Secretary Stimson made known today that the State Department regards the expulsion of William Randolph Hearst from France a closed incident.

The Secretary was asked whether the Department had made any protest to the French government over their expulsion of Mr. Hearst. The Secretary said no protest had been made.

It was subsequently explained that the United States regards every country's decision to receive or expel foreigners as one of the most important sovereign rights. The United States in the past has exercised this right, it was pointed out.

Secretary Stimson stated that the matter of a protest had not been brought to the attention of the State Deparment.

THEBAUD LEADS IN CUP RACE

seconds. They were officially clocked at the turn:

Thebaud	12:00:56
Bluenose	12:07:09

The third six miles which completed the first circuit of the 18-mile triangle gave the schooners a close reach. The race is twice over the course. It became apparent early in today's race that the Bluenose's new mainsail was too large for her. Capt. Walters was forced to keep such tension on the topping lift that it pressed into the sail, destroying its contour and reducing its efficiency.

Although the wind continued moderate, it was cold and biting and overcoats were the costume of the day. The ground swell that remained as a reminder of the easterly winds of the past few days made for little comfort aboard the spectator fleet, many of which rolled their rails to the sea.

AT HALFWAY MARK.

Thebaud led Bluenose at the 18-mile mark after the first circuit of the triangular course by 6 minutes 12 seconds. The Bluenose gained one second on the third leg. The times:

Thebaud	12:29:59
Bluenose	12:36:11

Fishermen among the spectators on the Coyningham were highly amused by radio broadcasts of the race which told of a heavy wind and the sea stormy. The fishermen described the sea as only lumpy. The wind scarcely averaged 17 miles an hour velocity.

The schooners negotiated the first half of the 27 and five eights mile course in approximately two hours and a half and by maintaining that pace they would finish around 3 p. m.

At the half way mark the contest had become almost hopeless stern chase for Capt. Walters and the big Lunenburg schooner. Only a much stronger breeze it appeared could enable the invader to head Capt. Ben Pine and the Gloucester boat.

HELPED BY TIDE

Both schooners stood in towards the shore after passing the third leg marker. The tide was running in, giving them the advantage of pressure on their lee bows as they began the second circuit of the 18 miles triangle. The fourth leg, as the first, was a beat to windward [illegible] miles.

Thebaud turned the 24-mile [illegible] at 1:39:01, followed by Bluenose at 1:50:45. This meant the Gloucester boat had gained an additional 5 minutes and 32 seconds on the invader.

It showed that the Thebaud was distinctly the better boat in windward work, as her 11 minutes 44 seconds lead was almost entirely gained on the two windward legs, the first and fouth six miles.

The fifth leg was another broad reached sailed with the wind over the port quarter of the schooner.

Enthusiastic spectators in every sort of boat, but largely fishermen, cheered on the contenders as they stood out on Course No. 1, with a six-mile leg down the eastern shore to be sailed first.

The Thebaud was booming along with rail down and scuppers awash, while the older and larger schooner from the Provinces rode the seas more easily.

At the start both schooners carried four lower sails, with main topsails, breaking out foretopsails just before crossing the line. The Bluenose also set her jib topsail.

A 14-knot easterly wind was blowing when the rival craft got away, and there was a heavy ground swell, an aftermath of last night's storm, which made conditions unpleasant for spectators on accompanying vessels.

The starting signal was sounded promptly at 10 o'clock, but the Thebaud did not cross the line until one minute and 40 seconds later, trailed by the Bluenose by a minute and 10 seconds.

The first of the races is a side feature of the American Legion's Boston convention and the official closing event of the Massachusetts tercentenary year.

Special trains and two destroyers from Boston this morning brought an influx of the Legionnaires from Boston and tonight they will be guests of the Gloucester Legion Post at a banquet in the State Armory to the crews of the two racing fishermen.

This race today is the first of a series off Gloucester supposedly for the Lipton cup alone, with a series in prospect off Halifax next week or the week following for the championship of the North Atlantic Fleet. Yet if the Thebaud wins this series it is difficult to see how she can be in any other position than that of defending champion when and if the series takes place at Halifax.

Capt. Angus Walters claims he brought the Bluenose down from Lunenburg purely for an exhibition series that would not affect the championship title, yet the big two-master from Nova Scotia port moved out to the starting line today in a new set of sail and with no winches below decks. It is difficult to determine in what manner she could be altered to increase her speed.

Capt. Ben Pine, skipper of a half dozen Gloucester racing fishermen, was at the wheel of the Thebaud when she went over the starting line off Dog Bar Breakwater this morning.

The American observer aboard the Bluenose today was H. J. Wise, of Pine Orchard, Ct., a personal friend of Capt. Pine. The Canadian observer on the Thebaud was Capt. Samuel Shaw, famous old Halifax skipper.

The lion's share of a purse of several thousand dollars, in addition to the Lipton cup, awaits the winning board.

News of Society Circles and Current Events Among Women's Clubs

Susan Brewer Will Make Bow at Dinner Dance

ONE OF THE IMPORTANT social events for the month will be the smart dinner-dance which Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Brewer of 292 Marlborough st. are giving at the Ritz-Carlton, on Friday evening, October 31, to present their daughter, Miss Susan Brewer. An older daughter, Miss Elsa, made her debut with last year's group and was quite a belle. She was also one of the leads in the Vincent Club show.

ANOTHER RECRUIT TO the ranks of business is handsome Mrs. Merrill Griswold of Chestnut st. A smart Dartmouth st. shop will have the pleasure of her attendance after the first of November. Mr. and Mrs. Griswold have been staying in Virginia for several weeks as guests of Mrs. T. Handasyd Cabot, Jr.

MISS ELOISE WELD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Weld, has decided to follow in her talented sister's footsteps and devote her time to artistic pursuits. She has enrolled in a prominent school of art to study drawing. Miss Sylvia, the other daughter, has been identified with the Surrey Players during the summer.

THE REV. GEORGE GRENVILLE MERRILL and Mrs. Merrill, with their daughter, Miss Marjory P. Merrill, will remain in Stockbridge until the first of November. They will sail for Europe and Naples on the Augustus soon after. In December, they will be joined by another daughter, Miss Natalie, and will spend Christmas in Nice, later taking a Mediterranean cruise.

Gretchen Bremer Makes Her Debut at Milton Club Dance

MR. AND MRS. CLIFTON L. BREMER of Milton and Cohasset presented their daughter, Miss Gretchen Bremer, at a dance at the Milton Club last evening. The young bud was very attractive in her nile green satin evening frock with tiny shoulder cape, and she received with her mother, who wore a lovely gown of metal cloth. Miss Barbara Bremer, a cousin, was also in green tulle.

OTHER SISTER DEBUTANTES who came to greet Miss Gretchen were Miss Alice Means, recently home from abroad, in corn color; Miss Elizabeth Harding, in pale blue satin; Miss Eleanor Rowe, in black taffeta; Miss Betty Pope, in white satin; Miss Fanny Homans, who was in a motor accident last week, looking none the worse, in white satin; Miss Elizabeth Wells, in blue satin; Sarah Palfrey, in red crepe; Brenda Cushing, in blue satin; Alice Burrage, in black, and Ellen deNormandie in white crepe embroidered in gold.

THE CLUB WAS BEAUTIFULLY decorated with flowers, which were sent to the debutante, and two suppers were served, quite an innovation and a very nice one, the first buffet for the older guests and another at one o'clock for the young folks.

MISS SALLY SPRAGUE HAS recently returned from Paris and looks very chic in her tomato red ensemble with matching hat. Another Parisian costume is one of grey tweed trimmed with astrakan worn by Carol Smith, who has been a year or so in France since her debut. She is a niece of Mr. Jacob Reece of New York. Miss Elizabeth Goodridge is very smart in her hourglass suit of black with caracul fur on the bottom of the jacket, small high collar of caracul and tight cuffs. Miss Goodridge has also recently returned from abroad.

Many Names Added to Patroness List for Benefit Lecture

MISS LOTTA A. CLARK IS the New England regional director of the Camp Fire Girls under whose auspices Capt. John Noel will lecture in Symphony Hall tomorrow at 8 p. m. Capt. Noel will show for the first time his colored motion pictures of "Kashmire and the Love Story of Taj Mahal." Additional patrons and patronesses for this unique entertainment are: Wilmot R. Evans, Mrs. G. B. Baker, Mr. Frank H. Beebe, Mrs. W. Rodman Peabody, Mrs. Guy Waring, Mrs. John E. Thayer, Mrs. George R. Fearing, Mrs. Horace S. Frazer, Mrs. Oakes Ames, Miss Gertrude W. Peabody, Mrs. George E. Cabot, Mrs. Samuel A. Elliot, Mrs. Henry Wilson Harris, Mrs. T. Morris Murray, Miss Sarah L. Guild, Mrs. Edward L. Kent, Mrs. William Batzell and Mrs. Howard Lewis Rogers.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES L. HARDING are giving a small dinner at the Ritz-Carlton for their niece, Miss Harriet Blake, on Dec. 10. Miss Blake was presented in the spring at the Dedham Polo Club.

MISS CHARLOTTE LYMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lyman of Beacon st., who figured in a motor accident last week, returned from the hospital today. Her injuries on the face were not serious, just surface cuts. This will be good news for her many friends and sister debutantes.

MRS. GEORGE VON L. MEYER and her daughter, Donna Julia Brambilla of Rome, Italy, are sailing from New York on the Vulcania for Mediterranean and Adriatic ports. Sailing on the same boat are Mrs. Edward Sturgis and Miss Josephine L. Sturgis of Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Wigglesworth and their daughters, Misses Susan and Martha.

MRS. GEORGE L. FOOTE of Chestnut st., Beacon Hill, has returned from abroad, where she journeyed to place her son, George Foote, Jr., in school in Switzerland.

MRS. RUSSEL BURRAGE and her daughters, Misses Katherine and Alice, are at the Weylin Hotel from Beverly Farms for a few days.

Dorchester Club Will Open Season on Next Tuesday

The first meeting of the season for the Dorchester Woman's Club takes place next Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse, Centre st., Mrs. Maurice G. Luce, president, announces. Mrs. Luce, who attended the General Federation biennial at Denver last June, will report on the convention, after which a reception to new and old members will be held.

The social entertainment committee of the club will have charge of the get-together hour which is to follow the regular business session and Mrs. Walter G. Snow as chairman of this committee, will have charge.

Know Your Y.W.C.A. Week Will Open October 19

By NANCY BREWSTER

"Know Your Y. W. C. A. Week" will be held throughout the state beginning Oct. 19. This is to stimulate interest in the activities of the Young Women's Christian Association and to acquaint the public with the "Y" achievements among the working girls.

Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike of the Boston "Y" board of directors is in general charge of the week's program and announces these dates of special "open house" festivities: Oct. 19 with the business girls as hostesses at 14 Clarendon st.; Oct. 22, with the girls' residence at 40 Berkeley st.; as the "at home" center; and Oct. 23 with the international institute at 190 Beacon st. as hostess.

At an informal luncheon of press representatives and publicity director of the Y. W. C. A., Miss Elizabeth E. Webber, at the Pioneer, the "Y" dining room, it was outlined that great attempts would be made throughout this special week to interest the general public of the state with "Y." work.

On Monday, October 20, a membership night will be sponsored, Miss Webber explained, and at this event, Dr. Boynton Morrill, as the guest of honor, will be the principal speaker.

The mothers of the children who attend the swimming classes of the health education department, will be entertained Saturday morning, October 28.

Thirteen Massachusetts associations will participate in this statewide project. Mrs. Thorndike will be assisted in the arrangements by these chairmen: Mrs. Robert G. Dodge, Boston; Mrs. Charles Allen Porter, Boston; Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin, Brookline; Mrs. Harold C. Stuart, Brookline; Mrs. John H. Harwood, Brookline; Mrs. W. C. Blackett, Chestnut Hill; Mrs. Gardner Washburn, Brookline; Mrs. Robert Appleton, Boston; Mrs. Walter B. Clifford, Boston, and Mrs. Howard P. Converse, Auburndale.

Dana Will Speak at Little Theater of Temple Israel

The season starts next Wednesday evening at the Temple Meeting House for the Little Theater of Temple Israel, Mrs. David Small, hostess, announces. Rabbi Harry Levi is the president of the group and will introduce Prof. Henry W. L. Dana of the English department at Harvard who will speak on "The Contribution of the Jew to the Drama." A program of songs will be given by Aidan Edmond with Mrs. Julia W. Rogers at the piano.

Secretary Offers Solution for U. S. Juvenile Problems

Too much overmothering and underfathering of children is the reason for the increase of juvenile problems in the country, Miss Marion Vaughan, extension secretary of the New England Home for Little Wanderers, told the members of the Canadian Club in session, speaking on "Problems of Childhood in Modern Society."

"The over solicitous mother who guards her children from facing the realities of the world in school and in the playground and the mother who boasts about her children depending upon her for decisions and confidence should be condemned rather than praised," Miss Vaughan continued.

She particularly stressed the need for the recognition of the community's responsibility in furnishing wholesome recreation, clubs, clinics and social resources where those children who seem "different" might be taken.

The best parents, she concluded, are those who train a child to get along without them, so that when they come to the years of maturity they can stand on their own feet without a sense of loss when the parental authority is withdrawn.

"A little less mothering in many cases would be a good thing and a little more fathering, in most cases, also a good thing, thus giving a child a chance to make mistakes and be assisted in the solution of his problems impartially by both mother and father," she said.

Legislative Program Feature of State Federation Hour

A legislative program will be given over the air at the next regular State Federation broadcast, Mrs. Leon E. White of Brookline, radio director of the Federation announces.

Next Thursday morning at 11:30 Mrs. Fred L. Pigeon, state chairman of legislation, will talk on "Legislative Preparation" from station WBZA. Ten minutes later the Reading Woman's Club trio, which includes M. Vivian Smith, Rebecca Ambrose, will interpret a group of musical selections.

Women Organists Meet Next Tuesday to Plan for Year

Women organists of the city will get together for the first time this season, next Tuesday, at the Copley Methodist Episcopal Church, at 10:30 a. m. Mrs. Mina del Castillo, president of the Women Organists' Club, will preside. The year's activities will be outlined.

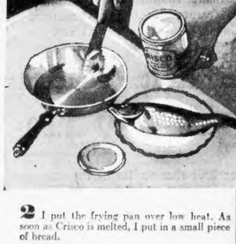
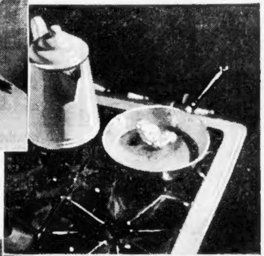
How I fry fish . . .
. . without smoke
[and with an improvement in the flavor]



1 I prepare the fish. Then I put Crisco into a cold frying pan. To cook the fish without smoke or scorching I fry slowly. I use enough Crisco to partly cover it. It does not require the constant attention frying would if I were to use only a little fat.



2 I put the frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted, I put in a small piece of bread.

3 As soon as the bread starts to brown, I put in the fish. Cook slowly until the fish is nearly done; then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the frying pan, I can turn the fish easily without breaking, if I wait until it is almost done.

4 I strain the Crisco back into the empty can through cheese-cloth or a fine sieve. Then I can use the Crisco for the next thing I want to fry. Crisco doesn't carry the flavor of one food to the next. Furthermore, Crisco itself tastes sweet and fresh, just as it comes from its air-tight can. And, when you come to think of it, should you ever fry in a fat you are unwilling to taste?

COOKING SCHOOL NOTE by Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross

In the cooking school I conducted under the auspices of the American last week, I stressed modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, I use and recommend CRISCO—for it's a modern shortening. Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross.

A new deal for today's dollar!

NASH

Announces

3 new EIGHTS and a new SIX

NEVER was such motor car quality offered at prices so sensationally low. The literally startling difference becomes at once apparent when you contrast the prices of the new and finer Nash series, with prices of corresponding models a year ago.

Coming at this time, these wholly remarkable values constitute an achievement of special import, not only to those who buy—but to those who manufacture motor cars, as well.

This unique example in value-giving was planned last November. At that time, C. W. Nash and the strong group of executives surrounding him, clearly foresaw present conditions. They at once began to design cars affording value so great, so unmistakable, as to overcome all buying reluctance.

The result is instantly apparent. Even casual inspection of the four new Nash cars establishes the fact that nothing even remotely approaching them in downright dollar value has ever been available in their respective price fields.

The low non-productive Nash overhead, the fact that Nash operates entirely without the heavy financial burden of borrowed capital, and the foresightedness of the Nash organization, alone enable Nash to offer so much for so little.

These three factors have combined to produce in these cars beauty and luxury and performance so notable, at prices so low by contrast, as to win for Nash a still larger place in the minds and the hearts of the motoring public.

Whatever style of car you desire, there is a Nash suited to your needs. Come in at once—drive one of these thrilling new cars—let us appraise your present car.

SENSATIONALLY PRICED!

STUDY THESE SENSATIONAL PRICES!

Compare what is probably the most remarkable achievement of Nash in greater value-giving—the New Six—with the Single Six it succeeds. The New Six offers a multitude of superiorities—at prices which range from $160 to $140 below the prices of the Single Six.

Body Style	The New Six W. B. 114¼"	Last Year's Six W. B. 114¼"	Price Difference
Sedan (4-door)	$845	~~$1005~~	—$160
Coupe	$795	~~$940~~	—$145
Coupe (rumble seat)	$825	~~$980~~	—$155
Sedan (2-door)	$795	~~$935~~	—$140

Compare the New Eight-70 with its two additional cylinders, its longer wheelbase, its larger, more luxurious body, with the six-cylinder car it replaces. Then consider the remarkable fact that there is actually a basic price differential in favor of the new Eight!

Body Style	The New Eight-70 W. B. 116¼"	Last Year's Six W. B. 114¼"	Price Difference
Sedan (4-door)	$995	~~$1005~~	—$10
Coupe	$945	~~$940~~	+$5
Coupe (rumble seat)	$975	~~$980~~	—$5
Special Sedan (4-door)	$955

Compare the New Twin-Ignition Eight-80 Series with the 6-cylinder car it replaces. The Eight-80 is larger, longer. Design, appointments, upholstery are finer—prices are radically lower.

Body Style	The New Twin-Ignition Eight-80 W. B. 121"	Last Year's Twin-Ignition Six W. B. 118"	Price Difference
Sedan (4-door)	$1295	~~$1415~~	—$120
Coupe	$1245	~~$1345~~	—$100
Coupe (rumble seat)	$1285	~~$1395~~	—$110
Town Sedan (4-door)	$1375

Compare the New Twin-Ignition Eight-90 Series, now with a 115 H. P. Engine, with the last year's 100 H. P. Eight. Body appointments are finer, upholstery more luxurious, and prices are far lower!

Body Style	The New Twin-Ignition Eight-90 W. B. 124"-133"	Last Year's Twin-Ignition Eight W. B. 124"-133"	Price Difference

LEGION URGES PAY RAISE FOR SERVICE MEN; ARMY OF 125,000

BODENHAMER KILLS DRY PLANK

Exodus of Delegates From City Underway as Convention Nears Close

contained references to the liquor law as the cause of "intolerable wrongs, ruthless killings and disrespect for law and order.

The defense recommendations contained in a report of C. B. Robbins of Cedar Rapids, Ia., chairman of the national defense committee, former assistant secretary of war and holder of the distinguished service cross, called for improvements in every branch of the service.

LARGE ARMY URGED

A standing army of 125,000 men and 12,000 officers, adequate pay raises for the army, navy, marine corps, coast guard and coast and geodetic survey were included in the report of the committee.

By acclaim and unanimously, the veterans accepted the report.

Strengthening of the naval forces strictly up to the limit allowed by the London naval treaty and condemnation of Washington lobbying against the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, were also in the report.

Organization of rifle and revolver clubs within the Legion and junior clubs of similar nature under the jurisdiction of its members were strongly recommended in the report.

The committee further asked government appropriations of $50,000 annually for aid in the promotion of rifle clubs and rifle contests with a national director of marksmanship to arrange for national and in ternational matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

One of the outstanding measures proposed was the appropriation by Congress of $1,000,000 for the acquisition of land for the extension of the military academy at West Point, N. Y.

A resolution proposed to the resolution committee called for immediate permission of the loan clause in the 20-year bonus certificates for veterans to draw 80 per cent of the face value instead of the 20 per cent allowed at present.

To further the resolve and insure the veteran of "his rights" the Michigan delegation proposed the discontinuance of the six per cent charge required on loans at present.

Many of the veterans maintained they paid 12 per cent for the loans, when the loss of 6 per cent on one side and the payment of an equal amount on the other was considered.

BAY STATE BACKS MOVE.

The 80 per cent resolution had a large following in the Massachusetts delegation, including Congressman William P. Connery of Lynn. Texas and Mississippi also urged its passage, through Wright Patterson and John Rankin.

Proponents argued that the move would place more than $2,000,000 in circulation and would aid greatly in the relief of the present depression.

The committee rejected the main resolution and a minority report was filed by John H. Burke of Medford, chairman of the national legislation committee.

After a spirited debate the minority report was laid on the table.

Michigan's resolution to drop the interest was accepted.

Education of war orphans brought an encouraging report from Gen. P. C. Harris, national director, in which he praised Massachusetts for its legislation in aid of the children.

The acceptance of the report was preceded by an attack on the committee by Joseph L. Fainer of Los Angeles, in which he charged the committee had "broken faith" with the public and had applied endowment funds to the administrative branch.

He was answered by J. S. Tyson of Mississippi, a committee member, and Joseph A. Drain, past commander of the Washington department. The report was immediately accepted.

The "Universal service of wartime" move was adopted by the body as part of the report of the Foreign Relations Committee. Equal service for all and special profits for none in every country was urged in the report and recommended dthat all organizations in Fidac, the organization embracing all veteran bodies of the Allies, seek legislation along the same lines in thei rcountries.

PRESENT COLORS

The last day of the convention was opened with impressive ceremony by Comander O. L. Bodenhamer, the schedule calling for a quick despatch of the business to enable early adjournment for the windup of the entertainment program of the convention, including the fishermen's races at Gloucester.

Presentation of courtesy colors to Glasgow, Scotland, post by the 6th district, Illinois department, opened the final day.

A musical program was followed by addresses of Col. Fred W. Abbot, past president of Fidac, and Col. John Brown, president of the British Legion.

With the adjournment of today's session, the impressive ceremony that passed the colors from the outgoing to the incoming commander, the national body relaxed to enjoy the entertainments arranged for tonight.

The exodus from the greatest convention ever will start then, but thousands will remain over for affairs arranged in their honor through tomorrow and Saturday.

Dual entertainment was provided at Gloucester with the fishermen's races and a real old-time clambake at Stage Fort Park. Tonight the convention will come to a grand climax with the banquet to national officers at Gloucester City Hall.

Legionnaires and their wives left Rowe's wharf in the morning for the fishing city, taking a sightseeing tour en route.

Middlesex Cubs Want Grid Games

Capt. John Griffin of the Middlesex Cubs football team of Cambridge is anxious to arrange games with 100-110-pound teams away from home. He may be reached on the telephone at University 10529.

DROPS DEAD AT BOAT RACE

Gluocester, Oct. 9—Heart failure induced by excitement while watching the Bluenose and the Gertrude L. Thebaud race today caused the death of Abram Duguo, 60, of 8 Maple st., who was viewing the race from theschooner Laurel Goulart.

He collapsed on the deck and was brought ashore immediately, but was dead when examined.

With thousands on hand to see the contest and the attendant ceremonies scheduled for this evening, 78 Gloucester and satte policemen were on duty in this city today.

A motorcycle detachment met Governor Frank G. Allen at Cut bridge, at the entrance to the city, at 11:45, and escorted him to the home of Col. J. W. Prentiss at Brace's Cove, Eastern Point. Col. Prentiss dined the Governor and other guests, and also "treated" all the police.

Congressman A. Piatt Andrew, who, like Col. Prentiss, is one of Gloucester's best known veterans of the World War, entertained a large number of Legionnaires at his home and afterward took them by boat to watch the race. Governor Allen saw the race from Eastern Point.

GLEASON HELD IN $21,000

John J. Gleason, former inmate of Concord Reformatory was held in $21,000 bail by Chief Justice Hall in superior court yesterday for trial tomorrow on indictments growing out of an auto crash Sept. 27 in which John F. Hurley, former Boston College track star was fatally injured.

Gleason, of the Concord Reformatory, who claims to be John F. McCabe of the Seamen's Home, pleaded not guilty to the indictments, which charged him with manslaughter, the larceny of an automobile, operating a motor vehicle so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public; operating an automobile without a license; and with having a pistol in a car under his control.

EARNSHAW HERO OF WORLD SERIES

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

'Tis All Over Now
Big Series Musings
Jimmy Dykes Saved
In Right, Not Wrong
New Shortstop King
Magnus Is His Name

Baseball, Requiescat in Pace, Until 1931

It is all over now, as the cat said when it expired for the ninth time. The Champions of the Universe flag is flying from the Philadelphia battlements. Gabby Street and his Cardinals are licking their wounds and applying the loser's and as a soothing balm. Boston fans now can sit back and consider the home teams once again and dream sweet dreams of Red Sox and Braves fighting it out in a world's series all our own next year. "Next year. Next year. Wait until you see the great ball team we will put on the field next year." Seems to us we have heard that somewhere, before? Heigho, 'Tis great to be breathed upon by Hope's perpetual breath, as the poetry feller says.

We were tickled silly when old Jimmy Dykes in the fourth inning of yesterday's game with Bishop on ahead lifted the old apple high and dry into the left field stands. That homer, a two - bagger and a pair of passes, was perfect batting and sort of keeps old Jimmy out of the In Wrong Club.

George Underwood

Up until yesterday it looked as if old Jimmy was the 1930 candidate for initiation into the In Wrong Clan. It looked as if Jimmy Dykes like Heine Zimmerman—we can still see Heine chasing Eddie Collins back and forth between third and home—Fred Merkle and Snodgrass, great ball players all, was going to be remembered for a world's series bone rather than for the all around stellar ball playing he has done for Connie Mack over a 13 year stretch.

Yes, Sir and M'am, old Jimmy has labored for Connie, man and boy, for 13 long years. He was a grand handy man for Connie, who at odd times put him in at first, second, third and shortstop, wherever he had a gap to fill. Jimmy Dykes won many a ball game for Connie, time and again thrilled Philadelphia fans with sensational catches, stops and throws, rapped out roaring drives that brought answering roars from Philadelphia fandom.

And yet up until yesterday's game it looked as if old Jimmy was destined for the Bonehead Club, and Philadelphia fans and baseball bugs in general were going to forget all those 13 years of stellar ball playing and remember old Jimmy Dykes for a little loose playing in the present series. As Stratford-on-Avon Bill once remarked:

The evil men do lives after after them,
The good is oft interred
with their bones.

So let it be with Carnera—or was it Caesar?

RAPPED ON DOOR

Yes, it certainly looked as if Jimmy was the leading candidate for the In Wrong Club, for in two successive games in St. Louis he gummed the works with bonehead ball. He figuratively rapped right on the door. Poor Jimmy suffered a mental lapse in the fourth game and left Hafey safe at third and Douthit on first on a play in which he had an easy out on either one of the runners. The next day Jimmy resurrected visions of the famous, or infamous, Zimmerman - Collins footrace by attempting to outleg the greyhound "Charlie" Gelbert—more of "Charlie" anon, as they say in the best sellers—and being left at the post.

Because of those two bones Zimmerman, Merkle and Snodgrass must have rushed right to the door of the In Wrong Club and prepared to welcome old Jimmy for initiation.

But no one was more glad than Heine and Fred and Snodgrass that old Jimmy smashed out that roaring homer yesterday and the Athletics took final game and series. They knew what it was to have a long and glorious baseball career sullied by one single, thoughtless, heedless moment. It is a queer twist in human nature that permits 13 years of stellar ball playing to be forgotten in the hysteria of one bonehead play. But only for that homer yesterday and the fact the Athletics won, just such a baseball tragedy would have happened to old Jimmy Dykes.

We don't know who fandom will crown the hero of the 1930 World Series. So many of the boys chipped in with the sensational and theatrical that it is hard to tell on just who fickle fandom will bestow its favor.

KING OF SHORTSTOPS

But among ball players themselves, managers, club owners most of the praise will be showered on "Charlie" Gelbert of the Cardinals. Baseball granted Gelbert was a good shortstop before the series. It took his sensational playing in all of the games of the big baseball classic to get baseball to hail him as a great shortstop.

When you can get a New York scribe or ball player to acknowledge someone is better than Travis Jackson, then you can bet your bonnet that player is "some" shortstop. When Philadelphia fans forget Joe Boley and hail young "Charlie" Gelbert as king of shortstops you can wager the honor well becomes him.

Throughout the series Gelbert thrilled the spectators with apparently impossible stops and throws. What an eye! What an arm! His pegs were with the speed and accuracy of a sharpshooter's bullet!

A great player is "Charlie" Gelbert and his best years should be in front of him. This is only his second year as a regular on the Cardinals. Apparently he is just striking his hitting gait. Shining in all departments of the game Gelbert is destined to blaze among the brightest of diamond luminaries and become one of baseball's immortals.

Whenever we have referred to "Charlie" Gelbert, we purposely have hung quotation marks around "Charlie." Why?

Because it turns out that "Charlie" Gelbert isn't "Charlie" at all.

Guess what his real name is? No, not Clarence, Percival or Archibald. Not even Abraham or Aloyisius.

MEET MAGNUS

School and college records show it is Magnus Ott Gelbert.

And why wasn't our hero proud of Magnus as a front handle? It sounds like that of an old Norse captain or a Viking warrior.

It seems that the boys absolutely refused to call him Magnus. At college Gilbert always was known as "Maggie" Gelbert.

Some of the boys from his hometown of Scranton, who attended the recent series were loud in their yells for "Maggie." When Gelbert's father was questioned about it he laughingly told how the home town boys used to get young Gelbert's goat by calling him "Maggie" and how his son, when he left Scranton to take up a baseball career quietly swiped his father's name of Charles.

Magnus, or "Maggie" or "Charlie" Gelbert, whichever you choose to call him—you can call him anything and it will not take away that he is one of the greatest shortstops of the game—apparently inherits his athletic ability.

His old man for three years starred at end on the University of Pennsylvania and earned

A'S WON SERIES ON 'WEAKNESS'

By JIMMIE FOXX
First Baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9—Because of a pronounced weakness, we are for the second year in succession baseball champions of the world.

This "weakness" was our inability to hit singles. Instead, we insisted on hitting doubles, triples, and home runs.

This long distance hitting, coupled with the magnificent pitching of Grove and Earnshaw throughout the series, gave us the championship by a comfortable margin.

To my mind the world's series proved these things:

1—The long distance hitting era is here to stay—by that I mean it is probable that we will have no more light hitting championship teams like the old White Sox of the days of Ed. Walsh and Nick Altrock.

2—There is a wider difference between great pitchers like Grove, Earnshaw, Hallahan and Grimes, and the average big league pitcher, than most fans realize. Managers realize this, with the result that more attention will be given to pitching than ever before. It is not unlikely that, speaking generally, pitching will greatly improve in the next decade, just as hitting has improved in the past ten years. Babe Ruth inspired long distance hitting. Pitchers like Grove and Earnshaw will improve pitching generally.

The series will go down in history as one of the hardest ever fought. Two games behind, the Cards evened the series and were fighting desperately for the odd game when I socked one into the bleachers. I haven't been playing so many years, but naturally I got a greater thrill out of that blow than any other I ever made.

The Cardinals are a game ball club, with unusual all-round strength, and I am sure that if we meet them in the World Series again next year there will be lots more drama to thrill the millions of fans.

Newton Man Builds Miniature Links

Joseph B. Eldridge of 44 Ellison rd., Newton Center, has won fame in his neighborhood as an amateur builder of a miniature golf course. Eldridge constructed a nine hole course in his yard, not as a business venture but merely to give his family and friends some fun.

The course turned out even better than its builder had hoped and folks who have played on the layout state that it is one of the sportiest they have tried. While Eldridge does not intend to construct more courses, the success of his venture proves that anyone with time and planning, can construct an interesting miniature golf course.

Richards, Kozeluh Reach Hub Today

Vincent Richards and Karel Kozeluh, top-flight tennis professionals of the world, have notified George V. Brown, manager of the Boston Arena, that they will arrive in Boston today to supervise the laying of the composition court over the floor of the Arena for their exhibition tennis match, Saturday night.

This match will, in a sense, be a play-off of an existing 1930 tie between the two racquetters. Richards has won twice from the Czech star on grass courts. Kozeluh has taken his two victories in matches on clay.

Providence College Star Is Badly Hurt

Providence, Oct. 9—Co-Capt. McGovern of Providence College, who was seriously injured in the Holy Cross game, having received a fractured vertebra, a wound similar to that received by Al Marsters, Dartmouth star, a year ago, will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

Dexter Davis, 200-pound end from East Providence, featured the practice today, showing exceptional ability at kicking. The former Kents Hill star got away some boots of better than 60 yards, and as a result will be groomed for the work for the coming games.

FAILURE TO HIT FATAL TO CARDS

By JIM BOTTOMLEY
First Baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

Shibe Park, Oct. 9—I was wrong.

Two pitchers ARE enough to win a World Series.

Grove and Earnshaw must have arms of steel to have held the Cardinals in check over a six-game series. I thought the A's would have to have three winning pitchers, and so did everyone else.

The A's upset the dope and upset the Cardinals, too. Offhand, I would say that it was a five-man team that beat us—Grove, Earnshaw, Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx.

The Athletics played great ball—defeated us fairly in a series packed with thrills, and we have no excuses.

We fought hard all the way and I can honestly say that there was not a moment until today that I did not think we would eventually win out.

I personally must take considerable blame for our defeat.

I was a bust as far as hitting goes.

There were several times in the earlier games of the series that I might have converted defeat into victory if I could have caught one on the nose, and smacked it safely.

But I couldn't, so that is all there was to that.

There seems little use in reviewing the series. We had a fine chance to win the first game, also the fifth, but in each case we faltered at the crucial point and victory, which seemed near, slipped away.

All we had to do to win the series was to hit at the same gait we did during the regular season.

But we didn't.

I still believe the Cardinals are a great nine-man team. Adams, Gelbert and Frisch made some of the most sensational fielding plays ever seen on any ball field. Hallahan, Haines and Grimes pitched some great ball, but it was ever greater pitching that opposed us, so I guess the only consolation we have is to wait until next year and hope that the same teams meet again in the World Series.

Fans Can Smoke at Arena Hereafter

Matchmaker Eddie Mack announced today that he has lifted the "No Smoking" ban at the Arena for the 10-round bout between Jack Gagnon and Con O'Kelley which will be staged a week from next Tuesday night.

Mack experimented with a "No Smoking" rule at the recent Gagnon-Friedman go, but found that it wasn't popular with the fans. So hereafter at Argonne shows the fans may have their smokes with their fights.

The Boston Garden has always allowed smoking at its shows. In New York the commission bans smoking at all boxing shows.

Primo Sails Saturday

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight, who lost only one of his 23 fights in this country, is slated to sail for Italy Saturday. Carnera lost the decision to Jimmy Maloney of Boston in his last American ring appearance.

A'S HURLER MADE VICTORY CERTAIN BY MASTERFUL WORK ON MOUND

By JOE CASHMAN

Philadelphia, Oct. 9—The World Series is over and Philadelphians are celebrating the winning of the championship for the second successive season by their Athletics today, thanks to one George Earnshaw.

Not since the immortal Christy Mathewson pitched three shutout victories for the New York Giants over the Mackmen away back in 1905 has such great pitching as the big Swarthmore alumnus displayed in this series been seen.

Joe Cashman

When he went to bat in the eighth inning of the final game after having pitched 22 consecutive scoreless innings in the classic, some 30,000 fans jumped to their feet and cheered him for a full minute.

They were paying tribute to the outstanding hero of the 1930 classic and though they may not have realized it to the greatest pitcher in the game since the retirement of Walter Johnson, and one of the five or six greatest hurlers ever.

Earnshaw was almost the entire Athletics team from the second game of the series to the finish. He is credited with only two victories, but actually deserved three.

He started in the second game and scored an easy 6 to 1 triumph. He allowed only six hits, fanned eight and was scored on only in the second frame.

He came back in the all-important fifth game in St. Louis on Monday after the Cards had evened up the series by winning two games in a row, and while Burleigh Grimes was blanking his mates for seven innings, he held the Streetmen scoreless and allowed only two hits.

Earnshaw Hurls Near-Perfect Game

He could have won that game without any trouble but Connie Mack removed him for a pinch hitter in the eighth and "Lefty" Grove finished up and received credit for the triumph.

Grove was expected to pitch the sixth game, having hurled only two innings since Sunday, but the southpaw's arm didn't feel just right and Earnshaw had to accept the assignment and step to the mound for the second time in three days.

It stands to reason that he was very tired, but he walked out and turned in an almost perfect pitching performance.

Up to the eighth inning, he pitched scoreless ball. He gave only three scattered hits, allowed but one base on balls, fanned six and didn't let an enemy player reach third base.

In the ninth, with a seven run lead, he let up just a bit and the Cards put over a run on a single, a double and two bases on balls.

Grove was the A's outstanding hurler all season, but Earnshaw gained all the glory and saved the team in the series. Without him, all Groves in the world wouldn't have saved the Macks from defeat.

Grove did not shine. He was hit hard, and was very fortunate to win the first game, and he was beaten in the third contest. He was fair, but that's all, in the two innings he toiled on Monday.

The Cards never had a chance in the final game after Hallahan was removed for a pinch hitter in the third.

Johnson and Lindsey, who finished up, were great in the second game, but they showed very little yesterday.

Removal of Hallahan a Big Surprise

It will always be a mystery why Hallahan was taken out so soon. True, he was found for two runs in the first inning, and that was enough to give the A's the game, but the little southpaw was himself in the second frame and, had he been kept in the box, Earnshaw might have had his troubles winning, for he would have had to bear down every inch of the way.

Some claim that Hallahan hurt his hand. We don't think so. He didn't field a ball while he was on the hill and no drives came his way.

What Street probably figured was that Earnshaw, with a two-run lead, would be almost impossible to beat, and that if a miracle hap-

Return of Dixon Boosts Eagles' Hopes Against Fordham

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

B. C. FACING BIG TEST OF SEASON

Capt. John Dixon, Boston College's All-American left end, is sure to start that game with Fordham. The Fordham game is probably the hardest contest on the whole schedule. But with Dixon back in shape, the Boston College mentors are relieved of a great deal of worry.

Dixon is not only a great end but he also constitutes a large part of the Eagle offence. In the Marine game, the Eagles were crippled by the absence of their giant captain. And although it is true that they scored once by the air route, the famous forward passing attack was practically nil for the best part of the day.

Though George Colbert, first string quarter is limping about with the use of a cane, he will be in uniform today and is practically sure of starting Monday. Coopie will be sorely needed for he is the best passer on the Eagle squad.

The other regular signal caller, Billy Boehner, is also on the injured list with a twisted elbow that he received when one of the Marine tacklers tried to take his arm home for a souvenir of the Legion convention. But Billy, too, will be ready for duty Monday.

B. C. Faces Strong Foe in Fordham Game

McKenney is giving his line plenty of work this week. He was more than gratified at the manner in which the forward wall conducted itself against the Marines. But he realizes that the Rams, under the cunning of Maj. Frank Cavanaugh, have perhaps the strongest line in the whole East.

As well as the Eagles played in their last game they will have to go over their own heads to beat the Rams. The New York team has lost only two men from last year's undefeated eleven. And this fall they are reputed to be even faster and more powerful than before.

Latin-B. C. H. Meet Tomorrow at Fenway

The big affair of the schoolboy football schedule for this week is on tomorrow afternoon at Fenway Park, when Boston Latin plays Art McManus' Boston College high eleven at Fenway Park. With many Legionnaires who attended the convention still in town, on eof the best crowds of the year is expected for the school feature.

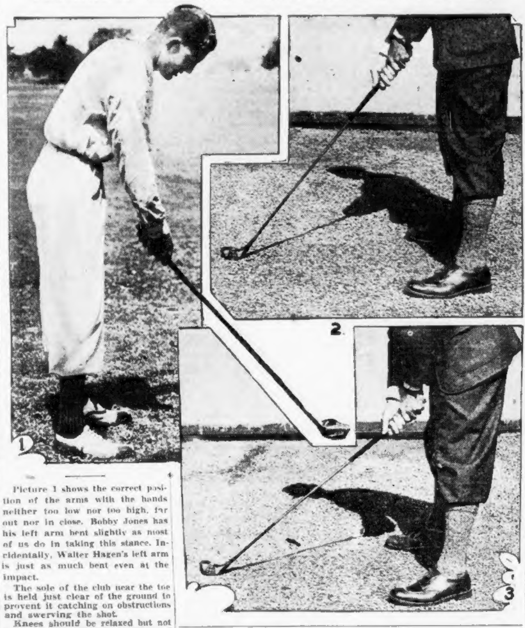
Jim Brown, a sophomore, is a new member of the B. C. H. backfield. He weighs 150 pounds and has shown a lot of ability in recent workouts. Tom Bilodeau and Paul Wilson, a couple of Latin linemen, may get a chance in the backfield tomorrow against the Eaglets.

B. C. high defeated a strong Boston English high tea mat Fenway last week, and hopes to win again tomorrow.

Horton Smith's Golf Lessons

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

POSITION OF ARMS AND HANDS QUITE IMPORTANT



Picture 1 shows the correct position of the arms with the hands neither too low nor too high, far out nor in close. Bobby Jones has his left arm bent slightly as most of us do in taking this stance. Incidentally, Walter Hagen's left arm is just as much bent even at the impact.

The sole of the club near the toe is held just clear of the ground to provent it catching on obstructions and swerving the shot.

Knees should be relaxed but not bent. The back is rounded and must be kept so until the end of the follow-through. But don't, above all, stand like a weary old cab-horse.

Picture 2 depicts the way most beginners start, as demonstrated by John Duncan Dunn, who teaches experts as well as beginners. The latter seem to think there must be an unbroken line from the shoulder to the head of the club. It won't work that way; furthermore, a straight line posture upsets the lie of the club.

The clubhead in the picture is soled too much under the toe. Furthermore, straight arms lead to rigidity throughout the whole body and prevent the necessary rounded back.

After being criticized for having your hands too high in the address position, Picture 3 indicates what an over-correction looks like. An over-correction is usually worse than the original fault because the latter was natural to you or at least you thought so.

The club head is now so cocked up that you would have to hit with the heel to connect with the ball. Bending over as much as this would make you rise up during the stroke and that sort of elevation ruins your shot, you can be sure.

EVERETT HIGH FACES HARD SCHEDULE

By BILL CONNELL

Everett high school has a strong football team this fall. The squad is large, veterans are delivering and the subs are developing nicely.

The coaching staff, headed by Denny Gildea, is very good. Yet Everett will be fortunate if it emerges without a defeat from the tough stretch of games ahead.

Bill Connell

Next week the eleven plays two of its most important Suburban League games, facing Newton on Monday and Brookline on Saturday. With a big, heavy team, Newton will come to Everett prepared to make it a fight to the final whistle.

But five days after that Everett goes to Brookline which team shapes up as one of the best in the league. A full week separates the Brookline and Chelsea games on the Everett schedule.

Somerville comes to Everett one week after Chelsea, and the next game, with Malden traveling to Everett, is nine days later, on Armistice Day, a Monday. Malden has one of the outstanding elevens of the season and will give Everett stiff opposition.

But in the same week, five days further along, Bill Broderick's snappy Salem team, with a great backfield and good line, invades the Everett stadium.

Everett Must Face Two Hard Foes

Those last two games, so close together, constitute one of the hardest weeks of football that any school team could face.

Everett winds up this unique slate when Proviso high of Chicago comes to Everett on Saturday, November 22, and then the Cambridge Latin group entertains Everett at Cambridge on Thanksgiving.

Schoolboys in Twin Bill on Holiday

John P. Curley, graduate manager of athletics at Boston College, today announced that he had agreed to the request of Fred J. O'Brien of the department of physical education of Boston that a Hub school football doubleheader be played Monday morning at University Heights. English will meet Trade and Mechanics Arts battle Dorchester in the twin bill.

The games originally were slated for Braves Field, but repairs on the Wigwam playing surface necessitated the cancellation of the holiday program.

LEGIONNAIRE GOLFERS AT WOLLASTON

One hundred and two legionnaires played at Wollaston for the opening day of the first annual legion golf tournament. With fair weather today, the field should be doubled and make the golfing innovation for the legion a real success and insure its annual repetition.

Dr. Owen Keefe of Watertown, former Tufts all-round athlete, shot a 77 to take the gross leadership in the whole tourney for the opening day. Walter Doyle of Perkins Post and the home club was the only other in the field to break 80 when he posted a 79. Oddly enough, both the leaders were slated in the second division, handicaps 9 to 16, but they outlasted the small entry list in the top class.

In the low division of handicaps, scratch to 8, John McDonald of Wareham, a 40 and 8er, tied with Harold Nute of Manchester for the low gross leadership at an even 80. Perry Glover of Reading Post was the low net leader with a gross 81 and a net of 74, aided by an eagle 2 at the 300-yard fourth hole.

Keefe and Doyle ruled the gross prize-seekers in the second division, but Frank Garrittу, genial New Haven visitor, produced an 80 gross, and his resultant 65 net tied Dr. Keefe for the reduced honors.

Punts and Fumbles

By BILL GRIMES

For a couple of years, rumors have been current that the Army and Navy would resume football relations, as soon as Jonas Ingram was relieved of athletic director's duties at Annapolis. Ingram is out but there is no chance of the two academies getting together for Knute Rockne has tied up West Point to a five-year contract, which stipulates that the Notre Dame game will be the windup contest on the Army's schedule.

All anyone has to do, who is laboring under the misapprehension that there is no politics in the appointing of football officials, is to scan the appointments tendered Jonas Ingram, a newcomer to the officiating game. Ingram drew some of the choicest assignments and is reaping a harvest his first year out.

One slip made by Walter Okeson was the appointing of Ingram to officiate at West Point in the opening game. The Kaydets hold Ingram responsible, to a major extent, for the break between West Point and Annapolis and he was the recipient of the w. k. Bronx cheer, when he appeared at Michie Stadium.

In all probability, Villanova is all washed up on informal scrimmages with Princeton. A week ago yesterday, Harry Stuhldreher took his Villanova squad to Princeton for what was advertised as an informal scrimmage, but which developed into a free-for-all fight, with the Irish boys on the receiving end of most of the punishment. On Saturday, Villanova lost to Gettysburg.

Speaking of Villanova brings to mind that the Sesqui-Centennial Field in Philadelphia, where the Boston College-Villanova game is scheduled to be played, is in wretched condition due to the recent rodeo. The playing field is all cut up and filled with deep holes, according to the Quantico Marines, who played there last Saturday night. Joe McKenney received word from Villanova that the field was in perfect condition but he is now demanding a check-up on the real condition.

Frank Keaney, the Rhode Island State coach, is all fed up on the State of Maine brand of football officiating. He claims that every year the best he gets in Maine is the worst of it and he will not show in the Pine Tree State again unless out of state officials are in charge of the game.

Boston University is making a step in the right direction if the authorities vote favorably on the playing of night football.

Sid Foster is coming into his own as a running and passing back at Bowdoin under Charlie Bowser. Foster had the ability to be developed into a stand out back when he marticulated at Bowdoin but for some reason his advancement was retarded until Bowser put in an appearance at Brunswick.

all-American honors. Pa Gelbert was a star baseball player as well and played semi-professional baseball for Scranton after graduating and before he became so busy in his profession of veterinary surgeon that he had to give up the diamond sport.

The real Charles Gelbert now is a veterinary surgeon at Ambler, Pa., not far, as the crow flies, from where he made football history for the Red and Blue on Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Breaking Records!

On Monday and Tuesday of this week, the days on which the major events of the American Legion Convention were held, the Boston Elevated Railway established new records.

On these two days a total of 2,780,000 passengers were carried. This number is far greater than for any other two consecutive days in the 34 years of the Elevated's history.

The Railway carried 1,470,000 passengers on Legion Parade Day. This was the greatest number of passengers ever carried on a holiday or parade day and is the largest transported on any day in the Elevated's history with one exception.

Of the 2,780,000 riders carried on Monday and Tuesday only 14 claimed to have received any injury whatsoever and these 14 injuries were of a trivial character.

Service on these two days was maintained with a high degree of regularity.

This record of achievement on the most exacting days in Boston's history speaks for itself.

The Boston Elevated Railway wishes to express its appreciation for the fine spirit of co-operation shown by the Boston Police Department, Legionnaires, the general public and its own employees.

"Insuring Against Unemployment"
—by Owen D. Young

Owen D. Young, captain of industry and Chairman of the General Electric Company

The plan for insurance against unemployment recently initiated by the General Electric Company is carefully explained in next Sunday March of Events of the Boston Sunday Advertiser in an interview with Mr. Young. This plan, though not a philanthropic experiment, is aimed to meet the three major requirements of the worker: a high wage, security of employment and support for years of retirement. This plan is the result of many years of study and is one which involves the whole range of relationship between a business and its employees, and is of interest to every worker and employer today. Few Harvard Regulars in Shape for Springfield Tilt

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

TALBOT BACK ON INJURED LIST

Harvard's hopes for an unbeaten season received another serious setback today when it was learned that George Talbot, first string Crimson guard, will be out of the Harvard lineup against Springfield and possibly West Point.

Talbot returned to practice after more than two weeks on the injured list only to receive another bump which is expected to keep him out of the running for another fortnight.

The absence of Talbot, Kates, Myerson, Mays and White leaves Horween with virtually half his varsity first team. In addition Bob Faxon, who up to now has been Horween's first choice as a relief tackle has been ordered out of football for three weeks. Faxon has serious injuries which will be long in healing.

Rarely in the history of Harvard football has a Crimson varsity eleven been so ill-starred. Injury, together with the fact that the Harvard B eleven has not come up to standard, upsets the prediction that the Cantabs would go through their schedule unscathed.

Late Start in Practice Claimed for Injuries

Horween blames Harvard's late start for the many injuries to his players. According to college rules, Harvard can begin football practice no earlier than Sept. 15. Because of this the Harvard coaches must rush their charges to the limit in order to whip them into shape.

Horween has complained frequently of the [illegible] his players [illegible] this year [illegible] the present [illegible]. The Crimson coach has decided that Harvard should start training no later than Labor Day.

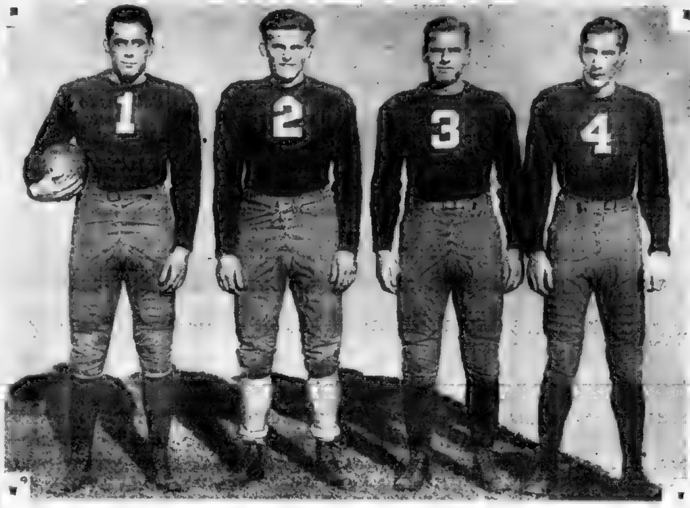
Coach Art French's freshman aggregation battled Horween's present A and B teams to a standstill in a two-hour scrimmage at the Stadium yesterday.

In a fierce melee that sent Talbot and Faxon to the showers, the yearlings held Varsity to 14 to 0. The Cantab regulars were twice held for downs 20 yards from the freshman goal stripe, while the Freshmen rolled over the varsity to within five yards of a score.

The presence of Red Record in the Harvard A backfield is being watched with interest by Harvard fans. Record takes the place of Eddie Mays, and from coaches' reports is doing a fine job at left half.

Record will probably start in the Harvard A backfield against Springfield, unless Eddie Mays is right by next week, Record will get his chance against Jasse's Cadets.

LOCAL BOY LEADS PENN'S POWERFUL TEAM



DICK GENTLE WALTER MASTERS CHARLES GREEN WARREN GETTE

THIS NIFTY LOOKING FOURSOME will romp on the gridiron for Pennsylvania this season. Number one lad is a local boy, Dick Gentle of Brookline, who won fame for himself a year ago with a 95-yard run. Dick captains the Red and Blue. His mates are Walter Masters, Charles Green and Warren Gette. It certainly makes a good looking quartet in a picture with the four ball-carriers being well-built and all of the same stature. Virginia will find out on Saturday when it meets Penn.

CONNIE MACK AT B. B. MEETING

Cleveland, Oct. 9 (AP)—Minor league officials assembled here today to organize their ranks for battle with the major leagues on the draft problem, but as far as the public was concerned it seemed that the venerable Connie Mack would steal the show.

Mack, jubilant over the triumph of his world champion Philadelphia Athletics, was due here today with the advance guard of the major leaguers, and it was understood arrangements were being made for him to talk over a local radio station.

Representatives of the three Class AA Leagues, the American Association, the Pacific and International Leagues, by tomorrow will have prepared their answer to the boycott threatened by the majors unless they submit to some form of universal draft. They will confer with the major league officials tomorrow or Saturday.

The three Class AA Leagues at Chicago recently declared themselves firmly intrenched against any manner of draft.

The meetings also are expected to produce numerous promotions of minor league stars to the big time.

Hogan's Assailant in Court Tomorrow

New York, Oct. 9 (INS)—Accused of beating Francis Hogan, New York Giants' catcher, Joseph Kink, Negro elevator operator, will be in court tomorrow to face a felonious assault charge. Hogan claimed Kink beat him with a baseball bat and slashed him with a knife because Hogan objected when Kink was invited to take a drink at a party Hogan was attending.

The catcher was in a hospital today but his condition was reported as not serious.

Ruth and Gehrig to Play in Providence

New York, Oct. 9 (INS)—Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees will open a barnstorming tour Saturday in Providence. They will play in Newark, N. J. Sunday and on Monday in Brooklyn, appearing in each engagement with local or all-star teams.

FANS FOLLOW GENTLE'S WORK

A surprising number of calls, inquiring as to the success of the University of Pennsylvania football team, were received in this office last Saturday. And, during the week, intermittent phone bells have rung with requests as to the University of Pennsylvania's opponent for the coming week-end.

The reason for this buzzing of the telephone is Dick Gentle, popular Brookline boy, who captains the U. of P. football team.

People are watching his work with interest and he has a number of friends out in the wealthy town who can't just wait until the football game is over to find out what Dick has done.

Penn, under the coaching of Lud Wray and the leadership of Gentle, is expected to enjoy a big season. They will be put to a real test on Saturday by the University of Virginia. Gentle directs a strong backfield composed of Gette, Green, Masters and himself, and the ball carriers are afforded a powerful frontier that bids fair to make many opponents bite the dust this season.

Gentle made one of the longest runs in football history last year when he took a kick-off and scampered 102 yards for a touchdown against a bitter foe, Cornell.

That brought him into the limelight. This season he'll be closely watched. If he makes good he'll be an All-American. And his Brookline buddies are hoping so.

Wesleyan to Play Columbia Saturday

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 9 (INS)—Wesleyan University will keep its appointment for a football game with Columbia at New York next Saturday afternoon, despite infantile paralysis.

"Wesleyan teams have always been and are ready now to play at any time," says Dr. Edgar Fauver, head of the physical education department here, in meeting rumors there would be no game with Columbia.

Fittons Meet Trojans and Abington Teams

On Sunday the Fitton A. C. will face the strong Quincy Trojans at Fort Banks, Winthrop, and on Monday, the holiday, the Fittons will make their annual pilgrimage to Abington, where they will play the Old Town team in the afternoon.

In anticipation of these games, the Fitton management has signed up Tommy Gilligan of Harvard fame, who will be seen in the Fitton backfield for the balance of the season.

Dilboy Eleven Play Roche Club Sunday

The Dilboy Post 11 of Somerville meet another tough battle, when they face the Roche Club football team Sunday afternoon at Dilboy field, Somerville.

Dilboy, by defeating the University A. A. last Sunday, will enter the game a favorite to win, but the host of Everett fans believe their club will win out.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston was still broadcasting about Jim Maloney when he stepped into the sporting department today.

"The Carnera bout was the high spot of Shamus' ring career," said the veteran. "He looked the part of a great fighter from gong to gong. It was a hard, close battle but what edge there was in the tussle was in Jim's favor. He landed the cleaner and harder blows, also displayed the better ring generalship.

Jack Conway

"Primo is big, strong and aggressive. And how he takes a punch. Experience will polish Carnera off. It will teach him how to punch more effectively and also school him so that he won't be so wide open to a left hand attack. Give Carnera a dozen fights such as he had with Maloney and he won't have to ask for odds from anybody. But as Leon See, manager of Carnera, says, 'Primo is still far from being a finished ring prospect and needs plenty of fights.'

"I liked the Maloney of the Carnera battle. He was dashing in his attack and brilliant in his defense. After he took a couple of Primo's punches on the jaw in the first round, he felt the Italian could not knock him out.

"When Shamus drove left hooks to the head and body in the fourth frame, he found himself completely. I could tell by the look in his honest Irish eyes that he was sure he was going to come through with a victory.

Glorious Surge by Maloney in Seventh

"The glorious Maloney surge in the seventh frame was the convincer.

"The Maloney victory was more brilliant than the one he scored over Jack Delaney in New York. Delaney, due to an injured right arm, was not in condition to fight, but he was smart enough to toss a wet blanket on Maloney's dynamite. Delaney knew all the tricks of defensive boxing and made it difficult for Shamus to send his heavy punches crashing to their mark.

"Carnera, with only a background of two years of boxing, naturally lacks the skill possessed by Delaney. He was easier to hit, especially as he lunged forward bent on destruction.

Maloney Perfectly Trained for Primo

"Jere Gardner, Dan Carroll and Honeyboy Finnegan are entitled to much credit for the splendid condition Maloney was in for Primo. Jim weighed 195 pounds and looked the part of the perfect athlete. He was fast and strong. He also had an abundance of endurance which stood by him in the closing rounds when Carnera made a wild bid for victory.

"When weighing 200 or more pounds, Maloney is slow and sluggish. Extra weight slows him down mentally as well as physically.

"The perfectly conditioned man always thinks quicker and better than the one who has grown weary carrying around big rolls of useless fat.

Johnny Brassill Handled Big Fellows Well

"I also liked the way Johnny Brassill conducted himself as referee. He did not make a single mistake and was at all times master of the situation. He kept the big fellows from doing any wrestling or clinching and in this way helped towards producing action.

"I have always considered Brassill one of the most capable referees in the country. His work in the Maloney-Carnera mill proved he has not any superior as a referee.

"The average big New York fights usually find the referee making some kind of a blunder.

"Frank Bruen, General Manager of the New York Garden, told this writer that he considers Brassill one of the most efficient referees in the business. Bruen was particularly impressed by Brassill's refusal to go in for mere stage play. Johnny stuck to his job and the fans got action for their money.

Stirring Bout Tonic to the Boxing Game

"The action in the Garden bout is certain to help the boxing game here. Maj. O'Keefe and his associates in the Garden will reap future dividends as a result of the fine bout furnished by Shamus and Primo.

"The stirring battle was staged at a time when the ring game needed assistance. As Shamus and Primo drove forth with terrific punches, they tipped over the 'in the bag' boys and those pessimists who believed the bottom had fallen out of the fight game.

"Maloney and Carnera each proved they were first class fighters. Now let the other fistic warriors carry on from the heights where Shamus and Primo left the local fistic situation."

Ruth and Gehrig to Play at Providence

New York, Oct. 9—Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig will make their first barnstorming appearance in an exhibition game in Providence, R. I., on Saturday.

B. U. PLANS TO PLAY NIGHT FOOTBALL

Boston University will be the first large eastern university to play night football if the plan suggested by George V. Brown, athletic director of the school, is accepted by the athletic council.

The Terriers, unable to compete with other grid attractions because of its lack of outstanding material, cannot put football on a paying basis.

Night football, however, would leave the field clear and it is expected that the Council will give the plan a tryout.

It would be passed immediately if the cost of installation was not so great, but the expense of lighting the field with the low athletic treasury at Boston University, is making the authorities think the matter over.

Pierce Best of Greenskeepers

E. D. Pierce of Kittansett won first net prize in the monthly tournament of the Massachusetts [illegible] Association at Brae Burn, scoring a 92 which reduced to 77.

Herb Swanson of Bear Hill and R. Peckham of Sachusett tied for gross honors, each carding an 87. J. Fitzpatrick of Scituate had 88, for third position.

Jim Sullivan won the prize for men over 50 while P. W. Chase won the guests tournament.

EARNSHAW IS SERIES HERO

pened and the Cards did win, he would have Hallahan to work in the seventh game.

The A's were quite lucky to score so many runs in the final game, just as they were in the opener. They made only seven hits but all were for extra bases and each was made to manufacture a tally. In the first game, they made five runs on five extra base hits.

That's getting the breaks, and these breaks coupled with Earnshaw's pitching gave the Macks the title in six games, as we predicted before the series started.

Series Was Succession of Pitching Duels

It was a pitching rather than a hitting series, the first since the advent of the so-called lively ball.

In only one game did either team's total of hits reach double figures. That was in the third, in which the Cards came through with 10 bingles.

The A's best was seven safeties in the second and third and final games.

The best nine inning pitching performance was turned in by Jess Haines, who allowed but four singles. Only one of those went past the infield and one should have been scored as an error by Frisch.

Hallahan hurled a seven hit shutout in the third game and Earnshaw and Grove between them blanked the Cards with three hits in the fifth game.

Burleigh Grimes pitched two five-hit games and lost both, which must be some kind of a record.

Frankie Frisch bettered Eddie Collins record of making 42 hits in World Series play by three, and Jim Bottomley failed by one to equal George Kelly's feat of fanning [illegible].

Loughran Anxious to Fight Stribling

Philadelphia, Oct. 9 (AP)—Tommy Loughran has accepted an offer to meet W. L. "Young" Stribling in a 10-round bout in St. Louis, November 14, at catch weights. Loughran's manager, Joe Smith, announced that he had forwarded the signed agreement to the management of the St. Louis Arena. Smith did not know whether Stribling had accepted the terms.

1930 Series Goes Down in History as a Classic

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1930, by [illegible]

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 9—Athletics, 7; Cardinals, 1.

When the whiskers are long and gray on the trembling chins of the baseball bugs of today, and the kids of tomorrow start talking about their great pitchers, we'll up and tell 'em of George Earnshaw.

We'll tell 'em how big George pitched the Philadelphia Athletics to three victories over the St. Louis Cardinals in the Worlds Series of 1930 although the goofey baseball rules officially allotted one of them to "Lefty" Grove.

Damon Runyon

We'll tell 'em how George whipped the National Leaguers by the score of 6 to 1 in the second game of the series in Philadelphia and stood 'em on their ears for seven innings in the fifth game down St. Louis way, holding 'em to two hits and no runs, only to see "Lefty" snag the credit for the 2 to 0 triumph on two innings of pitching.

Finally—and this will be the big punch of our story—we'll relate how big George got a shave and a haircut, and a few hours sleep, and then shambled out on the Cardinals in the sixth game in Philadelphia to bind 'em with his speed and curves, and closing up the series as the A's won 7 to 1.

Out of the six games played, the Cardinals won two, both in St. Louis. Perhaps the mightiest series right hander since the days of Christy Mathewson, called the "Old Master," Earnshaw had the Cardinals helpless in the final game.

As he shuffled up to the plate in the Athletics batting side of the eighth to hit a fly to Douthit, the crowd of nearly 32,000 began applauding, not with cheers but with hand-clapping that grew in volume until it took on the sound of a tremendous machine gun barrage. These Philadelphians are not particularly demonstrative, but they had to let out a few notches for Earnshaw.

He grinned sheepishly at the ovation and he tugged at the black peak of his cap by way of acknowledgement.

He was [illegible] in the ninth inning Andy High, who had taken Sparkey Adams place at third, singled. Earnshaw lost control and walked Watkins. Frank Frisch hit into a double play, Jimmy Foxx grabbing his liner, and stepping on first to efface Watkins.

Hafey doubled down the third base line scoring High. Jim Bottomley was [illegible] Down in left field. Lefty Grove who had been warming up intermittently throughout the afternoon waited and watched the field of play closely half expecting a summons to relieve Earnshaw. But Big George turned on the full strength of his thick right arm for Wilson, and he hit a high fly to Miller in right field for the final out.

As Miller came trotting in with the ball, the crowd was pouring out on the field, and some of them struggled with 'Bing' for the ball, but he wouldn't let go

LUIS REFUSES TO QUIT IN BRAZIL

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 9 (AP)—President Washington Luis of Brazil announced through a government spokesman this afternoon that he had no intention of resigning his office. Revolutionary leaders had addressed a request to him late yesterday to abdicate.

The official newspaper at Sao Paulo reported today that Bello Horizonte, capital of the State of Minas Geraes, had been bombed by Federal air forces again today and the rebel forces there were about to surrender.

The communication also said operations against the rebels in the State of Parana had been begun by the regular troops with five cavalry regiments of 500 men each being formed for the movement.

The Federals have re-established train service in Minas Geraes to Juiz De Fora by reconstructing the bridge over the river Parahybuna and retaken 125 miles of railway south of Bello Horizonte.

A dispatch from Porto Alegre said a wireless message intercepted by the Western [illegible] Revolutionaries had [illegible] the junction of the railway for Lorena cutting contact between federal troops from Rio Janeiro and government forces from San Paolo. Two destroyers which had been sent to bombard Rio Grande Do Sul are reported to have joined the revolution and two aviators who fled from Rio De Janeiro with their planes informed insurgent leaders all aviators there had been imprisoned and the aerial squadron at Natal had joined the rebel force.

SEA FLIER HOPS TO AUSTRALIA

Heston, Eng., Oct. 9 (AP)—Wing Commander Charles Kingsford Smith, Australian airman who has flown both Pacific and Atlantic oceans, left here today in a [illegible] plane on a one-man flight to Australia.

The Australian airman's machine had been loaded with so much fuel it was estimated she could fly 2000 miles without a stop. With long hops the airman had confidence he would be able to better the present England to Australia record made by Bert Hinkler in approximately 15 days.

Communist Plot in Los Angeles Probed

Los Angeles, Oct. 9 (AP)—Charges that dissemination of Communistic propaganda in Los Angeles high schools by students was intense and that more than 20[illegible] rifles are in Communist hands in Los Angeles foreshadowing a revolutionary attempt to be launched here November 24, were being considered today by a congressional committee investigating communistic activities.

The charge of Soviet activity in local schools was made yesterday by Thomas E[illegible]son, principal of Roosevelt high school. He said the work of young Communists had been evident for years and was on the increase.

Paris Will Have Mt. Vernon Replica

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Plans have been approved by President Hoover for the reproduction of Mount Vernon as the central building of the United States' group at the Paris Colonial Exposition in May, 1931. The room occupied by General Lafayette on visits to General Washington is to be reproduced in its original form.

Atterbury Resigns as Leader of G. O. P.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 9 (AP)—Resignation of Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, as Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania "because he cannot support all nominees of the Republican State committee," was announced today by Gen. Edward Martin, Republican State chairman.

Four Killed as Auto Crashes Into Truck

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 9 (AP)—Four persons were killed and one injured in an automobile accident six miles west of here today.

The four were in an auto which crashed head-on with a truck, the driver of which was injured.

Woman Defends Right to Be a Communist

Editor Boston American:

I am an American born in Boston, but [illegible] because I happen to think that Russia runs her government more efficiently than the grafting politicians of America who are supposed to be the servants of the people, is no reason why I should be shouted down as a "Red" and forced to leave the country.

In our Declaration of Independence it [illegible]:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal—that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their powers from the consent of the governed, that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it and to institute a new government, etc., etc.

From [illegible] the happiness they are entitled to from this government they have [illegible] to change it, and since we are supposed to have free speech and should not be obliged to get a permit to do so we should have the right to criticize our government without being sent to jail or deported.

It makes no difference how good some of us think our government is, there are millions who are dissatisfied with it. If these people want to form what they call the Communist party, because they think that the country would get a better break under their form of government, they should be given the same consideration as the Democratic and Republican parties.

Marriage Was Civil Contract in Early Boston

Editor Boston American:

Marriage is a civil contract now in Soviet Russia. So Dr. Robert Barrett, National President of the Florence Crittenton Mission [illegible]. He has [illegible].

We [illegible] in Boston in 16[illegible] in this city a clergyman was haled into court for solemnizing a marriage. Marriage by the Puritans was regarded as a civil contract only until late years.

This minister promised to desist from the "such evil and illegal practice." He, however, forgot his promise and had to take a Spanish leave of the Hub.

History repeats itself. Puritans regarded marriage as a civil contract. Now the Soviet Republic follows suit.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Because America is the most prosperous country in the world today we are bound to hear overseas remarks about it. They are calling Americans "money grabbers." We are the best kind of grabbers because while we grab we give, too.

"Grab and Give" is an American motto. Europe is beginning to accept now from the Rockefeller fund some of the grab. There are too many one-eyed critics who see only our faults, and it is hard to make them see how good we are even after they get our money. There are many things in this life that are better than money, but it takes money to get them. This is what America believes and this is what has made America.

N. M. KERRISON

Uncle Sam and the Panorama of Nations

Editor Boston American:

The picture of Uncle Sam looking at the picture of the nations and a king, "What shall I do?" reminded me to give a "roads" view upon the news of the time. Beginning with the State of Massachusetts celebrating its 300 years of existence. The American Legion and the Federation of Labor in convention in their presence all look as if Uncle Sam had found himself in a big heap of business that has to be attended to.

England in a questioning mood as to how to meet the demands of her various subjects. France with all her getting refuses friends and Russian trade. Italy: Down with France. Germany has to borrow from her creditors to pay her debt.

Austria doubting if she wants a king.

The Bulgarian King can marry the Italian princess with reservations by the Pope. Also the people. Rumania has King Carol but not his wife. China has killed two English missionaries, demolished American property, and has a civil war besides. Japan is about to ratify the arms treaty and is doing a lot of thinking. Russia is pounding at the front door and hearing a voice from within saying: "We will shoot our sons and our daughters too before we allow that ruffian to cross our threshold." So there.

Argentine has had a revolt. Cuba is asking for martial law during election in Mexico. The state is to take up the Protestant church.

To be sure they are not all lovely, handsome nor fair, and their communistic intercourse may shock, and rock the pulpit.

Their bootlegging and gang wars may be putting you on the spot, but keep them close to your bosom, Uncle Sam. That nondescript rag bag and freckle face has been known to beat the crowd.

Legion Convention Here Proved Fun for All

Editor Boston American:

What is the afterthought of the Boston convention of the American Legion? They all had a good time. The "gobs" without saying, [illegible] the Southern and Western Legionnaires have their ways of enjoying themselves. They are inventive as was manifested in the methods in which they devised fun and amusement for themselves and others. The Yanks have an individuality of their own, but are not so exuberant with weird pranks, freak antics, capers as were pounced upon us here in Boston.

The West and South have their own ways of making things [illegible] at conventions. They are incidental to the business of the conventions, but they are the animating of such occasions. America is a great country in its methods and ways of making fun. Boston will not soon forget the merriment on the streets, the jolly groups circling around Boston Common, trying to catch pigeons there and breaking the usual monotony of that historic spot. All undoubtedly had a good time.

TWO SHOT DOWN IN BROOKLYN

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Two killings which occurred within a few hours of each other occupied the attention of Brooklyn police today. In one of the shootings a third man was wounded.

The body of Samuel Chern[illegible], [illegible], taxicab driver, was found soon after midnight, one bullet wound in the abdomen and one through the heart. Half an hour later police found an abandoned auto about two miles away with the empty pistol on the back seat of the car. The car was identified as one that had been stolen from near where Chermock's body was found.

The other killing was that of [illegible], 37, a [illegible] contractor. He and his brother Arthur were attacked in Brooklyn. Arthur was wounded.

Italian Citizens Flee Two Earth Shocks

Catanzaro, Italy, Oct. 9 (AP)—Two earth shocks were felt in this district today. The populace in panic-stricken, fled into the public squares.

Fish to Have Rum Party in Blasting of Steamer

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The grandest of all cocktails is to be mixed up here shortly, but nobody will be on hand to drink it but some fish, and they are going to end their drinking days at the moment the alcoholic dish is served.

The cocktail will be composed of 71 bottles of champagne of various vintages, 160 of liqueurs, 159 of whiskey, 106 of gin, 63 of rum, 304 of beer, 269 of ale and 154 of stout.

The liquor is part of the cargo of the Bermuda liner Fort Victoria which sank at the entrance to Ambrose channel after a collision last year and which is to be dynamited within the next few days.

Twenty-five tons of dynamite, 75 per cent nitro-glycerin and so volatile the contractor did not dare bring it here by train, is aboard the two-masted schooner Annie May. One hundred pound bags which will be sewed four feet apart into a great net, will be laid oh, so gently, beside the Fort Victoria.

The crew of the Annie May is just waiting for a calm day now. When it arrives they say they can lay the multiple charge in eight hours and it will be immediately detonated.

Bengal Tribesmen Beaten, 150 Killed

Bengal, Cyrenaica, North Africa, Oct. 9 (AP)—One hundred and fifty tribesmen have been killed in two battles during the last few days in which the forces of Omar El Mukhtar have been defeated.

The first battle at [illegible] cost the tribesmen 100 dead and the second at El Ga[illegible] 50.

Fields' Honeymoon Plane Breaks Down

Khartum, Sudan, Oct. 9 (AP)—An airplane in which Marshall Field III and his bride, the former Mrs. Dudley Coats, were making a honeymoon tour broke down at Nimule on the Uganda frontier yesterday. All aboard are safe.

Balkans to Keep Peace Pact Alive

Athens, Oct. 9 (AP)—The Balkan congress today unanimously approved a resolution providing for an annual meeting of foreign ministers of the Balkan states and a study of the Balkan pact for avoiding war.

COLLEGE HEAD HITS FANATICS

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 9 (AP)—The American practice of attempting to legislate morals was criticized by the Rev. Dr. J. A. W. Haas, president of Muhlenberg College, here today for the seventh biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America.

"We are again living in an age of social legalism," he said. "Churches are expending their power, money and influence to cure people from desires and evils through prohibitory laws.

"I am not discussing the necessity or value from the economic or social angle of restrictive laws, and I am not opposing any article of the Constitution. But I am contending that a mistaken Puritanism is expending itself in a futile effort to make men good by law."

Gangland Exposed in the Most Thrilling Serial You'll Ever Read

BLAST TOPPLES HOUSE ON NINE WORKMEN

Police Chief Promises to Get Gang

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater Kid," Polack Gorio's North Side gang, of which Annie's man, is murdered. Goldie the Kid was a member, accuses Kinky King, leader of the West Side gang. Kinky swore to get the Kid for taking Annie from him. Later Kinky is found murdered, a gold revolver, similar to that possessed by Goldie, beside him. To satisfy the public's demand for action, the police chief arrests Annie. He refuses Goldie's request for her release. In revenge, Goldie's gang throws the theater district into darkness and destroys public property. Goldie raids the police station and frees Annie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 12

WITH THE BURG buzzing over the incredible stick-up of Central Detail, the kidnaping of Polack Annie by Goldie Gorio in person (there was no secret about that) and the suckerizing of a great municipality by a handful of hoodlums, the newspaper boys foregathered in the outer room of the chief. Eight of them, keenly alert, cynical, skeptical, practical, trained and gifted to X-ray the sham, hypocrisy, mendacity of those they handled—they sat around and bandied the subject in hand.

They felt no passion over fundamental right or wrong; to them it was "copy." They weren't indignant, and they weren't eloquent. The "city's shame" might burn the editorial writers, but it only busied the news-hounds. The chief was in. He would see them in a minute.

They didn't play pingpong with wisecracks, like reporters in the movies and the newspaper plays. They looked at their watches.

The Chief [illegible] up as he [illegible] his [illegible] less. He seemed [illegible] occupied with some reports he was penciling. When he lifted his face it was stubbled, saggy and haggard. And under his puffed-up left eye was a purple shiner.

Sees Reporters

Mifflin, dean of the police reporters, opened up:

"That little party early this morning——"

"Meant the end of gangs, gangsters and gangsterism in this city," blurted the Chief. "There's a round-up on and we expect an important arrest in twenty-four hours. We know who planned and executed this job——"

"And who knocked off the Edgewater Kid——"

"And who settled Kinky King——"

"And who shut off the city lights and broke up the store windows——"

"And where Polack Annie's hiding out—"

"Just a moment, boys," cut in the Chief, with a hurt look. "I thought that at least you didn't talk and think like muggs. We've already got one of the mob."

"What's his name?"

"Ah—that I can't spill yet."

"Well, he won't talk."

"He'll talk in seven languages. I'll—well, he'll talk this time and maybe we'll get a conviction. It's an almost helpless, hopeless business, fighting organized gangsters. If we arrest them we can't get men to sit on juries, we can't get witnesses to testify; they've got the highest priced lawyers and they hand us a habeas corpus or a writ to free the suspect on bail—and that's all of that pinch. If we beat 'em they beat the rap on grounds of duress and violation of Constitutional rights. Say, those babies have more Constitutional rights than the Anti-Saloon League.

In Network

"The second one of 'em is in trouble, every politician starts pulling and hauling. No judge wants to hear the case, no prosecutor wants to push it. They're tangled into every network of politics, big business and even social stuff . . . but this time, if your papers give us a decent break instead of joining the ignorant readers and kidding and slamming us, we'll take 'em on. The mayor is back of me a hundred per cent, and—"

"Why don't you run in Goldie Gorio?"

"I didn't say who we're going to arrest."

"You know that was the Gorio mob—and Goldie did it with his own hands. We know a dozen people who recognized him.'

"I know what gang it was and who was with it on this rotten trick. We'll clean up every last one of 'em, too, this time."

"Where is he? Where's Annie?"

"Now, I couldn't tell you that—"

"Not even if you knew?"

"Oh, behave . . . I tell you we'll have the bunch very soon. I've talked to the matron and the squadron men—we know, I tell you—"

"The whole world knows," snapped one of the reporters, looking for twentieth time at his wrist watch. "But what's being DONE?"

"Everything—my whole force is out with instructions—every road at the city limits is plugged tight—that outfit couldn't get through

Legion Hits Mrs. Peabody on Liquor

Brings Hope to Jobless

JOHN R. QUINN, of California, former commander of the American Legion sponsored a resolution before the American Legion convention, urging that employment be barred to those who enter the country illegally as a means of curbing unemployment. (Staff photo.)

Former American Legion Head Wars on Aliens

Unemployment in the United States can be solved by barring employment to those who illegally enter the country and stopping employers from employing illegal entrants.

This is the opinion of John R. Quinn, former national commander of the American Legion, who sponsored a resolution which was passed by the convention, calling on congressional and legislative assemblies to meet this problem and every Legion post in the country to demand it.

Former National Commander Quinn, who was once a California cowpuncher, has worked [illegible] a solution of the problem of [illegible] employed and is certain this is the answer.

He pointed [illegible] more than 2,500,000 aliens [illegible] entered the United States illegally and are continuing to enter from 250,000 to 300,000 a year.

These figures balance the total of unemployed, and he states he is justified in the assumption that if the country can rid itself of illegally-entered aliens then the unemployment problem is solved.

"There are plenty of immigration laws," he states. "What we need is more teeth in the enforcement of them."

Former Commander Quinn [illegible] Boston and Boston hospitality.

"I am glad to see that the school have availed themselves of the greatest opportunity for patriotic education ever presented the city in watching the parade, which has as its background the patriotic sacrifice of the men of the Legion."

ALL WRONG, IS REPLY OF LEADER

Mrs. Robert W. Lovett Also Brands the Attack as "Too Hasty"

National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion today denounced the speech of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, national chairman of the women's law enforcement committee, who scored liquor conditions attendant to the convention at a meeting in Everett school, Roxbury, last night.

"It is altogether unwarranted, unjust and uncalled for," Commander Bodenhamer said.

"There will be a letter written into the records of the convention today on the question. I don't propose to have such a statement go unnoticed!"

WOULD GET FACTS FIRST.

Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, vice chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, also called Mrs. Peabody's statement "hasty."

"Before making any fanatical arraignment of drunkenness on the part of American Legion delegates or criticizing the police department as being derelict in its duty, such persons should take the trouble to acquaint themselves with the facts, or at least get some definite information," she said.

"Had light wine and beer been allowed instead of bootleg whiskey, there would have been even less disorder," she added.

REFERS TO EDWARDS

Mrs. Peabody also criticized Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, war time leader of the Yankee division, for his avowed wet stand. She did not call him by name.

Her speech came as a flying squadron of Federal prohibition agents went into the hotel lobbies and emerged with one arrest for liquor violations.

Led by Dennis T. Lorden, head of the local unit, Federal raiders appeared in a downtown hotel and scattered through the halls and stairways in search of suspects.

In all other principal hostelries, other raiders were scouring rooms and corridors for a trace of bootleggers.

Lorden made the first and only arrest. He seized a man in the lobby of the Statler, and took him to the Back Bay station to be held for arraignment in Federal court today on a liquor violation charge.

Scores of suspected agents were found and escorted out of the hotel. Persons who were merely drinking were not disturbed.

MISS VIRGINIA SINCLAIR

HARRY F. SINCLAIR

AS A TRIBUTE TO THE AMERICAN LEGION of Quincy the 10,000 ton oil tanker Virginia Sinclair, was launched at the Fore River yards today in connection with Quincy's American Legion Day exercises. The tanker was christened by Miss Virginia Sinclair, daughter of Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, after whom the ship was named. Miss Sinclair is shown christening the tanker. (Staff photos.)

LEGION SEES LAUNCHING

With cheering from thousands of watchers and the drone of airplanes circling overhead the new 10,000-ton oil tanker Virginia Sinclair, latest product of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, slid down the ways at the Fore River yard in Quincy today as a tribute to the American Legion day in that city.

Miss Virginia Sinclair, daughter of Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, stood at the prow of the vessel named in her honor and christened it with a bottle of champagne just before it started its downward plunge.

Following the launching of the new [illegible]ship Miss Sinclair with Miss Josephine Fa[illegible], her aunt, Mrs. Ethel Bishop, her cousin, and Rear-Admiral L. K. Robinson of the U. S. Navy, headed the group of city dignitaries, Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company officials and members of the American Legion in a parade throughout the principal streets of Quincy. Later this afternoon a celebration was held at the Neighborhood Club.

MAYOR GREETS GEN. CONNER

Maj.-Gen. Fox Conner, new commandant of the First Corps Area, paid official calls today on Mayor Curley and Rear Admiral Louis N. Nulton, commandant of the First Naval District.

The mayor, receiving his distinguished visitor at City Hall, presented Gen. Conner with one of the canes made from an historic Lexington elm.

At the Navy Yard full honors were paid him. A salute of 13 guns was fired from the U. S. S. Southery, and Marines and Sailors were at attention. The Navy Yard band took part in the ceremony.

In his call on Admiral Nulton, Gen. Conner was accompanied by Col. John H. Hughes, his chief of staff, and Lieut. James T. Brown, his aide. Later in the day Admiral Nulton returned the call, visiting the general at the Army Base, accompanied by Capt. Charles Ab[illegible] and Lieut. Commander Ralph O. Davis.

ONE KILLED, ONE DYING IN SALEM CRASH

Overcharge of Dynamite Believed Responsible; Whole District Trembles

One man was killed and nine others injured, one possibly fatally, when an extra heavy charge of dynamite exploded during blasting operations at the plant of the Salem stone-crusher in Jefferson ave., Salem, today.

The dead man was James Kelley of 10 Hawthorne blvd., Salem, who, with eight other city employes, was crushed by the debris of a concrete boiler house which was flattened by rocks.

The ninth man, Joseph Lee, was injured while seated in a motor truck 700 feet from the scene.

With a roar that was heard in Swampscott, Marblehead and other communities, the charge went off, showering the neighborhood with huge rocks which battered down a boiler house and the front of a warehouse across the street.

The boiler room contained two boxes of dynamite containing 50 pounds each, which fortunately were not exploded. Had they gone off probably all occupants of the building would have been killed.

The injured, taken to Salem hospital, are:

HANSON, Arthur, Salem, contusions an dabrasions to head.

GREENE, Charles, Salem, contusions and abrasions to body.

THERAULT, Napoleon, Salem, fractured skull, danger list.

LEE, Joseph, Forest st., Peabody, injured thigh.

GRAVES, Charles, 8 Center st., Salem, head and body bruises.

CLEGG, Robert, Carlton st., Salem, bruised and shaken up.

BOJANOUS, Stanley, English st., Salem, cut on head.

HARNEY, Thomas, Proctor st., Salem, cut on head.

WEINBURG, Henry, Mason st., Salem, leg injury.

Mrs. Ruth Mitchell, bookkeeper, employed in the Titus warehouse, across the street, fainted when the explosion occurred, but was revived.

A fire alarm was sounded and ambulances with doctors and nurses were rushed to the scene, but most of the severly injured had been taken to the hospital by Sergt. Thomas Hyde of the police department.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

LEGION AUXILIARY NAMES MRS. WILMA HOYAL AS NEW PRESIDENT

UNANIMOUS ELECTION IS MOVED

Arizona Woman, Named New Head, Long Active in National Child Welfare Work

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

Mrs. Wilma Hoyal of Douglas, Ariz., was elected national president of the American Legion Auxiliary by the unanimous vote of the convention at [illegible] [illegible] sing [illegible].

[illegible] was [illegible] with a roar [illegible] upon the [illegible] the [illegible] ption of [illegible] by her defeated [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] McCurty Brown of [illegible] that the vote be made unanimous.

"I consider it the greatest honor that could come to an American woman to be elected to the presidency of this organization," Mrs. Hoyal said in her acceptance speech. "Knowing and working with this group as I have during the past year as its national child welfare chairman, I felt sure of election. And Thursday is my lucky day, too."

RECEIVED 481 VOTES

Mrs. Hoyal received 481 votes and Mrs. Brown 2 6 votes in the [illegible] presidential fight that has ever [illegible] in the auxiliary.

Hawaii led the group that swarmed upon the platform with oral tributes, placing a silk lei round Mrs. Hoyal's neck. The [illegible] lasted several minutes before the Prescott (Ariz.) Legion Band marched into the hall and [illegible] the uproar of congratulations [illegible] Mrs. Hoyal.

Other [illegible] officers elected [illegible] vice-presidents Mrs. [illegible] Tenn., for the Southern Division; Mrs. [illegible] for the Central Division; Mrs. Ralph S. [illegible] of Chester, N. H., for the Eastern Division; Mrs. E. F. [illegible]baugh of Boise, Idaho, for the Western Division, and Mrs. A. C. Carlson of Willmar, Minn., for the Northwestern Division.

HONOR N. H. WOMAN

Mrs. Irene MacIntyre Walbridge of Peterboro, N. H., was elected American vice president of the Fidac Auxiliary.

The most important business of the final session of the convention consisted of the adoption of several resolutions for extending the work of rehabilitation and child welfare in the auxiliary, among which was one providing for a per capita tax of 10 cents to be used for the national rehabilitation fund. Mrs. [illegible] national chairman of [illegible] committee, in her report, urged the development of an [illegible] therapy program for disabled veterans and aid in the sale of articles made by them.

200,000 UNDER CARE

Two hundred thousand dependent children of the world war veterans are [illegible] the care of the auxiliary [illegible] with the Legion, Mrs. Hoyal said in reporting the work of her committee and asking for [illegible] greater efforts to meet the problem of constantly increasing numbers of these children.

The [illegible] its retiring president, Mrs. Donald MacRae, the Auxiliary extended thanks to the European guests of honor for their reception of American Gold Star Mothers in France.

GLEE CLUBS FEATURE

A trophy cup awarded to the individual attending the most Auxiliary unit meetings during the past ten years was awarded to Mrs. Mamie Ja[illegible] of Stockton, Cal., who has not missed a single meeting.

One of the features of the session was the discussion centering on whether glee clubs and quartets which travel long distances to the national conventions shall be allowed to sing during the convention. Massachusetts led the fight for [illegible] and won the adoption of the [illegible] for an hour of [illegible] convention [illegible].

STUNT STAR TO FEATURE SIXTH DAY OF AIR SHOW

Jimmie Haislip, Held Up by the Bad Weather, Is Due at the Airport Today

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

With the scheduled arrival of Jimmie Haislip, famous stunt flier, the sixth day of the American Legion air show at Boston Airport swung into action today.

Haislip, having been held up by bad weather, is understood to be making an attempt to lower the speed record from Chicago to Boston, coming by way of New York. The present 52½ minute record from Gotham to Boston will probably be lowered.

Capt. Frank M. Hawks, who set a new record from Boston to New York several days ago, will return this afternoon for the closing days of the show. The northbound record between the two cities will probably fall under the assaults of either Haislip or Hawks.

After thrilling the crowds at the airport with his exhibition of vertical flying, John Ray took off for Philadelphia in the Pitcairn Autogiro. Ray expected to remain here for the duration of the meet, but was called away on business.

Another "Mystery Act," even funnier than its predecessors, is on the program for today. Details of the stunt are being guarded by the committee, and will not be divulged until shortly before the event is held.

The eighteen Army pursuit planes of the First Corps from Selfridge Field, Mich., are awaiting a clear weather report before beginning their flight to their home base.

Today's program follows:

3 "Mystery Act"

4:30 Stunt Flying

5:30 Parachute Jump

Mass. Needs G. O. P. Senator, Club Told

Ex-Congressman James H. MacLafferty of California, speaking last night at the Women's Republican Club, declared that if Massachusetts sends another Democratic United States Senator to Washington it will be doing nothing short of committing industrial suicide.

MacLafferty expressed the belief that Massachusetts, with particular reference to its industries, should have at least one Republican United States Senator in Washington so that necessary contacts would not be [illegible].

800 Legionnaires at Banquet in Roxbury

Nearly 800 visiting postal legionnaires were the guests of William L. Harris Post of this state, and Dan Tallon Post of New York, at a banquet and dance held in their honor at Intercolonial Hall, Dudley st., Roxbury, last night.

Francis J. Solari, commander of William L. Harris Post for post-office employes, acted as toastmaster of the banquet. The New York legionnaires were represented by Frank H. Ritter, commander of Dan Tallon Post.

CARROLL STARS ON WLEX

An invasion of the Boston Evening American studio of WLEX took place last night with Earl Carroll heading his big gang, Irene Ahlberg, "Miss America," and Will Mahoney down from the Shubert Theater, where his show, "Sketch Book," is now playing, to turn the studio into a stage.

The big surprise of the evening was the opener of the program. Earl Carroll, the producer, assumed the role of the tenor, or perhaps baritone, and sang the hit number of the show, "Sketch Book."

Irene Ahlberg, "Miss America," told the radio fans how the casts for Earl Carroll shows are selected. Will Mahoney was next. He sang character numbers.

Earl Carroll returned to the microphone once more to give the radio audience a serious talk on beauty. He was interviewed by Art D[illegible], whose first question forced Carroll to think hard.

"What section of the country have the most beautiful girls?" he was asked.

Carroll declared that the middle west produced the most beautiful girls. He then told listeners that beauty is a question of leisure and culture. Carroll told of his ambitions to cut theater prices in half and to increase the size of theaters so that everyone could attend.

Capt. Hoppe's Pet Dog Gone From Home in Mattapan

Capt. Bernard J. Hoppe, genial head of Boston's downtown traffic police, was without his usual bright outlook on life today, when he reported the loss of his Dobermann-Pinscher dog, the family pet.

The missing dog is a female, black in color with brown markings, a stub tail and long ears.

She disappeared from the Hoppe home at 21 Mattakeeset st., Mattapan, yesterday.

In the hope that some reader of the Boston Evening American might sight the pet, Capt. Hoppe asks that the public be requested through this newspaper to telephone his home, Hyde Park 0939 — or his downtown office — Hancock 0281 if the dog is found.

Mass. Boy is Healthiest

"MY little son, Henry, was very badly constipated," says Mrs. Reginald James, 22 Olive Avenue, Boston. "He was having a hard time until a friend got me to give him California Fig Syrup. The first few doses regulated his bowels, brightened him up marvelously, gave him an appetite, and made him rest well at night.

"I have since used Fig Syrup with Henry during colds or upsets. It has been a wonderful help to him, has assisted in making him the strong boy you see—perhaps the healthiest one in our neighborhood."

For more than fifty years, mothers have praised California Fig Syrup. Leading physicians advise its use with bilious, headachy, constipated children or to keep the bowels open during colds or children's diseases. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. It tones and strengthens weakened bowels; helps make children robust.

Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine.

DOUGLAS McLEAN RETURNS TO MOTION PICTURES AS PRODUCER FOR R-K-O

NEW WOOLSEY-WHEELER FILM TO BE HIS FIRST

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

[illegible] by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9—Douglas McLean, out of motion pictures for two years, is returning as an associate producer for R-K-O. During the height of his career Doug was one of the leading comedians for Paramount. Then came a series of unfunny comedies and Doug was forgotten in an incredibly short time.

Louella O. Parsons

By R-K-O is confident the McLean instinct for comedy is still alive and he is going to have a chance to try his hand in the next Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler comic following "Hook, Line and Sinker." We would like to see Doug, who hails from the home town of Dixon, Ill., return in a blaze of glory. He has had plenty of tough breaks, among them getting a decree from Faith McLean, [illegible] who was always [illegible] for the years [illegible] were perhaps [illegible] ever eager to be funny.

HERE COMES another movie producer about to take a sliver on the stage. Charles R. Rogers is planning to produce a series of stage plays using well known film players in his casts. If Los Angeles gives his efforts a hand and he finds his plays popular he will convert them into talkies. John Farrow, who is just back from [illegible] the desert to spend the week-end with Lila Lee, whom he will marry in a few months, has [illegible] the first play. He is calling it "The R[illegible] Sister." [illegible] and since John's experience has been largely with the cinema, Charles Rogers is confident it will make a good movie.

SOMETHING NEW in the movies: a chiropractor cracking a girl's neck audibly. Mack Sennett has thought of that new gag and he is using it in his next comedy, "Don't Wake Me Up." Remember Eddie Cantor and his osteopathic treatment on the stage? It was one of the funniest sketches in the Ziegfeld Follies one year. I can't see why the chiropractor number wouldn't be funny, only I wouldn't like to be in the girl's place if they have a real chiropractor, as they threaten. In the cast are Marjorie Beebe, playing the lead; Frankie Eastman, Harry Gribben, Mildred Van Dorn and Florence Roberts, old time stage actress.

Saw Zazu Pitts lunching at the Brown Derby with her young son. The boy adopted by Zazu and Tom Gallery at the time of Barbara La Marr's tragic death, had broken his right foot and Zazu was giving him special attention. She has signed for two roles, Basquerie at Fox and "Half Gods" at Universal. I heard an amusing story about Zazu and Marie Prevost when they were filming a death scene in "War Nurse." The two girls [illegible] played in so many comedies together they couldn't play the scene without laughing. Finally, after rehearsing it a dozen times the director threatened to take a long shot with substitutes for his giggling actresses. Marie said every time Zazu looked mournful she went into convulsions and Zazu [illegible] Marie [illegible] and [illegible]

THE WIDE OPEN SPACES are just as popular now in the movies as they were in the days when W. S. Hart was the chief hero. Speaking of Bill Hart, I saw his young son, William S. Hart, Jr., at the opera the other evening with his mother, Winifred Westover. Miss Westover hasn't done a thing since she played in "Lummox." She thought, and so did everyone else, that the Fannie Hurst story would be the opening wedge for her appearance in the movies. Dear me, I have wandered from my subject. I started out to say that Paramount is starring the popular Richard Arlen in "The Stampede," a Western story by Emerson Hough. Chances are Fay Wray will play opposite him.

"DOUGHBOYS" AT BOWDOIN

Beginning today and for the [illegible] the Bowdoin Square [illegible] forth a [illegible] "Doughboys" with Buster Keaton. The picture shows how Buster "won the war single-handed" and it is packed with wholesome situations which create merriment. In the supporting cast are Cliff Edwards and Sally Eilers. Another picture is "Czar of Broadway," with Betty Compson in an underworld story. John Wray and John Harron appear at their best. "Mind Your Business" will be viewed together with a continuation of "The Lone Defender." Four new vaudeville acts are making a finely rounded bill.

KAY HAMMOND AND WALTER HUSTON

THIS SCENE from "Abraham Lincoln" depicts Walter Huston in the title role and Kay Hammond as Mary Todd Lincoln at the moment when they receive news of Stephen A. Douglas' victory. The film comes to the Majestic next Monday.

STAR STUDIED FOR STAGE

Although English by birth and [illegible] Daphne Wilson, who [illegible] Greenleaf in John Drinkwater's comedy, "Bird in Hand" at the Majestic, has acted only in this country. A few years ago Miss Wilson's mother came on a visit to this side and, growing to like the United States so well, returned to England and brought back her two daughters to maintain a permanent residence here. Shortly after her arrival Miss Wilson entered a dramatic [illegible] in New York, remaining there three years.

Daphne Wilson

Miss Wilson's favorite pastimes are riding, swimming and piano playing. On numerous evenings she arrives at the Majestic Theater half an hour or so earlier than necessary to take her place at the piano in the orchestra pit, when the attaches of the theater are treated to an impromptu recital of gentle music.

Sidney Lanfield, youthful Fox Films director, has been assigned [illegible]

'FRENCH GIRLS' AT THE STATE MONDAY

After the movies began to talk they learned new tricks. One of the first was song, the biggest and latest farce. Pure farce couldn't be put over by the silent screen but sound makes farce the ultimate of motion picture entertainment.

And that is one of the reasons why Cosmopolitan Productions has groomed "Those Three French Girls," opening at Loew's State Monday, for its first film of the new cinema year and had P. G. Wodehouse, noted humorist and playwright, write the farcical dialogue for it.

Dale Van Every, Arthur Freed and Richard Schayer wrote the original story and Sylvia Thalberg and Frank Butler turned out the continuity. Fifi Dorsay, Reginald Denny, Cliff Edwards, Yola D'Avril, Sandra Ravel, George Grossmith, Edward Brophy and Peter Gawthorne were chosen to form the cast. Harry Beaumont was the director.

As no one in the research department at the studio was able to find that any farce in history, beginning with the early Etruscan, and continuing down through the middle Greek to the later Broadway, ever was over burdened with a plot, it is understood that the decision was not to handicap "Those Three French Girls" with any more plot than was necessary to get the three girls and as many young men into trouble and out of it again.

Of course, there's a mix-up in love affairs and a funny English Earl played by George Grossmith and a butler who speaks the Wodehouse dialogue in a way that followers of Jeeves and other characters of Wodehouse, will find excruciatingly funny. But naturally, the center-piece around which the fun is embroidered is those fetching chic French.

FIRST ON LIST IS KREISLER

Fritz Kreisler will open the season of Sunday afternoon concerts in Symphony Hall on October 12. On Tuesday evening, October 21, there will be a recital by La Argentina, the dancer from Spain. For the second Sunday afternoon concert on October 26, Winifred Christie, Scotch pianist, will return to introduce the new Bechstein-Moor Double-Keyboard Piano which she is bringing to America for the first time.

The artists for the special course of six Sunday afternoon concerts which is to open November 23 includes: Jascha Heifetz, violin; Florence Austral, soprano; Roland Hayes, tenor; John Charles Thomas, baritone; Walter Gieseking, piano; Yelly D'Aranyi, violin, and Pauline Danforth, piano.

Expressive

SYLVIA LOWE

MISS LOWE appears in "Subway Express," that masterly thriller now in its last week at the Hollis.

HOWARD STAR IN NEW PLAY

Leslie Howard, starring in "Berkeley Square," which is coming to the Wilbur on Oct. 20, is unlike many of the more distinguished actors in that he does not come from a family long associated with the theater. As a boy his aspirations were not for the stage but for a business career. His first job was in a bank. In 1914, when the war broke out, he enlisted and saw active service in France. He was left [illegible] without a job.

Leslie Howard

At present the young actor is one of the busiest men on the stage. Besides taking the leading role in this play, he is writing a drama of his own, which is yet unnamed. Writing, acting and directing all seem to be within his ability.

EARL CARROLL DISCUSSES STAGE

By EARL CARROLL

Authority on beautiful girls, and producer of Earl Carroll Vanities and Earl Carroll Sketch Book, the latter revue being now at the Shubert.

Ever since the theater emerged from the chaotic and haphazard conditions that prevailed during the early eighties, and became one of America's Big Businesses, it has been beset by so-termed "problems."

The first major problem was the throttling of production by the Syndicate. This was quickly solved by competition. The next was the arrival of the motion pictures in the entertainment field. The speaking legitimate stage survived this gallantly although dealt a staggering blow by entertainment prices the theater proper could not possibly meet.

And now arises the problem of the talking motion pictures. Just as the theater has surmounted all obstacles since the days of Greek supremacy so will it burst through the cramping bindings placed upon it by the talking pictures. No mechanical effect, no robots or things material can ever take the place of the human equation.

But when robots take the place of feminine beauty, for which we have striven to attain the best and most famous all the years I have been a producer, then we and human interest will be obsolete, and all the compelling emotions and passions of the human heart and mind will have disappeared from our make-up—which seems a remote possibility.

We have a splendid exemplification of it in the current Earl Carroll Sketch Book. The performance opens with talking motion pictures and goes into a clever mechanical effect of phonographs mounted upon artificial feminine legs. The mechanical chorus recites the following Dialogue:

Hello everybody, hello, this is a funny way to open a show.
Yes, sir, a mechanical chorus and
Mr. Carroll's all to for us.
Of course, we cannot take the places of pretty faces
But, you've got yourself to blame you started this game
Of substituting people with a slab of steel, a screw, a wheel
You brought this on yourself, didn't you?

Once you could pet us as God designed us
Didn't it make you glad?
Wasn't it swell?
Now to be thrilled you must crank and wind us
Doesn't it make you sad?
Isn't it hell?

Headliner

ANN SEYMOUR

THE NEW SHOW which opens at the Keith-Albee on Saturday will have Ann Seymour as the head line act.

For gone are the old-fashioned,
"darn-your-socks-girls."

girls,
Keeping in step with the new mechanical age!

(Further discussion of the problems of the theater by Mr. Carroll will be printed on this page tomorrow.—Ed.)

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

After recording a 100 per cent increase in membership during the past summer when club activities are usually at a standstill, the Foreign Commerce Club has launched a drive for at least 200 new members.

The drive is in charge of William J. Longridge of the Furness Line of 10 State st., who is assisted by a special committee of 19 men. The club as a whole is also on the committee for new members.

At the next meeting on Oct. 21 at the Brunswick Hotel a report of the gains will be made.

A committee composed of H. I. Marler, John Heaney and Walter F. Doherty wrote a "peppy" letter to members. The keynote of the letter is in the following paragraph:

"Big plans are underway for the coming year and the Foreign Commerce Club is not only shoulder to shoulder with other organizations, but we believe is far in the lead in getting things done of interest to the port."

The committee includes J. C. Powers, J. J. McLean, Capt. W. A. Rancon, W. B. Chadbourne, George Brooks, L. J. Coughlin, Percy E. Egan, C. F. Morrison, P. F. Connor, Capt. Herbert S. Evans, Capt. Mortimer Nickerson, David J. Fletcher, Fred Wilkie, C. J. Beaudet, Ray Rodey and P. L. Stuart.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's "Who's Who in Boston Harbor" is Melvin C. Lane, traveling representative of the Pere Marquette [illegible].

[illegible]
Melvin C. Lane

Lane is a member of the [illegible] Club [illegible] of the Railroad and Steamship Agents' Association. He is active in the Medford American Legion post.

During the war he served with the [illegible] Division and went through [illegible] battles without a wound.

Before the war Lane was with the Boston and Maine railroad, rejoining them after the war [illegible] leaving for his present position in 1920. He is married and has two children. His hobby is fishing.

ARMY BASE No. 7

The personnel of the Shipping Board group who will have charge of the check up to be made on the report of the Boston Port Authority on conditions at the local Army Base terminal is of interest at this time.

T. V. O'Connor is chairman of the board, which has a sub-committee on terminals headed by Charles [illegible] Sandberg. The committee in turn refers matters to the Merchant Fleet Corp., which has a department of terminals and real estate. This is in charge of W. J. McCarthy, who will investigate recommendations made by the Port Authority. He will inform the Fleet Corporation, which then confers with the full board relative to the items to be followed.

JEWEL ROBBERY SUSPECT HELD

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP)—Samuel Battaglia, 25, was held today as a suspect in the robbery of Mrs. William Hale Thompson, wife of the mayor, of $16,000 in jewels. There was considerable doubt he was the right man.

Battaglia, a minor hoodlum and racketeer, was arrested as he walked out of court freed of a charge of assault.

Peter O'Malley, the policeman chauffeur for Mrs. Thompson who was held at bay by one bandit while three others took Mrs. Thompson's jewels Monday night, was unable to make positive identification of Battaglia.

Jazz Gives 60 Seconds to Fred Mann, Suicide

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP)—Fourteen teams of tired Marathon dancers paused for one minute last night in their shuffle around the floor of what used to be called Fred Mann's Million Dollar Rainbo Garden.

The orchestra ceased to play. The crowd sat hushed. The jazz age was paying tribute to Fred Mann.

Sixty seconds of silence, then the tap of the leader's baton. Strike up the band. On with the everlasting dance.

Fred Mann, who had come to America as a 15 year old boy and risen to become caterer to Chicago's gay night life, had killed himself while seated on a bench in Lincoln Park. In his pockets was less than three [illegible].

Mann was 57 years old. He was widely known [illegible] among them Mayor William Hale Thompson. His 'Rainbo Garden' at Clark st. and Lawrence ave. was one of the brightest spots of town. The Volstead act finally put out the lights.

SOME WOMEN ALWAYS ATTRACT

You want to be attractive. You want the freshness, rosy complexion and pep of youth. Then let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets help free your system of the poisons caused by clogged bowels and torpid liver.

For 20 years men and women suffering from stomach troubles, pimples, listlessness and headaches have taken Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a successful substitute for calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients, known by their olive color. They act easily upon the bowels without griping. They help cleanse the system and tone up the liver.

If you value youth and its many gifts, take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly. How much better you will feel—and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Dean Inge Points to Birth Control Duties

Newport, Wales, Oct. 9 (AP)—Dean Inge, known as the "gloomy dean," in another of his pointed speeches on social problems warned the church congress here today that the church should not be indifferent to the question of producing children from unfit parents.

The advance of knowledge has laid upon church people new moral obligations, the dean said, among them being duties to posterity.

"When knowledge is available," he added, "and we do not use it, it is counted to use for a sin."

Luxury Bedrooms on English Trains Now

London, Oct. 9 (INS)—Luxury bedrooms for women on trains are the latest railroad development in England. The walls, doors, curtains and blankets are all carried out in jade green. Stainless silver-plated fittings take the place of the usual brass or bronze type. Electricity is used both for lighting and heating.

'Unhappy Wife' Is Playing a Very Dangerous Game

Take Care, Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home at 6:35 p. m., over station WLEX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been married two years and am very unhappy. I am 24 years old—my husband never wants to take me any place, but when there are other girls around he's right there. He started flirting when we were married only two months, but it doesn't hurt me any more. He asked one of his friends to take me to a dance, and this man has taken me out several times since. My husband doesn't care where I go. This friend who takes me out is lovely to me and I find myself beginning to care for him.

AN UNHAPPY WIFE.

Beatrice Fairfax.

Dear Unhappy Wife: You are playing a very dangerous game, my dear girl. Perhaps the young man who takes you out is sincere and disinterested, and is just sorry for you, at the same time, your husband may be trying to get evidence for a divorce suit. Talk the situation over with some close friend who knows you both, and be very careful that you do nothing that would compromise you.

She's Lonely

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 16 years old and go to high school. It seems that I can never get in with a good crowd of girls or get a bid to join any of the good school clubs. There are several boys I like at school, but they never pay any attention to me. Other girls can make friends with any one, why can't I? Will you please try to help me?

MARY.

Dear Mary: We'd all like to be popular, Mary, but it just seems that some of us are "born to blush unseen, and waste our sweetness on the desert air," to misquote the poet Gray by a word. However we can do our bit, and the first thing is to get rid of the notion that we can't make friends and that people aren't interested in us. Start out with that idea and you're hypnotized by failure at the start. Reverse this process, think you're going to be popular, don't hang around waiting to be snubbed and left out of things, take the initiative, look your very best—and good luck to you.

How Encourage Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 17, and very much in love with the brother of a girl I know slighty. This boy is 19, and very shy. He has taken me out once or twice but does not come to see me regularly. What do you think I should do to encourage him?

HAZEL.

Dear Hazel—Encouraging your shy acquaintance ought not to be too difficult a matter, Hazel, since you know his sister invite them both to come to your house when there are to be other young people there. Perhaps his shyness will thaw over a game of cards. Some shy boys like to be invited to girls' homes, while others are made shyer by it. I am afraid I cannot guarantee any program to work satisfactorily. But I don't see why you shouldn't try to win the boy's friendship if only to convince yourself that you are not really in love, which, forgive me, is probably the case.

Going-Away Frock and Accessories

By ANN ARDEN

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 A. M.

HOW VERY important is that last breathless look that the guests get of the bride! She dashes by but not so fast that anyone misses what she is wearing. The going-away costume can be any smart outfit suitable for traveling that the bride prefers. She may prefer an ensemble or suit, but one of the most charming costumes this year is the dress in sheer woolen. It not only will be just right for traveling but it will give such fashionable service after the honeymoon is over.

SO MANY frocks by adding a bit of fur trimming have made themselves useful without coats for the early fall. Fur applied to a silk or wool frock gives it a certain independence that is delightful. It can be worn with a coat, but without one it is equally chic.

THE HAT of black felt wears its brim tip-tilted from a forehead band of white fur. One side of brim flares, the other is caught with felt bow tipped and knotted with the white fur.

FUR COMES indoors this season. Not content with swathing us for encounters with zero weather, fur becomes more ornamental than warming when it adorns the frock. Fur trimming is deftly used to achieve distinction for otherwise simple little frocks, to glorify plain suits and enhance winter hats.

* * *

WHETHER YOUR ensemble is of one color or several shades, the jewelry accents must match or blend subtly with it. Turquoise and black, that clever combination so smart this season, appears in jewelry in necklaces and other pieces, of jet with turquoise stones. Turquoise and silver is another attractive combination. Carnelian is chosen for brown costumes, frequently combined with silver.

Love Fades in Lengthy Affairs

By HELEN ROWLAND.

LONG-DRAWN-OUT love-affairs are a mutual monopoly, in which love just naturally suffocates—and dies of ennui.

Men seldom fall in love, and are almost never "lured" into it; most of them are shoved into it, by accident, fate or "the woman before the last."

There is a psychological moment in every love-affair at which it balances a while, and then either skids into an engagement or turns into an "entanglement."

Some women have eyes, whose "come-hither" signal across a ballroom is as loud and imperative as a fire-siren and as irresistible as the twelve o'clock whistle in a factory.

Nowadays, a butler or a husband who has seen "service" in the same family for ten years is as rare and precious as a museum specimen or a treasured heirloom.

Silence and dignity look so much alike, and dignity and intelligence resemble each other so closely that a man, who knows just enough to keep QUIET, can easily pass for one of the Intelligentsia.

It takes real art to write an effective and convincing love-letter—and real brains to refrain from signing and mailing it.

It was an unfortunate moment for women, when man discovered that he was "the noblest work of God," but it has never seemed to discourage her from trying to put a few cultural and moral improvements on Heaven's Masterpiece.

If you sigh for an ardent lover, seek not a man in the first flush of youth—but a man in the last flush of Indian Summer!

Tomatoes Good to Eat and Good for Us

By MARTHA LEE.
Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 37,000

IT ISN'T often that we find something good to eat that is good for us to eat in as large quantities as we could possibly want. There are very few people who cannot eat tomatoes, but I am sure most of us are truly fond of these rosy "love apples," as the French call them, and since they contain important acids and minerals which the system needs they are doubly valuable.

Martha Lee

Cream of tomato soup is usually a favorite in most households, especially when the colder weather starts, since it is both rich in food value, and velvety soft and smooth to the taste.

A delightful cream of tomato soup or tomato bouillon may be made by emptying one of those cans of tomato juice, now on the market for cocktail juice which you drink in the morning, and adding either milk and seasoning, or simply a dash of salt and pepper, if a clear soup is desired. A bit of butter improves the flavor, too.

For quick and tasty tomato soups, do try the following.

CREAM OF TOMATO BOUILLON

Add to about a quart of tomato juice a sprig of parsley, sprigs of celery tops, a slice of onion, and boil for five minutes and strain. Add two cups of bouillon, season to taste with salt and pepper and add a pinch of soda. Pour slowly into one-half cup hot cream or evaporated milk and just before serving add two tsp lemon juice.

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

Melt 2 tbsps. of butter, add 2 tbsps. of flour and stir smooth. Add about ¾ quart of tomato juice slowly, stirring until smooth and creamy. Add a pinch of soda and pour slowly into 1 c. of hot evaporated milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper and serve with croutons.

CREAM OF TOMATO AND MUSHROOM SOUP

Use canned mushrooms, chopping the contents of a 4-ounce can, and saute for 5 minutes in 2 tbsps. butter. Add 3 tbsps. flour, stir smooth, then add mushroom liquor slowly. Add 3 or 4 c. of tomato juice and cook, stirring all the time, until smooth and creamy. Add a pinch of soda and pour slowly into ½ c. of scalded cream.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee.

'Poking' at the Ear Is Harmful

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

WHAT TO DO for the minor accidents of life is something everybody should know. The baby gets an [illegible] one of the family gets something in his eye or some other painful accident may happen—any one of these experiences calls for judgment and skill at a moment's notice.

Dr. Copeland

It is not uncommon to get a foreign body in the ear. It creates a disagreeable sensation. Probably nothing is more distressing than getting an insect in the ear, and yet how easily that accident can happen. No matter how small the insect is it can make a lot of trouble.

Nature has provided a safeguard in the form of the sticky odorous earwax. When an insect gains entrance to the ear the feet and wings just naturally get entangled in this substance. This usually prevents the insect from reaching the eardrum. If an insect ever does crawl far enough to reach the drum membrane the effect is maddening. The loud noises made are overpowering. There is such pain, with headache and vomiting that convulsions are sometimes caused.

The thing to do at once is to pour sweet oil or olive oil or sewing machine oil into the ear and let it remain for a few minutes. Insects are quickly killed by this means. Then the ear should be gently irrigated with a stream of warm water from a fountain syringe. Never hang the fountain syringe higher than the head.

When an object like a bean or pea or any wooden object is found in the nose or ear do not use water in attempts to remove it. This would cause the object to swell.

The thing to do is to take a camel's hair brush of small size, dip it in collodium or glue and apply it to the object. Let it dry for a moment and then you can remove the object by pulling on it very gently. Sometimes adhesive plaster will serve as well when used in a similar manner.

There is no cause for alarm, even if the object remains in place for several hours or a day or two. In the case of a child he should be soothed into thinking no harm will come from it. It may be disagreeable, but it is nothing to be frightened over.

If there is any difficulty in getting an object out a doctor should be called.

BOSTON'S LUCKY GIRL

Gordon Tells Cathie She Must Impress the Jury in Right Way

CHAPTER 43

THE DAY was warm. May. The flowers would be blooming on the hills now . . . Ma's garden would be in bloom . . . stocks, daffodils, bridal wreath . . .

Cathie sat on her cot, thinking about it. She thought about the afternoons that she used to wander around town, trying to kill time.

Thoughts of Past

On afternoons like this she used to have ice cream sodas, feeling selfish, to think she had them alone. When she felt blue and discouraged she used to go and buy new clothes. . . . Whatever became of that last dress she bought? Blue. Cornflower blue. Like her eyes, Gordon said. She'd like to see it again . . . too bad they hadn't sent it to her, but of course she couldn't wear it. . . . She was in mourning . . . and it would be out of style by this time next year. . . . If . . . she lived. . . .

Cathie thought about dying. Tried to think about it. It was very possible that she'd never see another May. Mr. Allan thought they'd give her life if they didn't acquit her, but they didn't always. Twenty-six women had been hanged . . . or that other thing . . . electric chair, in the United States. Mr. Allan told her that himself. . . . Wonder what they were like, those women. . . . Were they all guilty? Or were some of them like her . . . innocent . . . paying for something they didn't do . . .

Family's Affairs

Well, it wouldn't be so terrible to die. Everyone had to do it sometime. It would be hard on the family, though. . . . But not so much worse than having her here. . . . Thank goodness, Eddie was too far away to know much about it, and Jean in the East . . . they were keeping it from Jean. . . .

Wonder whether Ruth would be married before . . . or after? It would have been nice to see Ruth's wedding. She'd never seen a wedding except her own, and that wasn't really like a wedding. . . .

Poor Ruth . . . she minded so much . . . being disgraced by a sister in jail. . . . Maybe it was hard on Mr. Browning, too. . . .

Well, she couldn't help it. Some day they'd discover how it happened and then she would be cleared. . . . The family would like that.

Of course she'd like it, too. But not so much as she would have once. She had been here too long now. She didn't care so much. Her feelings were getting numbed. If she could go on staying here and didn't have to go to trial she'd like it better. It wasn't so bad here. . . . Gordon could come to see her. . . .

Gordon. . . . Cathie was sorry for Gordon. If he didn't love her so well he'd wish he had never seen her. She had brought him nothing but unhappiness. She hadn't brought much happiness to anyone. She had tried hard enough, but it hadn't worked. She had tried to give the family some happiness. . . . It had seemed to her that they would be happy if they had more money, but it hadn't happened that way . . . Nobody had been really happy afterwards. . . . Nothing went right. . . .

Mr. Farnsworth, too. Poor Alfred . . . He had wanted her to marry him, and he had said that she made him happy. He did like her sitting with him in the long evenings . . . the evenings when he nodded over his book and woke up and patted her hand, and went to sleep again . . . but what real happiness had she ever given him? Their marriage was only a farce . . . it had brought trouble with his only son . . . had resulted in his death . . .

Cathie sat very silent in the small whitewashed room listening to her insistent, scratching thoughts, thinking of the thousand and one little things that she might have done for her husband . . . thinking of them, now, when it was too late . . .

"It won't be long now, dearie," the matron said.

"I know," Cathie said, "and I'm sorry."

Mrs. Evans gave her a long knowing look.

"She's guilty all right. Dreads the trial, poor thing," she told Curly Flink, the policeman who was on duty in the elevator when she went home that night.

"Sure. But it'll be a shame if she didn't get off."

She sighed. "Yes, and her so young. I hate to think of her going to prison with all the riffraff. She's such a refined, gentle little thing."

* * *

"A Chinese man to see you," they told Cathie that evening. "He has his pass all signed properly, but you don't have to see him if you don't want to."

"Oh, but I want to! It must be Cheong!"

Chinese Caller

It was Cheong. Wearing his black coat and his derby hat. Carrying a screw of brown paper that opened, disclosing lilies. White Chinese lilies, golden hearted, full ivory blossomed, on the thick pale green stems.

"This is a most unhappy occasion," he said in his ceremonious English, "but I wish to assure you of my good wishes. In my small way I may be of assistance, I hope. I—I may have Chinese boys who are my friends. Quite possibly one may discover evidence. For it is written in the book of history, the ignorant may change the course of life of the great."

Cathie smiled sadly.

"Cheong, you did the only thing that could really help me already. You found Mr. Moore for me. I can't ever thank you for that."

"These things are simple," the fat old Chinaman said. "When one is well acquainted. In China we have a saying. Roughly translated it would be. . . . Be of good cheer, for virtue never dies."

They let Gordon come at last.

It was a long while before Cathie could trust herself to speak. His eyes were so heavy, his dark, thin face was so marked with fatigue. He looked as old as his brother David. As old as his Uncle Andrew. . . . Because of her . . .

"Gordon . . . are you very tired?"

"I don't know. Perhaps. We've been working hard, you know. . . . Cathie, I love you so—"

"And I've brought you nothing but misery."

"It's I that brought you the misery, Cathie. From the very first."

"No. Only happiness. I could not stand it now if it weren't for you. I couldn't, Gordon."

When he spoke again his voice was hoarse and muffled. "Some day I'll make it up to you. We'll go away, where you can forget. Russia maybe. I'm considering a project there. It's the biggest thing we've ever thought of. We may not get it. I hope we do, because it would mean clearing out—you and I, Cathie. Together."

Cathie thought about it. Russia. . . . Easter services with people carrying tall candles and kissing each other. . . . Sleighs in winter time, and wolves lurking in black forests . . . and cross stitch embroidery, and the new art. . . . Russia . . . not very real . . . not very likely that it ever would be real . . .

Fears Mount

She smiled a little crooked smile. "Yes, Gordon. If they let me."

Gordon Moore hid his face on Cathie's shoulder. "Oh, they'll let you. You'll get off all right. There isn't any doubt about that."

He was thinking . . . "There isn't a chance . . . and I can't bear it . . . I can't bear her knowing it . . ."

"Don't worry, Gordon. You mustn't worry. It doesn't do any good."

He began to take heart again. "Cathie, has Mr. Allan told you how important it is for you to impress the jury in the right way? Told you to be looking pretty. Pale, you know, but lovely . . . oh, you can't look any other way but appealing but you'll remember to impress them, Cathie? Cathie, my dear, you know that there are many things against us, the hiding of he clothes, and so many other things. . . You'll not forget all that it means for you to do your part?"

"I won't forget," she promised.

A chill struck her.

For the first time Cathie was afraid.

Courteous Behavior Helps Everyone at Theater

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a girl is attending a theater, is it correct for her to rise as another person moves to go out? My girl friend and I have been debating this subject and have decided to write to you for help.

R. W. M.

It is better form for her to rise, since this is the kinder thing for her to do, the more courteous thing. It is really very difficult in the usual theatre, for a person going out to pass a person who is seated. So we are doing our act of kindness and helpfulness if we rise. And this shows a flexibility of courtesy that is most pleasant—don't you like it when other people do this for you? I don't know of any other occasion when it is more true that we should do unto others as we would that they should do to us."

Drinking Bouillon

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper, when drinking soup from a bouillon cup, to pick the cup up in one's hand?

2. When the cup has but one handle, what is proper?

3. What does one do when a spoon is served with a bouillon cup?

ROSE.

Yes. When we drink bouillon, we sip the first few mouthfuls to test the heat of the liquid, and then, if we wish, we drink the rest of the bouillon as we would drink tea.

2. Since we would use only one handle when we lift the cup, it really does not make any difference if the cup has only one handle. Of course, if it has only one handle, it is a tea cup, not a bouillon cup. The extra handle, which makes a tea cup a bouillon cup, is the tea cup putting on "side."

3. We use the spoon, correctly the small bouillon spoon especially designed for use with the bouillon cup, to take the first few sips.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

Listen, World!—Too Much Softness and Safety

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE JUST been down to the south forty with some rock salt for the cattle. Queer thing about cows. You can give them the richest pasturage that ever sprouted, clear water, deep shade . . . everything that a cow's heart might desire but if you don't give them salt they'll sicken. Something in their bodies demands that bitter tonic and they'll desert the finest alfalfa and travel weary miles to get it.

Elsie Robinson

Watching them rub their great tongues over the big gray cube I thought of Perry. Perry's 19 tomorrow—and he will spend his birthday in jail. Stole another automobile. This is his fifth. They say his dad has disowned him. My folks won't blame his dad.

"Look at all he did for that boy," they'll say. "Ever since he was a little shaver, nothing was too good for him. The Smiths aren't rich, but no boy ever had a nicer home or kinder parents. And what thanks did they get? Why, he's been in one mess after another since he was 12. It's a good thing his dad has washed his hands of him. You can't do anything with a boy that's naturally bad like that."

That's what people will be saying of Perry today and much of it is true. No one ever tried harder to make life easy for his boy than Ed Smith. He had a hard time himself as a kid on his own in the mining camps at 14. Pretty tough! No wonder he wanted his boy to have everything soft and safe. YET THAT'S WHAT LANDED THE BOY WHERE HE IS TODAY . . . TOO MUCH SOFTNESS AND SAFETY.

Humans, like cows, must have salt . . . something harsh and virile for bone and blood. How much salt is there left in modern city life for a youngster? . . . How much health . . . rough and tumble? Warm, pretty rooms. Soft, sloppy foods. Slick, sleazy clothes. School days filled with cultural courses . . . not a drop of sweat in a semester.

Yet, stinging the boy's young blood, that same old hunger for adventure that sent their grandfathers out in covered wagon caravans . . . but what to feed it? Vicious, maudlin movies, dramatizing crime . . . confession magazines as dirty as a French postcard . . . leg shows . . . blind pigs? . . .

And we blame them if they run amuck! Why shouldn't they run amuck . . . LOOKING FOR SALT IN OUR MARSHMALLOW CIVILIZATION?

Boys—Naturally bad? Nonsense! Boys are naturally ALIVE and the more alive they are, the more Cain they're going to raise in their craving for action.

Give a youngster something to DO . . . give him healthy risk and danger . . . make life hard for him . . . make life challenge him . . . AND HELP HIM GET THE KICK OUT OF THAT CHALLENGE . . . and you won't have to worry about him being "bad."

Want a cure for the crime wave? Don't wait until rebel youngsters land in reform schools, to learn crime. Put them on cattle ranges where they won't need crime. Let them learn how to make automobiles, ride aeroplanes, sail ships, fight forest fires . . . GIVE THEM SALT. LIFE WITHOUT SALT GOES BAD.

"The business depression, or so-called hard times, which the whole world has been experiencing for the past eleven months, is by no means an unmixed evil.

"It is, of course, self-evident that no one enjoys being out of work or having the dividends on his stock reduced, and Americans as a class do not want to forego the purchase of what they want when they want it. In other words, we do not like to economize and we like to think our extravagance, when compared with the rest of the world, is one of the reasons for our great prosperity, and no doubt the high standard of living in America is responsible for a large percentage of our prosperity.

"However, it is inevitable that in times of prosperity individuals have a tendency to let down and get mentally and physically soft and the same is true of industries. Times of depression force us to use our brains and wits to meet the issues that face us. Industries are aroused by the spur of necessity to improve their products, give their customers more for a lower price, and generally increase the value of the world's goods; all of which results in a permanent improvement of standards from which the world profits for many years to come.

"One shrinks from considering what an extravagant, wasteful and inefficient world ours would be if we had a long period of uninterrupted boom times. Hard times bring us down to earth. In the end the world will profit greatly from the improved standards necessity is helping us to establish and meanwhile we are experiencing some growing pains which are not pleasant. We must meet them as best we can, confident that a brighter future is around the corner."

"A brighter future is around the corner."

STEEL REPORT DUE AT NOON TOMORROW

It is a different story today that [illegible] in stock exchange circles [illegible] Ohio of [illegible]

Daniel Willard

[illegible] The B. & O. went on a $7 basis last year. No reason [illegible] appears [illegible] change. As of Aug. 1, current assets approximated $72,400,000, including about $40,000,000 cash against current liabilities of [illegible] a ratio of nearly [illegible]

Again it should be pointed out that the bears have a way of demonstrating [illegible] railroad earnings by ignoring the effect of retroactive mail pay allowances which pushed up the July 1929 net. They did this in connection with the B. & O. Had not retroactive mail pay been included in July, 1929, comparison for seven months would have been much better. Net for July would have shown a decline of only $198,014, or 5.15 per cent instead of $1,529,868 or 29.54 per cent reported. Likewise, the $6,297,852 decrease for seven months with mail pay credit deducted, becomes a decrease of 15.66 per cent instead of 22.76 per cent.

The New York Exchange governors appear to believe that some of the big bears have been engaged in putting business "on the spot." There are also State St. leaders who hold this opinion. We further hear conviction expressed that the governors' action is very timely if it is intended to forestall the criticism that might be expected when Congress again gets under way.

Attempts are annually or oftener made to put the New York Stock Exchange, a private body, under political control. We never hear anything said in favor of them.

Prof. George Claude gets power from deep sea water, "harnessing the Gulf Stream," at Matanzas, Cuba, where in 1898 the U. S. warships New York, Cincinnati and Puritan staged a bombardment. The newspapers, as we recall it, featured in connection with the affray the killing of a mule. Anyway, Prof. Claude's feat reminds the writer of Mr. Knowlton's demonstration of extracting power from tidewater at Saugus.

In the experimental plant at Saugus the Knowlton machinery, if that is the right term, used to turn on the lights about as described in the Matanzas dispatches. We have never been convinced, after witnessing a demonstration, that it was not bona fide.

* * *

How cheaply the power could be produced from tidewater is an entirely different question; and that seems also to hold true in the case of Prof. Claude's invention.

Bridgeport Plant Goes on Full Time

New York, Oct. 9—The Bridgeport, Ct., portable-typewriter plant of Underwood Elliott Fisher Co. resumed this week on full-time basis as a result of a large increase in both [illegible] and foreign orders for portable machines.

Other plants of Underwood Elliott Fisher Co. probably will operate at greater capacity shortly as the fourth quarter is always the best in its year while the first quarter is next best, the third being the poorest.

[illegible] question of [illegible] the Stock Exchange campaign against the bears, whatever its reaction, has had decided influence on many operators. Leaders are definitely aware of several very large covering operations by formerly aggressive bears. It is the bears' desire to remain temporarily inactive, pending results of the campaign. In this respect the short interest has been materially reduced.

[illegible] may be experienced.

Procter & Gamble Business Gains

At annual meeting H. E. Jordan, Fred Moratti and J. M. Cain who were elected directors of Procter & Gamble Co. by employes, were confirmed by stockholders. The [illegible] C. Behme and William J. Cooper.

William Cooper Procter, president, stated that current operations were most satisfactory and that business during the first three months of the fiscal year, beginning July 1, will be slightly in excess of a like period a year ago, both from the standpoint of sales and profits.

Earnings of Tank Car Set a Peak

General American Tank Car Corp. growth will be uninterrupted this year despite adverse conditions, particularly in the railroad equipment industry, with which its activities are closely identified. Earnings this year will set a new [illegible] and net should be between $7,000,000 and $7,250,000, or $8.75 to $9 a share for 797,422 common shares outstanding. In 1929 the previous record year, net was $6,770,741, equivalent to $8.53 a share on the average shares outstanding for the year, and $7.55 on 763,?72 shares outstanding at end of the year.

Consolidated Gas In Strong Position

Consolidated Gas has not suffered from the business depression to the same extent as many other utilities. However, the stock has been confronted with selling at times recently, reflecting liquidation for accounts which had been carrying other issues under pressure in the past. Despite the reaction in the stock interests close to the company still believe that the earnings for this year will show a moderate gain over the record established in 1929.

Liquidation in Allied Chemical

Indications are that liquidation has been in progress in Allied Chemicals this week. The stock at times has been exceptionally weak. It is considered likely that the steadily lower prices for the issue uncovered stop-loss orders which had been placed at limits materially under previous quotations. When such forced selling is encountered it usually comes at a time when there is little demand in the market and has considerable influence. There was scale buying for important interests in the stock on numerous occasions earlier in the year, but this support has not been in evidence during the latest reactions in the issue.

Liggett & Myers Earnings Estimates

A tendency to make downward revisions in the earning estimates for Liggett & Myers in the current year is noted in the financial district. Whereas there had been predictions some months ago of between $10 and $11 a share, it is now the view that the results may be under $9 a share on the stock.

One of the reasons for this change is the knowledge that the company has been making heavy expenditures for advertising, etc., while the anticipated increase in the production of its brands of cigarettes has not materialized as yet. Of course, the higher price being received for its product will offset the higher advertising and other charges to some extent.

Western Union's Quarter Is Poor

Earnings of Western Union during the third quarter are not expected to cover dividend requirements. Net income for the first half of the year amounted to $4.23 a share and earnings for the full year are estimated at about $7 a share.

Short Interest in Water Works Large

Rumors that the pool in American Water Works had lowered its bids have resulted in the creation of an extensive short interest in that issue. Borrowing demand for Water Works is the heaviest it has been in some time and one house alone is credited with loaning 25,000 shares of the stock. Sponsors of Water Works, however, show little inclination to take advantage of the extensive short interest at the present time in view of the unsettled conditions in the general market. Those usually active in the stock, however, are maintaining their "long pull" holdings.

Telegraph Line Hits Telephone

Sharp slump in the operation of American Telephone's telegraph subsidiaries will be reflected in the earnings statement for the third quarter.

Gold Dust Earnings Well Maintained

Earnings of Gold Dust are being well maintained during the current year, according to interests close to the management of the company. Net income during the current year is estimated at slightly below $4 a share as compared with $4.07 a share during 1929. Incidentally, the company has materially reduced the funded debt and preferred stocks of its subsidiary companies and is at present reducing the amount of its own preferred stock outstanding. The corporation also has taken advantage of the prevailing low prices for commodities to lay in substantial reserves of raw materials to cover its requirements within the next year. As a result of these heavy purchases the company consequently, is in a position to benefit from any improvement in the commodity price situation.

Odd-Lot Buying Is More Active

Appearance of more active odd-lot buying was regarded as an encouraging sign. Buying of this type has been negligible in the recent past.

Public Service Taken on a Scale Down

Action of Public Service of New Jersey reflects the persistent scale down accumulation taking place in that issue for the account of one of the highest executives of the company. This official has materially increased his holdings of Public Service during the past week and has placed further substantial scale down buying orders in that issue. The operations of this executive no doubt reflect the continued progress made by Public Service in development of territory served by it. The company plans to materially extend its transmission lines in territory already served and also proposes to extend the scope of its operations in the natural gas field.

Speculative Call for United Corp.

In the belief that the stock will be among the leaders in any sizable rally of the general list, United Corporation has been bought lately by speculative interests. Investment demand is discouraged by the low yield, although there are prospects for possibly slightly larger distribution next year.

General Foods Holds Steady

Recognized as a leader of the food group, General Food stock meets strong buying around current levels, where the yield is almost 6 per cent and the stock is selling on reasonable ratio to per-share earnings.

Less Pressure on Anaconda

Holding steady in the face of general unsettlement, Anaconda indicated quite plainly a lessening of bear pressure, based chiefly on recognition that current price of copper, being under production cost, is affecting necessary correction in the industry.

American Can's Firm Resistance

Throughout recent unsettlement, American Can has displayed a rather impressive resistance to pressure, indicating emphatically that this issue will be in the forerank on any general betterment.

Texas Gulf Yield High

Holding several points above its low for the year, Texas Gulf Sulphur is meeting buying, attracted by the relatively high yield on the $4 dividend.

Great Demand for American Tobacco

Decline to a new low by American Tobacco attracted additional investment buying based on knowledge of the company's gain in earnings this year despite the depression.

Ohio River Edison Is Calling Bonds

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—Ohio River Edison Co. will call for redemption on Dec. 1 next all of its outstanding first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds, 5 per cent series of 1926 at the principal amount of the bonds so redeemed, plus a premium of 5 per cent and plus accrued interest to Dec. 1.

The company also will call for redemption Jan. 1 all outstanding first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds, 6 per cent series of 1923, at the principal amount plus a premium of 7½ per cent and accrued interest to Jan. 1, 1931.

New York Steam Increasing Stock

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The New York Steam Corp. has called a special meeting for Oct. 20 to vote on a proposal to increase the authorized common stock to 500,000 shares from 30,000 and to split the present stock eight for one, and to offer 120,000 new shares at $50 a share on the basis of one new share for two shares held.

BOSTON STOCK TRENDS ARE DOWNWARD

Quincy Mining, St. Mary's, Copper Range, Mergenthaler and General Electric all set fresh 1930 lows.

Point or more losses appeared for Sullivan Machinery, Torrington, Old Colony and General Capital, the last-named at a new year's low.

American Telephone dipped over 2. Pond Creek Pocahontas at 18 was up a point.

Directors of Railway and Light Securities Company have declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on the preferred stock and a quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share on the common stock, both payable November 1, 1930, to stockholders of record at the close of business October 15, 1930. The preferred dividend is No. 8 and the common dividend is No. 10.

The consolidated statement of New England Power Association shows earnings of $5.25 a share for the 12 months to July 31, last on the 899,494 average number of shares outstanding during the period. This is the same amount per share as earned on 859,731 average shares during the calendar year 1929, and compares with previous years as follows: $4.04 a share in 1928 on 806,388 shares, $3.37 per share in 1927 on 761,310 shares, and $3.34 a share in 1926 on 592,035 shares.

International Hydro-Electric System was the owner on Dec. 31, 1929, of 794,483 shares of New England Power Association common, and as the latter is paying $2 a share on its common stock it follows that the International company is receiving income at the rate of nearly $1,600,000 a year from the Power Association subsidiary.

Balance sheet of New England Power Association as of July 31, 1930, shows $7,000,000 notes payable to banks as compared with none at the end of 1929. This note indebtedness, plus an addition of $10,000,000 to the 5½ per cent gold debenture issue of 1945, just about equals the increase in assets during the period, which consists largely of additions to holdings of securities in subsidiaries and other companies.

SPECTATOR'S VIEWS GIVEN

By SPECTATOR.

With the market heading persistently lower, and an increasing number of stocks reaching their lowest levels in years with each declining session, the long promised test of the November lows looms as the next important objective of the bear faction.

Investment Buying

It was pointed out by certain usually well informed market observers that the final stage of a bear market may well be characterized by severe drives on market leaders, while the best kind of buying is taking place in representative stocks in groups which were deflated early in the bear market. Whether or not this may be true at the present time, a study of the daily price movements reveals that no important large scale liquidation will be thrown on the floor until the market is restored to somewhat higher levels.

It must not be forgotten however, that the market is apparently reflecting the pessimistic feeling of the country and perhaps the whole world. This uncertainty is assuredly no encouragement for investment buying, even of the long-pull character, and coupled with trade advices depicting a curtailment in the basic steel and automobile industries, the near term future does not appear particularly bright.

Gasoline Stocks

The decline in gasoline stocks of 781,000 barrels for the week ended October 4 marks the 17th successive weekly drop in gasoline stores. This is significant since it is out of line with normal seasonal trend which at this period in the year, attended by falling off in motor traffic is upward. Stocks on hand as of October 4 totaled 38,441,000 barrels an increase of 4,676,000 over the corresponding period of last year.

Outlook in Rails

One important investment service is of the opinion that the probability of apparent improvement in earnings during the last quarter should soon stabilize the price level for rail shares. In anticipation of such results, commitments in the most sound issues of this group under present market conditions are attended with much smaller market risks than appear evident on the surface. An attractive opportunity for longer term profits is available among such issues as Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie, New Haven, Norfolk & Western, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

Reports 25 p. c. Gain in Profits

San Francisco, Oct. 9—President Bell of Q. R. S. Neon Corp., Ltd., recently formed merger of Q. R. S.-De Vry Corp., western Neon licensees, said sales and profits in August were greater than any month of 1930 or 1929, and sales and profits in September exceeded August by 25 per cent.

General Motors Buys Nine Months Ahead at Low Prices

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

New York, Oct. 9—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation and as such, one of the principal buyers of raw materials in the world, revealed to me that his company, is at present buying further ahead than it usually does.

M. S. Rukeyser

Ordinarily the General Motors Corporation projects its buying program four months in advance, but at present, in view of the drastic decline in commodity prices, the leading maker of diversified automobile products has placed orders for some products as far as nine months ahead.

The discussion was precipitated by a request to Mr. Sloan to comment on the announcement recently made by the Bell Telephone group that it was buying copper and certain other raw materials four months ahead to take advantage of prevailing cheap prices.

After outlining the regular practice of the General Motors Corporation, Mr. Sloan told me:

"I might say that in some cases General Motors has departed from its regular practice, and is purchasing into the future in some cases so far as the middle of next year. We are not doing that with everything, but we are doing it in certain things where it seems to be particularly desirable."

Inasmuch as the General Motors Corporation is a preeminent example of a well managed business concern, it might be interesting to uncover General Motors' regular policy in the matter of acquiring raw materials. Mr. Sloan said:

"It is the practice of General Motors and a part of its regular operating procedure to place commitments for its projected production requirements at all times for the current month and three months in advance, or a total of four months. Therefore, I take it that Mr. Bloom's announcement is no different from our regular operating policy. This policy we are adhering to at the present time.

"I might state that we feel that the prices of commodities, such as you are talking about, are undoubtedly in the great majority of cases, considerably below the cost of production. Therefore, it goes without saying that committing forward should be a profitable transaction on the part of almost any industrial organization requiring basic commodities for their production purposes. While I believe and hope that the bottom on commodity prices has in the main been reached, naturally that cannot be demonstrated, but even so it is practically impossible for any of us always to buy at the bottom and sell at the top, so to speak, so that I feel that the purchase of forward commitments, if in line with general policy, is perfectly safe and undoubtedly will turn out to be profitable."

Another slant on the same situation, as given by an outstanding business man of the Pacific Coast, the president of a giant corporation, in a message to this column follows:

"It is my judgment that cattle and sheep, copper, lumber, cotton, wheat, barley, wool, dried fruit, canned goods, coffee—in fact, nearly the whole line of commodities with which we are familiar here on the coast, are at bottom prices. I do not know about such items as tin or steel, corn, hogs, oats, coal or oil, since all but the last named have little production in this section. Am inclined to think gasoline price is well stabilized at around present levels in California, but that observation does not apply to fuel oil. Comparatively little coal is used on the coast, but the price certainly is not bringing more than the cost of production."

A manufacturer, whose concern does not use basic raw materials, but semi-finished fabricated products, said:

"We use partially fabricated products rather than the raw material, and being one step removed, therefore, from the strictly commodity market, it is not, perhaps, as clearly evident that prices of raw materials, as we purchase them, may have reached the very bottom. This particularly applies to such things as cotton cloth, paper, sheet steel, steel shapes, and fabricated steel of all kinds, which are our major purchases. Here, because of the labor cost of production on the part of our suppliers, prices have not, perhaps reached the level they may eventually.

"I am satisfied to believe with the American Telephone group that the prices of basic commodities have reached their bottom. This relates, of course, to those things which are used for fabrication and industry, rather than to those semi-processed products where other circumstances have, perhaps, more influence. Taking such items as copper, cotton, wool, leather and pig iron, they have reached, I believe, practically as low as they will be for a long time to come. Wherever possible, we are anticipating requirements as far ahead as we can, considering that as converters we are not able to buy basically raw materials for fabrication. Therefore, our commitments for the future cannot be as far ahead as they would be if we were buying a commodity."

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

A State Streeter, who was baffled by the market of 1929 because he could not accept new era ideas, has recently returned to active trading. Queried as to present conditions, he states he finds the quiet market now indicated encouraging. He recalls that a famous trader operated on the theory that it was folly to sell a dull market.

In commenting on what he refers to as the hysteria of the short sellers he uses American Water Works as an example. He says it is common knowledge that the stock harbors an unwieldy short interest, this being reflected in the loan demand for the stock. He feels an attempt will be launched soon to pocket these shorts and they will find few offerings with which to cover.

The firm of E. A. Pierce will shortly take over the stock exchange business of William Schall & Co., it is stated. The Boston office will be managed by Mr. Storer as a resident partner. William Schall & Co. will continue as investment bankers.

Boston brokers attribute some of the recent selling to large groups that have been following the lead of each other in this manner. When one group decided that a particular security held in its portfolio had lost investment appeal, it disposed of it. Others, noticing this selling, followed suit. In the opinion of many observers, this is the reason for the deflated value of some securities.

* * *

Of interest to those who follow foreign developments is the report of a State st. broker with Balkan connections that plans for a United Balkan Union are well under way. Serbian, Bulgarian, Grecian and Rumanian representatives are in accord regarding shipping, postal and tariff charges and seem to be nearing a successful schedule for the collective welfare of the "States."

CURB MARKET HAS FLURRIES OF SELLING

New York, Oct. 9—Prices slipped off in flurries of selling on the curb market today.

Pressure was not particularly severe, except in a few stocks, but interest in the buying side was at a low webb and offerings found a generally lower scale.

New lows for the year were numerous. Associated Gas & Electric "A," United Gas and American Gas & Electric in the utility group and Humble oil in the petroleum section of the list were among the shares finding new bottoms.

Electric Bond & Share, which has suffered from the Brazilian situation by virtue of its interest in American & Foreign Power, was steadier, but met considerable selling at times.

One of the weak industrials was aluminum of America, which broke to a new minimum for a loss of several points. The Ford stocks persistently sold on Wednesday firmed, Columbia pictures voting trust certificates sagged a couple of points.

With the exception of Humble the oils gave little evidence of liquidation and changes ruled small. Investment trust shares again weakened. Goldman Sachs trading reaching a new low.

Boston Banks Pay at Regular Rates

Predictions of lower Boston bank rates on deposits have remained unjustified to date. The Home Savings Bank and Charlestown Five Cents Savings Bank, two of the largest mutual savings institutions in Boston, declared semi-annual dividends on deposits of 2½ per cent each payable Oct. 15, at the same annual rate as previous dividend. Eliot Savings Bank declared semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent payable Oct. 8, while Suffolk Savings Bank declared semi-annual dividend of 2¼ per cent, payable Oct. 20.

Penn Loadings for Week Larger

Pennsylvania R. R. in week ended Oct. 4 handled 147,270 revenue cars, against 144,134 in the previous week.

NEW YORK STOCKS Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

NEW LOWS ARE RECORDED WITH HEAVY SELLING

New York, Oct 9—The stock market closed heavy today after absorbing the largest volume of selling since June.

Important stocks were depressed 4 to more than 10 points, but rebounded about 1 to 4 from the bottom in the late afternoon.

American Telephone and U. S. Steel dropped about 4 points, going below their bottom levels of last November, then regained a substantial portion of their losses. Allied Chemical dropped 10, and Westinghouse 8, before rallying.

SALES 4,750,000

Total sales aggregated 7,750,000 shares.

Although supporting orders appeared in some volume during the early hours of the session, efforts to maintain recent resistance points were soon abandoned, foreshadowing the announcement of the suspension of Prince & Whitely, which was made from the rostrum of the exchange shortly after noon.

Selling was taken in an orderly manner, however, and practically nothing approaching demoralization developed in the trading. The new faster ticker system, nevertheless, was unable to maintain the pace and fell a few minutes behind.

U. S. Steel was crushed down to the lowest price in two years, after substantial buying orders failed to hold it at 150, the low of last November.

Only 25,000 shares were taken at the 150 level, indicating that its sponsors were making no such determined effort to support it as they did last autumn, when an order fo r150.00 shares was said to have been placed.

This was interpreted in Wall St. as indicating that important banking interests felt that the market was on a much more stable basis, and that no emergency measures were necessary.

SLIGHT RALLY SEEN

Soon after the Prince & Whitely suspension was announced, the market rallied slightly, but cnotinued selling flowed into the exchange. Practically every important stock reached new lows, with the exception of American Can.

The stocks with which Prince & Whitely were identified, such as National Dairy and Kelvinator, were well taken in the main, declining only about 2 points. Young Spring & Wire, however, tumbled 12 points, and American Can sold off 3 points or so.

Shares losing 5 to nearly 10 included Westinghouse Electric, Johns Manville, American Water Works, Canadian Pacific, Gillette, Columbian Carbon and Allied Chemical.

While the actual losses in connection with the Prince & Whitely failure may be negligible, the fact that a firm which had been a member of the stock exchange for half a century could not meet its engagements was naturally highly unsettling.

The firms attorneys, however, announced that a reorganization was in progress, and that creditors may be paid in full.

The day's business news was meagre, and not of a character to influence the market, although there was probably some further disappointed selling caused by yesterday's uncheerful steel trade reviews.

Money was a little tighter, with the longer maturities of time loans a fraction higher. Call loans held at 2 per cent.

Bankers stated that tighter money at this period may be regarded as favorable, indicating increasing commercial activity and use of funds.

Structural Steel Orders Increase

New projects requiring fabricated structural steel reached 49,000 tons the past week, more than double the total of a week ago, says the Iron Age. Included is 12,500 tons for a section of New York subway. Fabricated steel awards totaled 30,500 tons last week, or larger than in either of the two previous weeks.

General Foods in Pact With Glidden

General Food Corp. has contracted with Glidden Co. for distribution and sale of certain products of Durkee Famous Foods, Inc., throughout the United States. These products include Troco nut margarin and other items suitable for distribution on trucks operated by subsidiaries of General Foods.

BOND MARKET IS STEADIER

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—The bond market, which has suffered a severe setback this week through extensive liquidation of foreign and industrial issues, was slightly steadier today.

There was less activity in the foreign department where the daily losses of Latin American issues during the first part of the week have read like the movement of shares.

Brazilian bonds remained under pressure, and losses were registered in points to carry some government, state and municipal issues to new lows for the year, but declines in bonds of neighboring countries were moderate on a small turnover.

Structural Steel Orders Increase

New projects requiring fabricated structural steel reached 49,000 tons the past week, more than double the total of a week ago, says the Iron Age. Included is 12,500 tons for a section of New York subway. Fabricated steel awards totaled 30,500 tons last week, or larger than in either of the two previous weeks.

General Foods in Pact With Glidden

General Food Corp. has contracted with Glidden Co. for distribution and sale of certain products of Durkee Famous Foods, Inc., throughout the United States. These products include Troco nut margarin and other items suitable for distribution on trucks operated by subsidiaries of General Foods.

Walter Damrosch to Lead the Orchestra Heard by 8 Million

With an estimate total of 8,000,000 children listening in, Walter Damrosch will open the third season of his symphony concerts for school children tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock over WEEI. M. H. Ayles, president of the National Broadcasting Company will inaugurate the series with a brief word of welcome to Damrosch's youthful audience.

Damrosch has expressed the hope that in this movement lies the possibility for the development of a native American music.

"With such a vast number of children becoming familiar with the technical rudiments of music, there is a much greater possibility for the natural development of American music," he said. "Instead of only a few thousands to draw on as a source of our creative musical talent, we shall have many millions. This may lead more quickly to the much longed for native music."

When Damrosch's children's concerts started three years ago he had an estimated audience of about four millions. Now that number has doubled, and Damrosch goes a step further in saying that the time will come when the entire body of school children of about 27 millions will hear these symphonic concerts over the air.

Theologian

DR. WALTER A. MAIER of the Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., the speaker on the Lutheran Hour Program, over Columbia System and WNAC tonight at 10.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

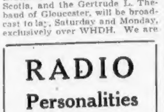
Whatever may be your personal opinion of President Hoover's administration, one thing you must admit, it is that he is not backward about taking advantage of the opportunities of sending his voice across the length and breadth of the country, through the medium of radio.

Not that he is using these means for personal aggrandizement; not that he seeks the limelight even to the extent that some of his predecessors have done, but because he realizes the great value of putting his message direct to the people wherein he can drive home his points and explanations with far greater force than can be done with the printed word.

Three times within a week the President has broadcast over a big chain tyeup. Twice in Boston and once from the Carolinas. And now we receive a notice that he will speak over the NBC network Wednesday night, Nov. 19, from 9:00 to 9:30. He will talk before the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, which should be of importance to all parents.

With a number of broadcast programs of a rural nature meeting with popular approval, it was inevitable that Joseph C. Lincoln's novel "Shavings" should be dramatized and put on the air. This has been done by the Socony Players, the two last episodes to be broadcast Tuesday evening and a week from Tuesday.

Most of the characters portraying the Yankee refer to them as coming from Maine, New Hampshire or Vermont. But it is our honest opinion that the natives of those sections are only good imitations, while the Cape Codder is the real dyed-in-the-wool Yankee. We have three hundred years of New England ancestors behind us and should know something about them. Anyway, Joe Lincoln's characters are good reading and should make interesting air programs.



Speaking of things pertaining to salt water reminds us that all three of the international fishermen's races to be held off Gloucester between the schooner Bluenose of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, and the Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester, will be broadcast today, Saturday and Monday, exclusively over WHDH. We are a little tardy for today's notice perhaps, but the remaining broadcasts you may hear beginning at 9:30 a. m.

Mr. Arthur Winslow, a prominent mining engineer and geologist, is to broadcast from station WEEI today at 4:50 p. m. on the work of the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A., of which he is chairman. Mr. Winslow is a member of the Geological Survey Society of America and the National Geographical Society and a member of the Corporation of M. I. T.

Beethoven's Symphony No. VIII will be the feature of the second concert by the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society, Erich Kleiber conducting, which will be broadcast from Carnegie Hall over the Columbia System—WNAC local—from 3 to 5 next Sunday.

Did you know that the "hillbilly" song was practically unknown in musical circles until Vernon Dalhart made a phonographic record that needed a selection for the reverse side, then overnight "The Prisoner's Song" became a wildfire hit?

COMING OUT OF THE ETHER. . . Numbers selected for their melodic qualities will feature the Maxwell House program, heard over WBZ at 9:30 tonight. Frank Parker, tenor and Lou Raderman, violinist, will aid Willard Robison in the broadcast. . . Betty Crocker opens her Cooking School tomorrow morning at 10:30 over the WEAF network. . . Norman Brokenshire, radio's ad-libber, will divulge a number of tricks on the Van Heusen program, WNAC, at 9. . . Two great composers, Verdi and Saint-Saens, will be glorified tonight over WEEI at 9, on the Arco Birthday Party. . . Another glorification program tonight is the Hamilton Watchman schedule over WNAC at 8:45. The guide of the sailor, the chronometer will receive the plaudits of the actors who participate in the program. . . And a man named Vallee has as guest stars on his program, the Moonbeams Trio, WEEI at 8.

Edward Rechlin, concert organist and Bach interpreter, will be heard with Helen Oelheim, contralto, during the musical program of the Lutheran program from 10 to 10:30 over WNAC. Mr. Rechlin's interpretations of the compositions of Bach will create a spiritual setting for the message to be given by Dr. Walter A. Maier of Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis.

RADIO Personalities

The Oct. 3 Elgin program heard GODFREY LUDLOW, violinist, play 676 notes in 50 seconds. The selection was "Will o' the Wisp." . . . MILTON CROSS was asked what he was going to do with some grapes a listener in sent him. His reply was simple, but wrong. He said he would eat them—most people drink them. . . CAPTAIN FLAGG, Heywood Broun's Airedale, participated in the radio columnist's broadcast last week and was tied to the microphone with Broun's necktie. . . The salary of FLOYD GIBBONS has dropped from $3,500 to $2,000 a week since his Topics in Brief contract ran out. . . Jolly BILL STEINKE grows fatter and fatter as Croon Prince VALLEE grows richer and richer. . . NAT BRUSILOFF is called "the Clowning Conductor" because of hilarious antics in the studio. When off-studio he is quiet and demure. . . HENRY BURBIG'S most rabid fan is a fellow artist, HARRIET LEE. . . DALE WIMBROW says that firemen are the most enthusiastic radio listeners he ever came across.

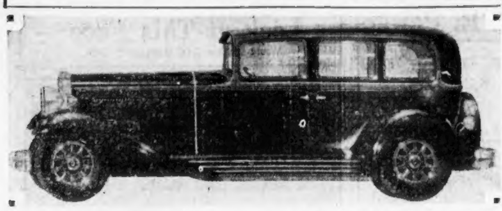
One of New Nash Models Now on Display



WITH MANY IMPROVEMENTS four new series of Nash cars went on display in showrooms today. Model eight-90, five passenger, four door sedan is shown here.

20 NEW MODELS OF NASH CAR ON MARKET

Four new groups of automobiles were placed on the market today throughout the nation by the Nash Motor Co., at the lowest prices in the company's history.

The new models number 20, ranging in price from $795 to $2025, and comprising three series of straight eights and a six-cylinder.

Mechanical design improvements are stressed. In the case of the Eight-90 motor, Nash engineers point out that engine power is increased 15 per cent to a total of 115 H. P., without adding consumption of fuel.

Announcing the series C. W. Nash, president of the company, declared:

"We have always felt it an imperative duty to Nash owners to set our motor car standards higher than the average. We are sure that in the new Eight-90, Eight-80, Eight-70 and new Nash Six Series the motoring public will recognize cars of superlative value.

YEARS OF RESEARCH

"They all represent years of proved engineering research, which have made them mechanically certain in every respect."

The new models went on display today at the showrooms of the Nash New England Co. Describing them, H. C. Hart, president, said:

"The goal of Nash engineers in producing these four new series was to create the greatest possible mechanical efficiency in each field.. So each of the new car groups was treated as a distinct development.

ENGINEERING TRIUMPH

"The new Nash six models are considered a triumph of modern engineering. To the basic principles of high compression and high turbulence so successfully engineered to L-head motor construction, the new motor adds an impressive list of advancements.

"These distinguishing features include in part: A finely machined 7-bearing crankshaft lightened by hollowed crank pins; rifle bored connecting rods for force feed oiling to the piston pins; the latest and finest type aluminum alloy Invar strut pistons; perfected carburetion with fuel pump feed; newly refined fan and water pump, equipped with a sealing ring instead of the conventional pump packing, and with thermostatic control of water circulation.

"Additional features and equipment include an effective torsional vibration damper, oil filter and air cleaner; new easy operating clutch and silent transmission with ball bearing clutch release and cushioned clutch driven plate; unusually massive double-drop frame; hydraulic shock absorbers and four point, rubber cushioned motor suspension.

"Superior engineering in the Eight-90 series presents new and finer Nash cars.

HORSE POWER INCREASED

"The motor's power has been increased 15 per cent, without increasing its fuel consumption.

"Perfected, twin type carburetion, accomplished by twin manifolding and duplicate fuel jets, is a feature of particular interest. One of the most important Eight-90 Series advancements is the new 'safety transmission,' which provides quick, positive control of the car.

"In the new Eight-70 series, Nash has brought to motorists one of the lowest priced, quality straight eights that has ever entered the market. Built on a generous 116-inch wheelbase, the new models are big cars in every respect.

EIGHT-70 SERIES

"The new Eight-70 series is powered with the high compression, high turbulence motor of Nash L-head design, developing more than 75 horse-power. Its aluminum pistons, rifle-bored connecting rods, nine-bearing crankshaft with effective vibration damper; down-draft carburetor which insures instant starting, swift acceleration, are features.

Features of the new Eight-80 group include: Wheelbase 121 inches; twin-ignition, valve-in-head, straight eight motor, developing 85 horsepower; perfected, down-draft carburetion with fuel pump feed; aluminum alloy Invar strut pistons, connecting rods drilled for oiling to piston pins; inherently counterbalanced 9-bearing crankshaft with hollowed crankpins and vibration damper; self-oiling fan; six bearing camshaft with silent roller chain drive; new, easy-shift transmission and easy operating clutch and full force feed motor lubrication."

"PUT ON THE SPOT"

in an airplane—and we're closing in on them. Is that good enough?"

"It's old enough."

"There you go again, bleating like a kid. What in h—ll ELSE can we do?"

Big Stickup

"Well, those birds seem to think up new and original ideas—sticking up Central Detail——"

"Yeggs stick up banks, too, don't they? Who could anticipate such a nutty pulover as that one? Now that it did come off, we'll go after the guilty parties. I'm on the job. I haven't been to bed or out of these clothes in two days—print that—that's all."

The reporters rose. One of them sliding off the desk, naively asked:

"Would it be too personal, Chief, to inquire how you got that blinker?"

"Oh, no; that's all right."

"A swinging door?"

"No. You know, of course, that I chased those cars myself— and if I'd had my regular driver, I'd have cut them off. I was working late here in my office when I heard shooting. My driver was taking two hours off—he hadn't slept. So I grabbed the patrolman downstairs and ordered him to take the wheel. He's good—but not experienced enough for that mob. They even shook off the fire department.

"Well, I got close enough to shoot. I was leveling my gun again when something flew up and hit me right here—a pebble or a cinder or something—out of nowhere—thrown up by one of the autos, I s'pose—and that spoiled my shot, because this time I had a bead on an open window and was going to let one of them have it—hot break of luck that was, huh?"

The chief rubbed his eye gently. He got up and stretched, put his thumbs down his belt and hitched up his trousers.

Out of the cuff of one leg popped a $20 gold piece.

Papers Shrieked

Polack Annie!

The papers shrieked with her. Her pictures were starred. Who was this red-headed celebrity that a metropolis should be paralyzed, scandalized, booberized over her in a series of the wildest and boldest and wickedest open outbreaks ever pulled off by gangsters?

Violent deeds by the notorious beer-runners and dope-shovers and racketeers were commonplace. But behind them was always a motive—profit. If they killed for revenge, that, too was for profit; it was the only way they had of maintaining their organizations and personnel and enforcing their gun-made and gun-kept rights to rich territories, to output plants, to transportation and distribution and monopoly.

But this was no reprisal work. If the Gorios were shooting up the Kinky Kings, that would be simple enough—and who would care? The Edgewater Kid had been humped off, and blood must pay for that. But who was this sweetie of his that such goings-on could be precipitated over her?

She couldn't be rated as a member of the Goldie mob. Such gangs have no female workers. Romantic stories about girls working with gunmen had to do with small stick-up groups who robbed delicatessen stores, but not with wealthy and serious money-trusts like Gorio's.

If there could be such a thing as a living love story behind this set of flaming deeds, what could that story be?

She had been Kinky's girl and she had left the West Side general for a North Side private in the Goldie ranks. If that had been why the Kid was slaughtered, well and good—it was unusual, but King's temper and swaggering ego were famous enough to explain such a breach of the code, such a deviation from the policy of conducting intergang diplomacies for gang purposes and not for personal fracases.

Freed by Force

Then King had been mysteriously killed, in very unganglike fashion, in his own home instead of on a lonely road at the end of a ride or on a sidewalk or by a shotgun fusillade sweeping by him outside. Annie might have done that. She would know how to get into his home. Or some one of King's own men might have taken him in a quarrel—very unlikely, but possible.

Anyway, instead of the Gorios and the Kinks thereupon starting in to massacre each other, came the undreamt-of raids by Goldie's flock. First because the police had refused to free Polack Annie, and then to free her by force in a manner that had never been known in American history.

What secret did she hold?

Or what was her hold on Gorio—known as a man with an eye for a pretty girl, but better known as a monarch of a huge enterprise which couldn't bear endangering by forcing a city to fight him to death where he had prospered in practical security?

The papers offered large rewards for her recapture.

The offers looked good.

Wherever she was, she was under Goldie Gorio's protection and in his custody. Who would walk into death—sure death as long as one of the mob remained alive—for a few measly thousand newspaper dollars?

The chief was giving these quandaries and a few hundred more some profound study. It was very complicated. So was his situation.

N. H. Dairymen at Williamstown Survey

More than 50 dairymen and poultrymen of New Hampshire arrived in Williamstown today to begin a two-day study of the methods of production in use at the Mount Hope farm of E. Parmalee Prentice. The survey, arranged in connection with the Boston & Maine and the Department of Agriculture program, will include demonstrations of production from dairy cattle and poultry.

RICH RUM RACE ENDS IN CRASH

Duxbury, Vt., Oct. 9 (AP)—A race, the prize for which was $5000 worth of champagne, wound over mountain roads near here last night, ending when one car slipped off a declivity.

James F. Duffy, of Fort Edward, N. Y., was arrested charged with illegal transportation of liquor. Two drivers escaped.

The arrest was made by Harry C. Whitehill, customs collector, and his chauffeur who were on their way to St. Albans when they encountered three rum-laden cars.

George Market Head

Washington, Oct. 9 (US)—Appointment of Edwin B. George of Carnegie, Pa., as chief of the recently established marketing service division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, was announced yesterday.

Better Than a Pennant

Fortunate Mr. McGillicuddy

Here you see the Hon. Cornelius McGillicuddy, eminent Philadelphian, and his two fine sons.

Mr. McGillicuddy, otherwise Connie Mack, manages the Philadelphia Athletics and he has just won another World Series, as you know.

The pennant will be a source of pride to Mr. Gillicuddy, but it will not give him one per cent of the satisfaction that he takes each day in these two boys.

Perhaps you have envied Connie Mack, whose name is on every tongue, whose merits have been publicly recognized by the great city of Philadelphia, who shares the limelight with Colonel Lindbergh, President Hoover and other supermen.

There is much to envy about him, but if you have two or three manly sons or womanly daughters, you are as well off as he in all that matters.

Fame is short-lived. Today's hero is forgotten tomorrow.

Children, growing to useful manhood or womanhood, carrying your life into posterity, are a greater achievement than winning a World Series, or flying the Atlantic, or spending a few years in the White House.

What America Wants

Hoover and Adams Applauded

You can't tell how far a fox can jump by looking at it. But you CAN TELL what the American people want by their spontaneous applause.

President Hoover and Secretary of the Navy Adams spoke in Boston this week to distinguished audiences. We shall quote verbatim the three sentences from President Hoover's long address that received the impulsive approval of the American Legion:

> "The maintenance of respect requires that we sustain a preparedness for defense that is impregnable yet that contains no threat of aggression."
> "One of the primary obligations of citizenship is a national defense."
> "It is not equitable that one citizen shall profit by war while another makes the supreme sacrifice."

Secretary Adams addressed the Chamber of Commerce, an audience of staid business men of mature thought. That audience arose and cheered him when he said:

> "And I say that it may be well for the United States to maintain a rather stronger, greater navy, that the voice of justice to ourselves and to the world may be assured."

There you have it. Two dissimilar audiences of sovereign American citizens cheering to the echo the simple, undramatic statements, first, that America must maintain an impregnable military defense capable of securing respect and justice for herself; secondly, that in the event of war capital as well as human beings must be impressed into the service of the country by the universal draft.

These two fine assemblages of American citizens do not want war. And their common, patriotic instinct tells them that national honor can be best guaranteed and war, accordingly, made the more avoidable by a complete defense against it. The travesty of it all is that too many of our superior, self-satisfied statesmen supremely ignore this voice of the people which, in a democracy, is the only master's voice to which they should give ear.

The collective common sense of the people almost invariably is sounder than the so-called solemn deliberations of these alleged wise men whose judgments are tinctured by personal vanities, ambitions and intrigues of self-interest.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Normal Parent Type Produced

TRUE INNOVATION is a quite different thing from the release of a recessive; the change is produced by an actual alteration in one of the genes, not by merely shuffling the old ones about. It is a genuine innovation, an enduring change in the germ-plasm, and it need not show the slightest disposition toward recessiveness under hybridization.

Dr. Wells

These little gene leaps that we call mutations are certainly one very important way in which the race changes. They are normal ticks of the evolutionary clock. Be mutations, now in this part, now in that, races slowly modify themselves.

The classical studies in mutation have been made with various species of that most convenient of insects, the fruit-fly. Every now and then, among hundreds of normal fellows, a "sport" appears. The novelty may differ from the rest in eye-color or in wing-shape, or indeed in the appearance of any part of its body, in length of life, in its reaction to light, and so on.

Often the same mutatim turns up independently in several different stocks. Altogether in the course of this Drosophila work over 500 mutations have been carefully recorded. Thus every now and then the germ-plasm experiments, and tries something new.

By skillful crossing it has been possible to pile together a great number of these mutants into a single strain. The resulting insects are amazingly unlike the "normal" parent type.

They look more like ants than flies, and it is highly unlikely that if an entomologist were confronted with specimens without explanation he would identify them as Drosophila melanvogaster. He would think them at least a different species.

There are many other well-established case of mutation in domesticated animals. Among plants, maize, and the garden flower called Primula sinensis, the Chinese Primrose, are classical examples; but there are plenty more.

It is of course impossible to observe mutations directly in wild nature, for one has no pedigrees and cannot tell whether a variety appears merely by shuffling of pre-existing genes or whether it is really a mutant. But there is every reason to believe that mutation is frequent in wild forms.

There are plenty of clearly demonstrated cases where wild animals and plants differ in characters which are inherited according to Mendelian laws, and which we may presume therefore to have arisen by mutation.

Thus the grasshoppers Paratettix and Apottetix of the Middle Western U. S. A. are found in an astonishing range of colors and patterns, all of which Mendelize.

In guinea-pigs and rats, the coat-colors of different wild species have been shown to differ by Mendelian genes. In pheasants and in snapdragons and primulas, where fertile species-crossing is possible, Mendelian species-differences are also known.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Golden Past Peeps Faintly in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—Modern vagaries of an unsentimental age have not entirely beclouded New York. The golden past peeps faintly through here and there. The old Murray Hill district, more than any other, symbolizes how tenuously many cling to oppressed and oppressive mid-Victorian propriety.

In this area may be found dignified gentlemen who take infinite pains in trimming their beards, cultivate a rather melancholy habit of mind and who wear hats straight on their heads instead of at rakish angles. They make sweeping bows to ladies and otherwise epitomize perfect behaviourism.

The old Murray Hill hotel, center of the district, droops in a somnolent gloom. In its enormous lobby are venerable aristocrats who carry gold knobbed canes and meet any unseemly overtures of strangers with quickly uplifted eyebrows and hearty garrumphs. A few still indulge in a pinch of snuff.

There are Murray Hill men who take an afternoon off now and then to dress in frock coat and high hat and pay brief, respectful calls to the brown stone mansions of old friends. Once a month they go far down town for similar visits with the family lawyer.

Many ladies, as frail as frost, recall long black half-mits and stately minuettes. On pleasant days they depart in closed carriages, horse drawn, for a circle of Central Park. A fleeting glimpse of their faces suggests old ivory and you somehow think of the quick, sad strokes of churchbells.

While the Morgans live on Murray Hill, not all are rich as New York judges wealth. But they are the last of the vanishing bluebloods. Uniforms of their coachmen are shabby. Butlers are flabby and gouty from age. Any number of residents still have six o'clock dinners in the half light of patrician basement dining rooms.

These are the thinning line of gentle folks to whom tabloids, isms, saxophones, sex novels, pagan plays and other offshoots of a roystering generation are mysteries. Their amusements are learned lectures at Town Hall and a few auspicious symphony concerts at Carnegie.

I still think, however, nothing looks quite so out of place in the New York hurrah as one of those pointer hunting dogs with beautiful coat and pleading eyes.

* * *

On the day the celebrated Henri Matisse visited New York the metropolitan press bulged with engagement rumors of a cabaret singer to a motion picture lady. One notice of the celebrated painter was encompassed under "Hotel Arrivals," dismissed completely with a single line: "Henry Matisse, Nice, France."

* * *

A returning American, weary of hearing Berkeley pronounced "Barclay" and Cholmondeley "Chumley" had his revenge. A Britisher bade him bon voyage and remarked that some day he hoped to see Niagara Falls. "You mean Niffles?" queried the Yank.

* * *

Too, I hear British ship builders are knitting brows to excel with something larger than the German ships "Europa" and "Bremen." They were at work on the thousand foot Oceanic when the Teutonic liners were launched and immediately abandoned their marine masterpiece. In the meantime French ship builders have up their sleeve the "Isle de la Cite" in which they hope to cross from Havre to New York in less than four days. Fun on the ocean, gracious me!

I was getting along fairly well with today's offering when Lisle Bell popped in all merry and bright and observed that what he would enjoy at the moment would be a steaming bowl of old fashioned navy bean soup flavored with ham-hock. That gives you an idea why we skip out of town now and then to get away from it all.

Also I have got to keep away from 11th avenue. It is entirely too rough. Wandering about there yesterday several loafers around a gas house screeched in falsetto, "Yoo hoo!" directed, I suppose, at my spats. Feigning nonchalance, I idled before a window in which was a mirror. "Look!" yelled another, "He's taking a pike at his puss." So I scurried away up a side street.

I also stopped in at my old home, the Ritz—you know, see how the other half lives—and it occurs to me the movies could find a handsome leading man in John Lawlor, a starter there.

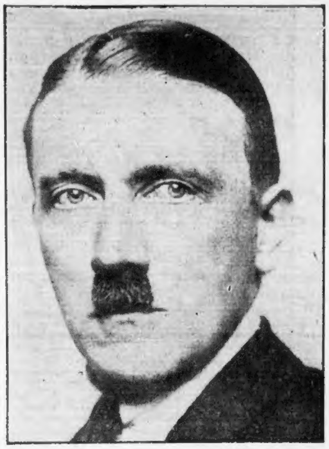
Look at This Face

Would It Ever Rule Germany? NO



ADOLPH HITLER, PLAYING THE PART OF MUSSOLINI, IN GERMANY

This face above is worth studying, it interests those of German ancestry, and all others that know the German nation.

Adolph Hitler, with a strong jaw, a weak forehead, and a comic opera moustache, imagines that he is to be ruler of Germany.

When he comes to power, says he, he will put the guillotine to work, and chop off the heads of those that established the present German Republic.

The answer to all that is PERHAPS but NOT probably.

It takes more than a curiously cropped moustache, a strong dose of vanity, and the desire to be "somebody important" to make a man ruler of a great nation.

A real German leader is General von Hindenburg, 83 years old. He had retired from the army when the big war came, believing that his days of activity were over.

GENERAL VON HINDENBURG A REAL GERMAN LEADER

But, as Clemenceau and others proved, there is no "age limit" for a real patriot.

Von Hindenburg came back, and led the armies of Germany triumphantly, while the Kaiser and his many sons remained in safe obscurity.

He was chosen head of the German Republic to succeed a humble harnessmaker, and he still stands FIRM.

No Hitler-imitation-Mussolini will persuade the German people to drop Von Hindenburg and take up a man who promises to bring back the guillotine, and "make the heads drop swiftly."

For more than fifty years the German people have been educated, not only in the admirable German schools, but also by the thoughtful Social Democratic party of Germany, led by highly educated men of great intelligence.

Germans know that stability is the thing, and that changes must come slowly.

They will not be stampeded by any Hitler, any imitation Mussolini. They will not follow the comic opera moustache at the top of this column.

A Dangerous School

A Warning to Brookline

If any more evidence were needed, the report of Architect Maurice P. Meade utterly condemns the Lincoln grammar school in Brookline and demands its immediate abolition.

This school houses 600 pupils, overcrowding it to the point of danger.

Mr. Meade finds the stairways constitute a constant fire hazard. Pupils are required to occupy the attic rooms. Improper ventilation and sanitation are found to be a menace to health. In short, the school building is archaic and ought to be abandoned.

If all that were not enough, there is the social aspect. These children come from the least affluent section of the richest town in the world. They should not be reared in the atmosphere and belief that model education under the best conditions is to be reserved for the children of the rich.

Brookline's record, on the whole, has been estimable. The school committee and other officials should remove this blotch from it at once by erecting the new school building which the safety and comfort and convenience of these children require by right.
